

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. ## A propos de ce livre

Ceci est une copie numérique d'un ouvrage conservé depuis des générations dans les rayonnages d'une bibliothèque avant d'être numérisé avec précaution par Google dans le cadre d'un projet visant à permettre aux internautes de découvrir l'ensemble du patrimoine littéraire mondial en ligne.

Ce livre étant relativement ancien, il n'est plus protégé par la loi sur les droits d'auteur et appartient à présent au domaine public. L'expression "appartenir au domaine public" signifie que le livre en question n'a jamais été soumis aux droits d'auteur ou que ses droits légaux sont arrivés à expiration. Les conditions requises pour qu'un livre tombe dans le domaine public peuvent varier d'un pays à l'autre. Les livres libres de droit sont autant de liens avec le passé. Ils sont les témoins de la richesse de notre histoire, de notre patrimoine culturel et de la connaissance humaine et sont trop souvent difficilement accessibles au public.

Les notes de bas de page et autres annotations en marge du texte présentes dans le volume original sont reprises dans ce fichier, comme un souvenir du long chemin parcouru par l'ouvrage depuis la maison d'édition en passant par la bibliothèque pour finalement se retrouver entre vos mains.

Consignes d'utilisation

Google est fier de travailler en partenariat avec des bibliothèques à la numérisation des ouvrages appartenant au domaine public et de les rendre ainsi accessibles à tous. Ces livres sont en effet la propriété de tous et de toutes et nous sommes tout simplement les gardiens de ce patrimoine. Il s'agit toutefois d'un projet coûteux. Par conséquent et en vue de poursuivre la diffusion de ces ressources inépuisables, nous avons pris les dispositions nécessaires afin de prévenir les éventuels abus auxquels pourraient se livrer des sites marchands tiers, notamment en instaurant des contraintes techniques relatives aux requêtes automatisées.

Nous vous demandons également de:

- + Ne pas utiliser les fichiers à des fins commerciales Nous avons conçu le programme Google Recherche de Livres à l'usage des particuliers. Nous vous demandons donc d'utiliser uniquement ces fichiers à des fins personnelles. Ils ne sauraient en effet être employés dans un quelconque but commercial.
- + Ne pas procéder à des requêtes automatisées N'envoyez aucune requête automatisée quelle qu'elle soit au système Google. Si vous effectuez des recherches concernant les logiciels de traduction, la reconnaissance optique de caractères ou tout autre domaine nécessitant de disposer d'importantes quantités de texte, n'hésitez pas à nous contacter. Nous encourageons pour la réalisation de ce type de travaux l'utilisation des ouvrages et documents appartenant au domaine public et serions heureux de vous être utile.
- + Ne pas supprimer l'attribution Le filigrane Google contenu dans chaque fichier est indispensable pour informer les internautes de notre projet et leur permettre d'accéder à davantage de documents par l'intermédiaire du Programme Google Recherche de Livres. Ne le supprimez en aucun cas.
- + Rester dans la légalité Quelle que soit l'utilisation que vous comptez faire des fichiers, n'oubliez pas qu'il est de votre responsabilité de veiller à respecter la loi. Si un ouvrage appartient au domaine public américain, n'en déduisez pas pour autant qu'il en va de même dans les autres pays. La durée légale des droits d'auteur d'un livre varie d'un pays à l'autre. Nous ne sommes donc pas en mesure de répertorier les ouvrages dont l'utilisation est autorisée et ceux dont elle ne l'est pas. Ne croyez pas que le simple fait d'afficher un livre sur Google Recherche de Livres signifie que celui-ci peut être utilisé de quelque façon que ce soit dans le monde entier. La condamnation à laquelle vous vous exposeriez en cas de violation des droits d'auteur peut être sévère.

À propos du service Google Recherche de Livres

En favorisant la recherche et l'accès à un nombre croissant de livres disponibles dans de nombreuses langues, dont le français, Google souhaite contribuer à promouvoir la diversité culturelle grâce à Google Recherche de Livres. En effet, le Programme Google Recherche de Livres permet aux internautes de découvrir le patrimoine littéraire mondial, tout en aidant les auteurs et les éditeurs à élargir leur public. ## HOW TO SPEAK A LANGUAGE

---

"I would fain," said John Locke, "have one show me that tongue that any one can learn to speak, as he should, by the rules of grammar."

And, indeed, how many thousands, after months and, often, years of poring over some of the text-books in ordinary use, discover, on going abroad or meeting foreigners in society, that they neither can speak nor understand the first word of the language!

This is as unnecessary as it is astounding. We find that, in the last century, a Mezzofanti could speak 58 languages. Bayard Taylor was famous for the rapidity with which he mastered foreign tongues; and the great explorer, Henry Schliemann, learned to speak modern Greek in six weeks' time! It will not serve to answer that these were exceptionally gifted men, for we see not only children, but also adults of most ordinary capacity, when thrown among foreigners, acquire in a few weeks a practical ability to express themselves and to understand others.

Yet these same children and adults, when taught by the prevailing methods in the class-room, will spend years of irksome and arduous labor in the study of a language, only to find, in the vast majority of cases, that they are unable to say the simplest things or to understand the simplest questions in it.

WHY IS THIS?

Simply because, contrary to the sage advice of Wolfgang Ratke and Erasmus, "the way of nature" is not followed, but the way of the methods instead. Now,

WHAT IS THE WAY OF THE METHODS

in common use?

One and all, whether avowedly grammatical, or claiming, as some do, to be practical and conversational because affecting to discard grammar wholly or in part, these systems are really what is called 'grammatical,' that is to say 'constructive.' For all are based on the following principles: (1) The presentation of words, either in vocabularies, or simple, i. e., formless and meaningless sentences. (2) The drilling of the pupil in constructing sentences with this material from the single word up.

Let us not forget, in the first place, that a large portion of language can not be constructed, being entirely different from synonymous forms in the language of the pupil. Such idioms as, "Never mind!" "What is the matter?" "You don't mean it!" etc., can not be constructed by foreigners learning English, but have to be taken up in their idiomatic compactness. This applies just as well, of course, to English-speaking pupils who are learning foreign tongues.

But, apart from this most important element of language, it is not against grammar and construction per se that a protest is entered. On the contrary, we should finally acquire the power to construct. But it is against grammar and construction being made the great and main dependence of the pupil in expressing himself, and the broad highway to the acquisition of language, that a protest is made. It is evident that, on such a plan, any attempt at expression involves calculation as to what place this or that word should occupy, or what inflection it should affect in this or that circumstance. For this, the learner depends upon a multiplicity of rules which he never half understood and never half remembers. Or, if he has used one of those methods which affect to discard grammar, he has to muster up the empirical substitutes for rules which have been given him, but which he has never either clearly understood or mastered. Any one so taught, whenever attempting to utter a sentence, will ponder, wonder, stammer out something, take it back, try it again, and ultimately end in confusion and silence. Or, in the case of the few who, being either over gifted or persistent, learn to speak in spite of the wrong method adopted, they almost invariably express themselves in faulty, crippled, un-French, un-German little sentences. In a word, they do not really speak French, or German, or Spanish, etc., but English-French, English-German, or English-Spanish. And this is no more correctness and propriety of speech (which these systems pretend to impart) than is hobbling along on crutches the perfection and poetry of motion.

To this first and fatal defect, however, the methods in common use add other mistakes:

(1) THE NATURE OF THEIR VOCABULARY.

Who does not know how the majority of these books fill their pages with the most formless, useless, and often inexpressibly absurd sentences? Think of poring over page after page of such phrases as (I quote textually throughout): "I have a rose, She has a book, You have a stick, My brother has a pen, His sister has an apple," etc., etc., etc.; or of being dragged over such as these: "Are you sniffing? (!) I am sniffing! Why are you sniffing? I am not sniffing now. You are sniffing!" etc., etc.; or, of being entertained with such as the following, the source of which will be instantly recognized: "Has the baker our bread? No, but he has our fine asses! Has he our nails and hammers? No, but he has our good loaves!" and so on, for fifty closely printed pages of asses, bakers, loaves, nails, and hammers mixed in the most astonishing and bewildering manner! — Is that, I ask, really learning to speak a sensible, practical tongue? Certainly, all the methods do not sin as grievously as the ones quoted above, but all are tainted more or less with this defect, and give the pupil, in the main, a mass of useless and senseless matter to learn. As if every language did not contain more than twenty times enough practical, sensible, and useful material to teach any one all the combinations and evolutions of which it is capable!

(2) THE EXTENT OF THEIR VOCABULARY.

What are we to think, then, in addition to the above, of an attempt to familiarize us with a stock of words of so vast and indigestible bulk that natives themselves would find it impossible to master it! Yet, several of these methods contain a vocabulary far greater than even a Victor Hugo or a Goethe would, or could, have used for the walks and talks of ordinary life.

And this, although philologists have assigned very narrow limits indeed to the vocabulary of every-day life, some placing the number of words necessary for the expression of our general thoughts and wants at even less than 2,000, while Prendergast shrewdly observes that "there are 200 or 300 common words in every language some of which occur necessarily in every colloquial sentence; and the profusion of speech which we observe in children, springs from their power of wielding these 200 or 300 words, with a gradually increasing stock of nouns and verbs interspersed."

No wonder then, in view of all these facts, that the methods above described fail ignominiously to teach us the art of speaking a foreign tongue, and, indeed, in most cases, even of reading or of writing it. But let us now inquire,—

WHAT IS THE WAY OF NATURE?

Whether in the case of the child surrounded by those who constantly speak to or before it, or in that of the adult in a foreign land, the ear is incessantly struck with the sounds not of single words, let us remember, but of complete sentences and perfect idiomatic forms.

Some of these finally impress themselves on the memory, and, child or adult, according to our need or impulse, we attempt to use one or the other of them. At first, it is in a crippled sort of way, perhaps bringing out but a shred of the sentence. But, let us not fail to observe, even in the case of the child, that the perfect and entire form or idiom is aimed at. So, with greater perfection at each effort, we at last use the difficult idiom or phrase with ease and accuracy,—not building it, but reproducing it as a copy of the perfect whole presented and aimed at from the first.

In this manner, a limited but sufficient collection or stock of such sentences is gathered. These forms become habitual to us, and we make a constantly recurring use of them, modifying them, however, by the introduction of new words to express more and more diversified meanings. Thus do we insensibly yet quickly find ourselves masters of a spoken tongue. Then it is that grammar often is studied, with the purpose of making us conscious of what we know and more critical, but never as a primary means by which we are expected to attempt to speak.

This plan, with such modifications as the different circumstances of real life and study in the class-room necessitate, is the one followed by the "CONVERSATION METHOD." In this, it is partly following in the path traced out as early as the seventeenth century by Comenius, a learned Moravian. His work entitled "Janua Linguarum Reserata," or "The Door of Languages Opened," marked the dawn of a revolution which, in our day, is slowly but surely overturning the present methods of language study.

Comenius himself was followed, but not until two centuries later, by Hamilton, Robertson, Toussaint-Langenscheidt, Prendergast, and others. All these systems copied nature in presenting us, at the outset, not single words or commonplace, formless and meaningless phrases, coupled with a confusing mass of incomprehensible rules (or substitutes), but idiomatic and perfect forms of speech, accompanied, generally on opposite column or page, with their meaning in the learner's vernacular. They all led the pupil, then, to repeatedly utter and handle these sentences until absolutely mastered, and, finally, to analyze, reconstruct, and recombine them.

But, although moving in the right direction, they necessarily had to feel their way, and, consequently, were imperfect; some, like Prendergast and Hamilton, entirely excluding grammar; others, like Robertson, introducing it to such an excessive degree as absolutely to prevent that constant repetition without which it is impossible by any system to learn to speak a language; others still, being replete with the grossest errors, and filling page after page with dry lists of synonymous terms that pall upon the mind and bewilder the memory.

The CONVERSATION METHOD, while applying the same great and natural principles, avoids the mistakes committed by its direct predecessors. It supplies the pupil from the outset with sentences of daily necessity coupled with their translation and pronunciation, so that they may be easily memorized and mastered in their perfect and idiomatic completeness, and turned to immediate conversational account. These are now rehearsed in active colloquial exercise, and, when thoroughly familiar, analyzed, and the words of which they were made up inserted into other forms and idioms to express a still greater variety of meanings. Such is the true basis of practical and perfect language knowledge. It is in this way, says Prendergast, that "for slovenly hesitation, fluency and readiness are substituted."

Instead of translating from the English, the beginner has to learn the genuine foreign forms of speech."

When a certain number of these idiomatic and necessary phrases have been mastered by the pupil, a vocabulary — not made up of unrelated and ill-assorted words, as is the case with so many methods, but classified, and all pertaining to the particular topic treated in the sentences — is furnished. These words are used to insert into the ready forms of speech already mastered, thus at a trifling cost of study and memory, broadening a hundred-fold the range of our expression.

At the same time, the words contained in the method have been limited to such a number as to render possible and bring about that constant repetition of the same words and phrases, without which we cannot expect to learn to think in a language.

Now,

WHAT IS THINKING IN A LANGUAGE?

In reality, there is no such thing. What is meant is, that we become so familiar with the forms of language that we do not have to think in using them. This faculty is developed in our own or in any other language only by the constant repetition of the same idioms and words. Now, if a method deluges the pupil, as many do, with an avalanche of useless words, it is evident he can never repeat this mass frequently enough to familiarize himself with any portion of it. This mistake has been avoided in this book by the introduction mainly of words within the range of every-day conversation and necessities, although the other extreme has been shunned, and literary, artistic, and social topics have been freely introduced.

So far, therefore, "the way of nature" has been faithfully copied. But while, owing to the incessant reiteration of the same forms and the constant urging of daily wants in real life, the way of nature is all sufficient to force upon us a fluent and even elegant use of language, the limited hours of the classroom demand the introduction of some element to make plain the by-paths just traversed but still brushy and hampered; something to co-ordinate that practical but still partially chaotic knowledge, and clear for us the broad, general avenues of language; something, in fine, to take the place of the ever present and despotic tutorship of nature; and that something is

GRAMMAR.

Although John Locke would have had us study "without the drudgery of grammar," it is certainly indispensable to the perfect knowledge of a language acquired in the class-room. And grammar has become the bugbear that it is, simply because it has been made to play a part for which it never was fit. But brought in at the proper time, and, as Erasmus advised, kept in proper limits, why should grammar be other than a help, instead of a hindrance? For, then, it is simply the explanation of what may be puzzling us. Now, explanation, if clear and to the point, will not confuse but assist us. For it will give us the rationale of the construction and frame-work of forms already mastered, and teach us how, intelligently, to construct others upon these vivid models. In a word, it will fill the gaps of our practical knowledge and bind its segments firmly together. Thus to complete and cap the edifice, but not to be the foundation and main support of it, that is the office of grammar.

HOW IT IS TAUGHT IN THIS BOOK.

In the first place, notes are given at the bottom of every French (or German) page. These are not expected to be specially memorized, but are rather meant as present answers to whatever queries may arise in the mind concerning the forms and phrases we master. In addition, all the necessary grammatical elements of the language are found together, properly classified, at the end of the book, while the learner is referred to them from time to time throughout the text. In this way, we are assured a thoroughness not attained by works which cut the grammar into shreds, and sow it piecemeal throughout their pages, so that seeing no end or connection about this straggling grammatical mass, the learner becomes inevitably and hopelessly bewildered.

But it will be found that, as a result of the mastery of idiomatic forms obtained through this method, many minor rules will have taught themselves; thus, isolating the main and more difficult rules, which are then easily mastered. Five of the latter, which I consider most important and hence call the "Five Cardinal Rules," are inserted from place to place in the text so as to further isolate them for the pupil.

However, the book is so constructed as to allow those who, like John Locke and Herbert Spencer, are adverse to grammar, to study without it.

CONVERSATION.

Another distinctive feature of this method remains to be explained. Any system of teaching languages not based upon the successive treatment of actual topics will be one-sided and incomplete. For if, as Prendergast says, "disconnected words are not language," then certainly, disconnected sentences are not conversation. For this reason, and in view of the manifold and patent advantages of such a plan, every portion of this work (whether sentences, conversations, exercises, or even readings) is cast in conversational form. And in order to create a series of topics at once practical and interesting, we are so to speak, transported to Paris (or Berlin, or Madrid), and then surrounded with the most natural circumstances pertaining to traveling or residing in the country of which we study the language. In this medium, we are made to speak, to read, and to write about things which we would really need to know and to say with foreigners.

The book is composed of five parts. At the beginning of each of these, a long idiomatic sentence is given, with its pronunciation and translation. This sentence is divided into its clauses, each one of which introduces a number of other sentences modified from or related to it. Then follows a vocabulary, a portion of which is absorbed in "Conversations" and "Exercises." (See DIRECTIONS, page xi.) Finally, a reading, and, generally, a letter close every section.

In short, nothing has been omitted to make the general plan of the method a complete and interesting as well as practical one. Neither is it a mere experiment, but the result of years of actual and successful experience in teaching thousands of pupils. It will be found to impart in a little time the power of readily and idiomatically speaking a language, as well as of reading and writing it.

EDMOND GASTINEAU.

DIRECTIONS.

I.—PREPARATION OF THE LESSONS.

Read the sentence found at the beginning of each part a number of times, by means of the figured pronunciation. This reading, if possible, should be done aloud, as first and properly recommended by Langenscheidt. When the sentence begins in this way to grow familiar, attempt to repeat it from the English side, without looking at the French. If any word escapes the memory, however, look at it at once, yet do not finish the sentence from there, but return to the beginning of it, and again, from the English side, attempt to repeat it from end to end without looking at the French. This will be found a much easier task than one would anticipate, and soon the learner will find himself able to repeat a long and idiomatic sentence with practical fluency.

This done, learn the shorter sentences following in the same manner. When one page has been gone over, return to the beginning of it and attempt to repeat all the sentences from the English side, without the help of the French.

CONVERSATIONS, EXERCISES, READINGS, LETTERS. — Directions will be found with each of these. But in the case of the Conversations, write them out in English, if necessary, and repeat the French aloud from this translation.

II.—HINTS FOR RECITATIONS.

The 'sentences' may be recited in class, either by each pupil separately, or by a section of the class speaking together. The teacher may ask the English, the pupil or pupils repeating the French, without aid of the book or, if the class is apt and forward, the instructor may read one of the French questions, the pupils giving the answer from memory.

The LITERAL TRANSLATIONS accompanying each idiomatic phrase will allow the pupil, once he has mastered the sentence, to study the meaning of each word, while also giving him a clear conception of what the French really say.

THE CONVERSATIONS AND EXERCISES. — At first, the English of the conversations may be given, the pupil repeating the French from memory. But the class should be gradually led to repeat these as real conversations, with such additions or alterations as may be brought in by the instructor.

With adults, I usually recommend not to have the exercises written out, but only recited orally.

THE LETTERS. — It has been my invariable experience that to memorize a few model letters and write them from memory, impresses the usual forms of letter-writing better than months of ordinary exercise writing. But in addition to this, it is well to lead pupils to write letters on topics suggested to them.

SELECTION OF THE MATTER. — It is a good plan to omit those portions of a book which appeal least directly to the particular pupil or class. Thus, with children, I would omit sections about needle-work, for instance. If ladies are studying, I would pass over business letters, etc. A good way is to draw a pencil-mark diagonally across the parts thus omitted. This does away with the feeling of incompleteness otherwise engendered.

CONVERSATION. — After recitation, whether of Sentences, Conversations, or Exercises, etc., pupils should be drilled, as far as time and size of class permit, in independent conversation over the topics just treated, care being taken to introduce words from the vocabularies. Questions should also be asked of them concerning the facts contained in the readings, and they should be led to answer in the foreign tongue.

III. — FOR SELF-STUDY.

SENTENCES, ETC. — Follow directions under "PREPARATION, Etc." Do not stop short of uttering the phrases without any hesitation.

CONVERSATIONS. — To be written out into English and the French repeated aloud from that, without help of the book. But learners should gradually apply themselves to repeat these CONVERSATIONS from beginning to end, without looking at book or paper.

EXERCISES should be written out in French, and then repeated aloud from the English text without looking at the paper.

IV. — TIME OF STUDY.

Prendergast was right in recommending, at least, short but frequent periods of study, instead of the ordinary two or three hours of consecutive drudgery. Study, then, from five to fifteen or, at most, thirty minutes, as often as practicable each day.

PRONUNCIATION.

In the following table of signs and pronunciation, English values as taken from Webster are given for equivalent French sounds. This, if properly done, furnishes a perfectly clear and well-nigh absolute criterion for the learner. An extended experience in the use of the English tongue has, it is hoped, peculiarly fitted the compiler for the English part of the work; while his birth and liberal bringing up in the French capital are guarantees of a correct French pronunciation. A number of standard authorities, such as Littré, Larousse, Bescherelle, etc., have been carefully consulted. In a word, no effort has been spared to bring this plan of pronunciation to the highest possible degree of perfection.

ACCENT.—It is generally supposed that French accentuation is so slight as not to deserve any special attention. Hence, this point is either entirely overlooked by the methods or disposed of in a couple of lines. Thus, the pupil either remaining ignorant of this most important fact in pronunciation, or never having it vividly and constantly recalled to him, naturally accentuates his French as he does his vernacular.

To illustrate the effect, let us imagine some one asking for the Opera, in Paris. If he accentuates thus: L'Op'-éra or L'Opér'-a, 45 times out of 50 he will fail to be understood. But let him pronounce it L'Opéra', and he becomes intelligible at once. Apply this to his ordinary utterance of the language, and the great importance of proper direction in this respect will appear.

For that reason, a system of accentuation has been devised in the pronunciation of this book, constantly reminding the pupil where the accent should fall. But let the learner remember:

(1) That this accentuation falls over the last syllable of the word (or clause), or (when the last syllable is mute) upon the one before the last. Ex.: Bateau (bâ-tô'); Navire (ná-vē'-r').

(2) That it is at most a slight emphasis upon the accented syllable, yet sufficient to impart a special tone and character to word or phrase. To it is due the well-known rising inflection at the end of word, clause, or sentence, in French.

TABLE OF SIGNS.

NOTE.—The table is a key to the signs used throughout the book, so the pupil will do well to refer to it constantly, until mastered. A good plan is also to copy it off on a piece of stiff paper or card-board, so as to have it always before one for ready reference.

SIGNS.	FRENCH VALUES REPRESENTED.
1. â = a in ask .	Usual sound of a .
2. ä = a in father .	Occasional sound of a (see p. xv).
3. ā = a in late . <sup>1</sup>	é ; also ai , ed , er , ez , final.
4. ē = ee in meet . <sup>1</sup>	Sound of i .
5. ě = e in met .	è , ais , aix ; also, e before all consonants except final d , r , and z . <sup>2</sup>
6. ê = e in there .	ê ; and è before a mute syllable.
7. ô = o in other .	Usual sound of o .
8. ō = o in note .	Occasional sound of o .
9. oo = oo in cool . <sup>1</sup>	Sound of ou .
10. ũ = u in but .	Full sound of unaccented e at the end of a syllable. Also eu not final.
11. û = u in urge . <sup>3</sup>	Sound of eu final; eû ; also eus , eut , eux , final.
12. ü = u in duenna . <sup>4</sup>	Sound of u .
13. zh = zi in glazier .	Sound of g before e or i .
14. an = an in want .	An, am, en, em
15. in = an in rank .	In, im, ein, eim
16. on = on in wrong .	On, om
17. un = un in wrung .	Un, um, eun
18. ũ = very short sound of 'silent' e . (See Sign 10.) See p. xvi.	Not followed by a vowel or another m or n.
19. ' = shortest sound of 'silent' e; a mere breathing . See p. xv.
20. ' = accented syllables (see page xiii).
21. ñ = ny in canyon . Usual sound of gn . See p. xix.
22. ~ in the pronunciation denotes that two vowels are to be pronounced together as a diphthong. Thus: pitié = pē-tē-ā' . Pronounce tē-ā quickly together.

<sup>1</sup> But pronounced more quickly, though without losing the pure quality of the sound. — <sup>2</sup> Exception: Et (and), pron. ā.

FRENCH PRONUNCIATION.

As occasion may point out, return and study one or the other of the rules given here in detail. These rules (some of which appear for the first time) must be considered as general; yet they offer few exceptions not actually noted.

I.—VOWEL SOUNDS.

Sounds of A.

1. Usual sound = a in ask (middle sound of a). — Sign, â.
2. Occasional sound = a in father. — Sign, ä. This occurs:

Before final s <sup>1</sup>	. . .	Pas, not ;	pron. pä .†
“ final se	. . .	Phrase, sentence ;	“ fräz '.
“ final tion <sup>2</sup>	. . .	Nation, nation ;	“ nä-sē-on '.
“ rr	. . . . .	Carré, square ;	“ kä-rä '. <sup>3</sup>
“ ill <sup>4</sup>	. . . . .	Caille, quail ;	“ kä'-yü .
With a circumflex (^)		âme, soul ;	“ ä'-m '.

NOTE. — The grave accent over a is merely a distinctive sign and has no effect on its value. Both a (has) and â (to) = â. The circumflex accent does not alter the sound of a, if it is a tense sign. Thus: Nous parlâmes (we spoke) = nōō pār-lä'-m', not nōō pār-lä'-m'.

Sounds of E.

1. Unaccented e, at the end of a syllable (as, bul-le-tin; ga-re; etc.) is called “silent,” but, when given in full, has the sound of u in but. — Sign, ü.

NOTE. — Most of the time, however, “mute” e, especially in conversation, is partly or entirely silent. When ending one word and followed by another beginning with a vowel (or silent h), it entirely disappears.<sup>5</sup> Thus: Votre ami = vô-trä-mē. At the end of a word, but not followed by another word beginning with a vowel, the sound of e amounts only to a slight breathing, which, however, lengthens the preceding syllable and gives full articulation to the consonant just preceding the e. (This value of e is represented in this book by an apostrophe.) Thus (when not followed by another word), dire (to say) =

† Also, sometimes, ss. Thus: passe, classe = päs', kläs'.

dēr', not dēr; affaires (business) = â-fair', not â-fair; tante (aunt) = tan'-t', not tant. N. B. — When this 'breathing' is somewhat more pronounced and nearer to the sound of a very short ũ (or else after certain letters, like y) an italic ũ is often used in this book to express its value.

NOTE. — When one mute e follows another immediately, the second generally disappears. Thus: Il me le donne = ěl mŭl dôn'.

2. Other sounds of e: E,

(1) With acute accent, or when before final d, r, and z<sup>1</sup> = ā.

Ex.: Parlé, parler, parlez = pār-lā'. — Pied = pē-ā'.

(2) With the grave accent, or before any consonant except d, r, or z<sup>2</sup> = e in met. — Sign, ě. Ex.: Très (very) = trěh.

For obvious reasons, when ě is not followed by a consonant sound in this pronunciation, a letter h is usually placed after it, to indicate more clearly its broad value.

NOTE. — When nt and s following unaccented e are tense signs (in verbs), e remains silent. Thus: Tu parles (thou speakest); Ils parlent (they speak) = tŭ pār'-l'; ěl pār'-l'.

Also, when s is the sign of the plural, e remains silent. Balle and balles (balls) are both = bāl'; belle and belles are both = běl'.

(3) With circumflex accent, e has the sound of e in there. — Sign, ē. — Ex.: Même (same, or even) = mē'-m'.

NOTE. — In femme, solennel and the adverbial termination ement (Ex.: apparemment), e is pronounced ā. Thus: fām', sô-lā-něl', â-pâ-râ-man'.

Sounds of I.

1. Usual sound = ea in peace (but slightly shorter in quantity). — Sign, ē.

2. Occasional sound, — with circumflex, or before a mute vowel — same as above, but long as in English. — Sign, ē.<sup>3</sup>

Sounds of O.

1. Usual sound of o: o in other. — Sign, ô.

NOTE. — Slightly broader than o in other, but not as broad as o in not.

<sup>1</sup> Exceptions: Words of one syllable in er. Ex.: Mer (měr), fer (fěr); and a few words of two syllables, as amer (bitter), etc. Also: Proper names and names of cities in ez. Ex.: Suez (sŭ-ěz').

2. Occasional sounds of o :

1st occasional sound = o in note. — Sign,  $\bar{o}$ .

Before final s	. . . . .	Gros, thick ; pron. gr<math>\bar{o}</math> .
“ “ t	. . . . .	Mot, word ; “ m<math>\bar{o}</math> .
Before final tion	. . . . .	Notion, pron.: n<math>\bar{o}</math>-s<math>\bar{e}</math>-on' .
Or, if entirely final	. . . . .	Do (mus. C), pron. đ<math>\bar{o}</math> .
Before final se	. . . . .	Rose, “ r<math>\bar{o}</math>z' .
With a circumflex accent	. . . . .	Dôme, “ d<math>\bar{o}</math>m' .

2d occasional sound = o in or. — No sign: Or (gold) = or.

Sounds of U.

No equivalent in English. Contract tightly (but do not protrude) the lips, as if about to whistle; then, with the lips firmly held so, attempt to give the sound of ee in meet, but quickly, and you will give the French sound. — Sign,  $\bar{u}$ .

$\bar{u}$  is a trifle longer. Practically, difference not perceptible.

II. — OTHER VOWEL SOUNDS.

1. Ai (ay, ei, ey) are sounded a in fate (Sign,  $\bar{a}$ ) — :(a) When final. Ex.: J'ai (I have) = zh $\bar{a}$ .

(b) When initial (beginning a word), if not immediately followed by a mute syllable, a syllable beginning with s, or a vowel. Ex.: Aimable =  $\bar{a}$ -m $\bar{a}$ '-bl'. (But: Plaisir = pl $\bar{e}$ h-z $\bar{e}$ r'; aile = ěl'; ayons = ěh-yon'; see y.)

2. Ai (ay, ei, and ey) =  $\bar{e}$  in m $\bar{e}$ t (Sign,  $\bar{e}$ ) — :Before a final consonant: Lait = l $\bar{e}$ h; soleil = s $\bar{o}$ -l $\bar{e}$ h'-y $\bar{u}$ .Before a mute syllable: J'aime (I like) = zh $\bar{e}$ m'.3. Au and eau = o in note. — Sign,  $\bar{o}$ .4. Eu and œu = u in but. — Sign,  $\bar{u}$ . But :

5. Eu (or œu) final, or before final s, x, or t, has no perfect equivalent in English. The nearest is the u in urge — Sign,  $\bar{u}$ .

To produce it, sound the u in urge, only deeper, that is to say, not as a throat sound, but as a profound chest tone. The lips are also slightly contracted, and held much closer.

Ex.: Jeu (play) = zh $\bar{u}$ ; Il pleut (it rains) = ěl pl $\bar{u}$ '.6. Oi = wa in waggon (usual sound). — Sign,  $\bar{o}$ - $\bar{a}$ .Oi = wa in war, when followed by final s or x. — Sign,  $\bar{o}$ - $\bar{a}$ '.Ex.: Loi (law) = l $\bar{o}$ - $\bar{a}$ '. But: Mois (month) = m $\bar{o}$ - $\bar{a}$ '.

Exceptions: Fois (time) = fô-â, and nouns in which the s is only the plural sign. Thus: Les lois, lěh lô-â'.

8. Ou = oo in moon. — Sign, ōō.

N. B. — Except when having a circumflex accent, or before a mute syllable, the sound of ou in French is shorter than ōō, in quantity. But ōō has been chosen rather than oo for the sign, because it represents the pure, broad quality of the sound much more accurately.

9. Y not preceded by a vowel = ē. Symétrie, sē-mā-trē'.

Y between two vowels, = i-i, each combining with the vowel next to it. Ex.: Moyen (means) = moi-ien (mô-â-yin').

NOTE. — The tréma (dixeresis) indicates the separating of two vowels. Thus: Mais (but) = měh; but, maïs (corn) = mâ-ēs'; baïonnette = bâ-yô-nět', etc. Except in proper names. Ex.: Staël = Stâl.

Uë, however = ü. Ex.: Aiguë (sharp) = ā-gü'.

III.—NASAL VOWEL-SOUNDS.

These sounds occur when a vowel or diphthong is followed by a single n (or m), itself not followed by a vowel or another n (or m). Thus, in plan-te, hon-te, nom, an, on, and om are nasal. But, in pla-ner (to soar), or canne, po-lo-nais (Polish), or bonnet, homme (man), the n or m being followed either by a vowel or another n or m, no nasal sound occurs.

The nasal sounds exist in English, although partly altered by the presence of another consonant (as in want, song). Thus:

1. An, am, en, and em = an in want. — Sign, an.
2. In, im, ain, aim, and ein (eim) = an in yank. — Sign, in.
3. On and om = on in wont. — Sign, on.
4. Un, um, eun = un in wrung. — Sign, un.

N. B. — Such combinations as ian, ien, ion, iom, uin, etc., being simply made up of the sound of i and an, etc., are not given separate signs, but will be represented as: yan or ē-an', yin or ē-in, yon or ē-on', ü-in'. Notice that en = an, but ien = ē-in'.

As seen above, instead of the grossly misleading signs (such as ang, ong, etc.) given in the various methods, I use an italic n, thus denoting, by the curtailing of the letter, the curtailing or arrestation of the n sound which takes place.

To give the nasal sounds, pronounce an (am, en, or em) as you would an in want, only stop short of the t, and arrest the sound of n half-way. Likewise, pronounce in (im, ain, aim, or ein) as you would an in yank, only stop short of the k, etc.

Again, pronounce on (or om) as you would on in wont, only stop short of the t, and arrest the sound of n half-way. Finally, pronounce un, etc., as un in wrung, only stop short of the g, etc.

NOTICE that the organs of speech, — mouth, teeth, and lips, — do not close at all upon the nasal sound. Thus, for nom (name), faim (hunger), do not say nóm nor fám (closing the teeth and lips partly and rounding the n), but non, and fin.

IV. — CONSONANTS.

Nearly all consonants are sounded as in English. Only :

C before e or i = s. Ex.: Ce (this) = sũ. Ici (here) = ē-sē'.

C before a or o or u = k. Ex.: Canne = kán'. Col = kól.

But with a cedilla ( , ), c = s before a, o, u, also. Ça = sá.

Ch = sh, except when followed by a consonant. Ex.: Chat (cat) = shá'; but, Chrétien, Christ = krā-tē-in', krēst.

G before a, o, and u = g in go. Ex.: Garçon = gār-son'.

Gu before a, e, or i = g in go. Ex.: Guerre (war) = gair'.

Note that in the figured pronunciation, g always = g in go.

G before e and i = zi in glazier. Ex.: Georges (zhor'-zh').

J is always = zi in glazier. Ex.: Jamais (zhà-měh').

Gn = ny in canyon. — Sign, ñ. Excep.: Stagnation (stág-nä-sē-on'), and a few other words rarely used.

H is silent when vowels can be elided before it, and consonants carried over to it. Ex.: L'honneur, instead of le honneur. Mon honneur (mon nó-nũr', not mon ó-nũr').

H is called aspirate when the above cannot take place. But no aspiration in the English sense is given to it. Ex.: Le haut (the top). Pron.: lũ ō', never lũ hō'.

Liquid L. — Il and Ill (sometimes preceded by another vowel, as in: ail, eille, ille, etc.), are called 'liquid.'

"Liquid l is pronounced in two ways: In the South, the ll of billet is pronounced as in the Italian biglietto; in Paris, they replace it by y or double i: bi-iet, or bi-yet." — LAROUSSE.

Really, both pronunciations are accepted. The y pronunciation of 'liquid' l is perhaps the most common in conversation; and its pronunciation as li in brilliant, that of dignified diction.

A y is used in this book as the sign of liquid l. Learners may choose between the two pronunciations above. — Thus :

Ail = â-yũ. Ex.: Travail = trâ-vâ'-yũ (or, trâ-vâ'-y').

Aille = ä-yũ (generally). Ex.: Caille (quail) = kä'-yũ.

Eil and eille = ëh'-yũ. Ex.: Pareil (similar), bouteille (bottle). Pron.: pâ-rëh'-y'; bōō-tëh'-yũ.

Ouil = ōō'-yũ (brouillard, brōō-yâr').

Euil = ũ'-yũ (feuille = fũ'-yũ).

Il and Ill = ē-yũ. Ex.: Péril, pā-rē'-y'. Fille (girl), fē'-yũ. Excep.: The following words: Fil, mille, million, ville, tranquille (quiet), and two or three others, are pronounced: fēl, mēl', mē-lē-on', vēl', tran-kēl'. Also, Achille (Achilles), and Lille (Lilles) = â-shēl', lēl'.

Ill initial is not liquid: illustre (ēl-lüs'-tr', not ē-yüs'-tr').

Note that the l preceding the l must be in the same syllable. Ex.: Familier, being divided fa-mi-lier = fâ-mē-lē-ā' (no liquid sound).

M is silent in condamné (kon-dä-nā'), and automne.

P is silent in baptiser (to baptize), compter (to count), corps (body), printemps (Spring), prompt, sculpteur, temps (time), sept (seven). Pron.: bâ-tē-zā', kon-tā', kor.

Q and qu = k. Ex.: Cinq = sin-k. Quand (when) = kan. Exceptions: Aquatique, aquarelle (water color), équateur; (pron.: â-kōō-â-tēk', etc.). Also words beginning with quadr, as quadrupède, etc., kōō-â-drü-pēd', etc.; also: loquacité, équation, and quartz (pron.: lô-kōō-â-sē-tā', etc.); équestre (equestrian), équitation (horsemanship, riding), équilatéral = â-kü-ës'-tr', â-kü-ē-tä-sē-on', etc.

R is brought out more forcibly than in English.

S = s in silk, at the beginning of a word; also, in the middle of a word, if not between two vowels. Ex.: Sœur (sister), Espoir (hope). Pron.: sür, ës-pò-âr'.

S = z, when between two vowels. Ex.: Risibilité, phrase (sentence). Pron.: rē-zē-bē-lē-tā', fräz'. (See note, p. xxi.)

S final, is pronounced in atlas, fil (son), gratis, jadis (formerly), mars. Pron.: â-tläs', fēs, märs. Also in Greek and Latin names: Pallas, Plutus; Pron.: Päl-läs', etc.

T = t in total. Ex.: Tirer (to draw, to pull) = tē-rā'.

T = s in silk, in the syllables tial, tiel, tion. Ex.: Partial, additionnel, perfection. Pron.: pär-sē-äl', â-dē-sē-ô- něl', pěr-fěk-sē-on'. Excep.: If preceded by s, t is sounded like t. Ex.: Question, bastion, etc. Pron.: kēs-tē-on', etc.

T=t in words ending in tie, tié, and tier. Thus: Partie (part), pitié, entier (entire). Pron.: pār-tē', pē-tē-ā', etc. But t=s, in facétie, initiation, aristocratie, etc. Pron.: fā-sā-sē', ē-nē-sē-ā-sē-on', à-rēs-tò-kra-sē', etc.

Th always=t. Théâtre = tā-ā'-tr'. Never: Thā-ā'-tr', a frequent mistake. The French do not know the sound of th.

T final, is sounded when preceded by c or s. Ex.: Correct, exact, Christ, Est (East), etc. Pron.: kor-ěkt', eg-zākt', krēst, ěst. Also, in Chut! (Hush!), đot (dowry), fat (fop). Pron.: shüt, dót (except. to rule on p. xvii), fāt.

W is (usually) sounded like v. Ex.: Wagon (car), vā-gon'.

X, initial, if followed by a vowel = gz. Ex.: Xerxès, examen (examination). Pron.: Gzēr-sēs', ěg-zā-min'.

Otherwise, as in English: prétexte, borax (prā-těks'-t', bor-āks') Excep.: Bruxelles, Brü-sěl'; also, in names or plurals: Bordeaux, choux (cabbages), Bor-dō', shōō.

V.—FINAL CONSONANTS AND "LIAISON."<sup>1</sup>

Consonants at the end of a word are generally not sounded in French, unless the word is followed by another beginning with a vowel (or silent h).<sup>2</sup> Ex.: Pas, petit. Pron.: pā, pŭ-tē'. But, Pas à Paris, petit oiseau, petit homme = pā zā Pā-rē', pŭ-tē-tò-ā-zō', pŭ-tē-tóm'.<sup>3</sup>

This 'liaison' is expressed in the French text of this book by the sign —. It is often omitted in conversation when it would produce a disagreeable impression, or when speaking rapidly.

NOTE.—Final c is carried over with the sound of k; final d, with that of t; final f, with that of v; final s or x, with that of z. Ex.: Avec elle = ā-věh-kěl', Grand hôtel = gran-tō-těl', neuf heures = nŭ-vŭr', Pas à Paris = pā-zā Pā-rē', Deux heures = dŭ-zŭr'.

Final c, f, l, and r, are generally sounded, however, even if not followed by a word beginning with a vowel. Ex.: Avec soif, bal, sœur. Pron.: ā-věk', sò-āf', bāl, sŭr. But:

C final is silent in échecs (chess), estomac, tabac, banc, blanc, franc, clerc, accroc, escroc, (ā-shēh', ěs-tò-mā', a-krō').

F final, is silent in clef, cerf, chef-d'œuvre (masterpiece); and the plurals: nerfs, œufs, bœufs. (klā, sër, shëh-dü'-vr', nër, û, bû).

L final, is silent in baril (barrel), fusil (gun), fils (son), gentil (nice), sourcil (eyebrow), persil (parsley), pouls (pulse). Pron.: bā-rē', fū-zē', fēs, pōō.

NOTE. — Rt and rd final carry r over, not t or d. Il part à, èl pâr à.

VI.—HOW TO DIVIDE FRENCH WORDS.

To divide French words into syllables, stop before a consonant when there is but one. Ex.: Risibilité, parlement, inimitable. Div.: Ri-si-bi-li-té, par-le-ment, i-ni-mi-ta-ble.

When there are two consonants, stop between the two. Ex.: Altitude, enveloppes. Div.: Al-ti-tu-de, en-ve-lop-pes. Except when the second consonant is h, l, or r, when the two are considered as one consonant and the 1st rule holds. Ex.: Riche, apathie, sabre. Div.: Ri-che, a-pa-thie, sa-bre.

When there are three consonants, stop just after the first. Ex.: Substitut, institution. Div.: sub-sti-tut, in-sti-tu-tion.

N. B. — This fact is of great importance and aid in pronunciation. Among other things, it enables the pupil to know when an unaccented e is final, and, therefore, mute; and also when an n is nasal or not. Thus, in Edmond, divided Ed-mond, the e is not final, and hence not mute. But in enveloppe, divided en-ve-lop-pe, the e in ve and pe are both final, and hence silent. Likewise, in inutile, divided i-nu-ti-le, n not being in the same syllable as i, is not nasal, hence pronounced: ē-nü-tēl', instead of in-nü-tēl'. The latter mistake is almost universal.

NAMES OF FRENCH LETTERS.

The French alphabet has 25 letters: a, b, c, d, e, f, g, h, i, j, k, l, m, n, o, p, q, r, s, t, u, v, x, y, z. W is used, but as a foreign letter.

OLD NAMES: ä,<sup>1</sup> bā, sā, dā, ā, ěf, zhā, āsh, ē, zhē, kā, ěl, ěm, ěn, ō, pā, kü, ěr, ěs, tā, ū, vā, ěks, ē grĕk, zĕd. Dōō-blŭ-vā'.

NEW NAMES: ä,<sup>1</sup> bū, sŭ, dŭ, ŭ, fŭ, gŭ, ŭh, ē, zhŭ, kŭ, lŭ, mŭ, nŭ, ō, pŭ, kŭ, rŭ, sŭ, tŭ, ŭ, vŭ, ksŭ, ē grĕk, zŭ. Dōō-blŭ-vŭ'.

Note the difference between the name and the ordinary sound of letters. The names of a and o are ä and ō, while their usual sounds are ā and ô. It is to be regretted that when changing the names of consonants, the Academy did not alter the names of vowels which needed it infinitely more. With the a, the habit of calling it ä so misleads foreign pupils, and causes them to give that sound to the letter so habitually, that I often recommend to call it ā.

<sup>2</sup> French verbs, as for instance aller, déjeuner, faire, are translated in English by to go, to breakfast, to make, or sometimes (when preceded by certain other verbs) simply by go, breakfast, make, etc.

FRENCH.

1. Que voulez-vous faire?

Que voulez-vous faire faire?<sup>1</sup>

Que voulez-vous faire faire en arrivant?

2. Que voulez-vous faire porter?

Voulez-vous faire porter<sup>2</sup> vos sacs de voyage?

A la salle d'attente.

Ne<sup>3</sup> voulez-vous pas faire porter vos sacs de voyage?

Ne voulez-vous pas faire porter vos sacs de voyage à la salle d'attente?

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Faire is used idiomatically before any verb, with the meaning of causing the thing expressed by that verb to be made or done. Ex.: Faire faire = to-make or cause (somebody who is understood) to make or do; hence, anglice, to have the thing in question made or done. — So, faire porter = to-make (or cause) somebody to carry; hence, anglice, to have the thing in question carried.

<sup>3</sup> Ne is not to be (usually) translated into English, although it must always precede the verb in French, when the sentence is negative. Pas = not. See page 6, note 1.

PRONUNCIATION.	TRANSLATION.
1. Kǔ vōō-lā' vōō fair'?	What do you want to do?
— fair fair'?	What do you want to have done? <sup>1</sup>
— an nā-rē-van'?	What do you want to have done when we are there? <sup>2</sup>
2. — fair portā'?	What do you want to have carried? <sup>3</sup>
— vō sāk dǔ vò-à-yāzh'?	Do you want to have your traveling-bags <sup>4</sup> carried?
À lá sál dá-tan'-t'.*	To the waiting-room? <sup>5</sup>
Nǔ vōō-lā' vōō pā? . . . . vō sāk dǔ vò-à-yāzh'.	Do you not want to have your traveling-bags carried?
Nǔ vōō-lā' vōō pā.	Will you not have your traveling-bags carried to the waiting-room?

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> What will you make (or cause) to-make?<sup>2</sup> In (or on) arriving.<sup>3</sup> What will you make (or cause somebody) to carry?<sup>4</sup> Your sacs of travel.<sup>5</sup> At (or in) the room of waiting. REM. — Salle means a room for general use, such as a dining-room, ball-room, etc.* Consonants followed by an apostrophe (t', m', etc.) and representing the final French syllables (te, me, etc.) indicate that these, although not pronounced as full syllables, are to be articulated, — the learner giving a slight breathing quality to the consonant (t, m, etc.) For further explanation, see PRONUNCIATION.

3. Non; je ne<sup>1</sup> veux pas.

Non; je ne veux pas les faire porter.

Je peux.

Je peux très bien.

Je peux très bien les porter moi-même.<sup>2</sup>

4. Pourquoi ne voulez-vous pas les faire porter?

Parce que nous pouvons très bien les porter, nous-mêmes.

Jusqu'à la salle d'attente.

Parce que nous pouvons très bien les porter jusqu'à la salle d'attente.

5. Facteur! voulez-vous bien me<sup>3</sup> dire?

Voulez-vous bien me dire où est la salle d'attente?

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Ne, although etymologically the real negation, has become practically an adjunct, not to be (usually) translated into English. It is a sign or warning, so to speak, which must precede the verb every time some negation — whether not, nobody, nowhere, etc. — is going to be used after it. For further explanations, exceptions, etc., see page 494.

<sup>2</sup> The French express emphasis by the use of an additional word representing the subject much more frequently than the English. Thus, I . . . myself.

<sup>3</sup> Such words as me, le, la, lui, nous, vous, les, leur, meaning me (to-me), him, her, to-him (to-her), us (to-us), you (to-you), them, to-them, are placed before the verb in French.

3. Non; zhǔ nǚ vū pä'.

— lěh fair por-tā'.

Zhǔ pū'.

Zhǔ pū trěh bē-in'.*

— lěh por-tā' mō-à'

Zhūs-kà là sál'.

— là sál dà-tan'-t'.

Why will you not have them carried?Because we can just as well carry them (ourselves).<sup>3</sup>As far as<sup>4</sup> the waiting-room.Because we can just as well carry them as far as the waiting-room.5. Fák-tūr'! vōō-lā vōō bē-in' ** mǔ dēr'?

— ōō ěh . . . ?

Porter! will you please tell me<sup>5</sup>?Will you please tell me where the waiting-room is?<sup>6</sup>

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> I will (or wish) not.<sup>2</sup> I can very well them carry myself (me-even).<sup>3</sup> Because (parce que) we can very well them carry ourselves.<sup>4</sup> Until to (as far as).<sup>5</sup> Will you indeed to-me tell.<sup>6</sup> Where is the room of waiting?

* See page 5, note 6.

** In is equal to an in rank, this having the short, sharp quality given in Webster as ǎn. — The sign — when used in the pronunciation, indicates that the two vowels thus united are to be pronounced together very rapidly, as one diphthongal syllable.

Oui, Monsieur. Tout droit devant vous.

---

6. Où voulez-vous aller?

Où Monsieur veut-il aller?

Où votre ami veut-il aller?

Je veux aller.

Il veut aller.

Nous voulons aller à la salle d'attente.

Tout droit devant vous, Monsieur.

7. Où votre amie<sup>2</sup> veut-elle aller en arrivant?

Elle veut aller tout droit à l'<sup>3</sup>hôtel.

À quel hôtel veut-elle aller?

À l'Hôtel de l'Opéra.

---

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> The w used in the pronunciation should have the value of short oo; that is, not quite so broad a sound as it is usually given in English.

<sup>3</sup> Abbreviation of le (or la), the. The French word for the has four forms:

Le, used before masculine nouns in the singular; Ex.: le flacre.

La, " " feminine " " " " Ex.: la salle.

L', " " any noun (masculine or feminine), whenever it begins with a vowel or silent h; Ex.: l'ami, l'hôtel.

Les, used before all plural nouns; Ex.: les bagages.

N. B. — There is no neuter gender in French. Hence inanimate objects, like persons, can only be classified as masculine or feminine.

Wē mós-yû' *	Yes, sir, straight ahead. <sup>1</sup>
Tōō drò-à' d'-van' vōō'.	Yes, sir, straight before you.
<hr/>
6. Ōō vōō-lā' vōō zà-lā' ?	Where do you want to go ?
Ōō mós-yû' vû tēl à-lā'.	Where does the gentleman wish to go ? <sup>2</sup>
Ōō vò-trà-mē' vû-tēl à-lā'.	Where does your friend want to go ? <sup>3</sup>
Zhǔ vû zà-lā'.	I want to go.
Ēl vû tà-lā'.	He wants to go.
Nōō vōō-lon zà-lā à là sàl dà-tan'-t'.	We want to go to the waiting-room.
	Straight <sup>4</sup> before you, sir.
7. Ōō vò-trà-mē' vû tēl à-lā' an nà-rē'-van' ?	Where does your friend want to go when she arrives ? <sup>5</sup>
Ēl vû tà-lā' tōō drò-à' tà lō-tēl'.	She wants to go straight to the hotel.
À kēl ō-tēl' ?	To what hotel does she want to go ?
À lō-tēl' dǔ lò-pā-rà'.	To the Hotel de l'Opera.

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> All straight. — <sup>2</sup> Where mister wishes he to go?<sup>3</sup> Where your friend wishes he to go ?<sup>4</sup> All straight before you, mister.<sup>5</sup> Where your (lady) friend wishes she to go on arriving?* Although the word is rightly divided thus, mon-sieur, the sign given (mós-yû) will be found to guide the pupil most accurately in giving the pronunciation, especially guarding him against the general tendency to pronounce mô-shyû as if the word were spelt monshieur.** Let it be remembered that these tonic accents express only a slight emphasis on the final syllable (or penultimate; see PRONUNCIATION), and are intended especially to guard the pupil against accentuating any preceding syllable, as often done in English, and consequently slighting the last syllable of French words.

8. Où veut-il aller en partant ?

Il veut aller tout droit à<sup>2</sup> Venise.

Pourquoi ne veut-il pas aller avec nous ?

Pourquoi ne veut-il pas d'abord aller avec nous en Suisse ?<sup>3</sup>

9. Il voudrait bien.

Il voudrait bien d'abord aller en Suisse avec nous.

Mais il a des<sup>4</sup> affaires.

Mais il a des affaires en Italie.

Mais il a des affaires à Venise, à Florence, et à Rome.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Votre = your, before a noun in the singular. Vos = your, before a plural noun.

<sup>4</sup> Des, contraction of de les, of the; sometimes, as in this case, meaning some.

8. ŌŌ vû tēl à-lā' an pâr-tan'?

ŌŌ vò'-tr' bō-pair' vû-tēl

Le train omnibus (òm-nē-büs'),	The accommodation train.
Le wagon (vā-gon'),	The railway-carriage.
Le wagon-lit (vā-gon-lē'),	The sleeping-car.

<sup>1</sup> In Europe, travelers are not given a check, as here, but a paper receipt or bulletin, stating nature and weight of baggage.

<sup>3</sup> En is used before most names of countries. With a few countries (the names of which are masculine in French), au or aux is used. Thus: Au Pérou, Aux États-Unis.

The following vocabulary to be learned by heart.

VOCABULARY.

Les villes (lěh vėl'),

The cities.

LECTURE.<sup>1</sup>

UN ÉTRANGER À PARIS.

L'ÉTRANGER.* — Eh bien; par où commencerons-nous notre tournée?

LE COURRIER. — Commençons par l'Élysée, puisque nous l'avons en face?

L'E. — Cet hôtel<sup>2</sup> est magnifique. Qui donc y demeure?

LE C. — Il appartenait autrefois à la Marquise de Pompadour.

— En vérité!

— Oui; — Plus tard, Murat l'habita jusqu'à son départ pour Naples. Napoléon de même<sup>3</sup> à plusieurs reprises, notamment après Waterloo; il y signa sa deuxième abdication. Le duc de Berry y demeurerait quand<sup>3</sup> il fut assassiné. Louis Napoléon, l'occupa pendant trois ans. Enfin le chef du pouvoir exécutif, le maréchal Mac-Mahon y séjourna jusqu'au mois de février 1879. A l'heure où nous sommes, l'Élysée est la résidence de son successeur, M. Grévy.

READING.

A FOREIGNER IN PARIS.

THE STRANGER. — Well, (by)<sup>4</sup> where shall-we-begin our rounds?

THE COURIER. — (Let us)<sup>5</sup> commence by the Élysée, since we it have in front (of us).

THE ST. — That mansion is magnificent. Who then there lives?

THE C. — It belonged formerly to the Marquise de Pompadour.

— In truth!

— Yes. — Later<sup>6</sup> Murat it inhabited until his departure for Naples. Napoleon also at several intervals, notably after Waterloo. He in-it signed his second abdication. The duc de Berry in-it<sup>8</sup> lived when he was assassinated. Louis Napoleon occupied it during three years. Finally, the chief of-the executive (power), the Marshal MacMahon in-it sojourned until the month of February, 1879. At the hour where we are,<sup>9</sup> the Elysée is the residence of his successor, Mr. Grévy.

2. Où devons-nous aller en arrivant?

Nous devons aller à la salle d'attente.

NOTES.

<sup>3</sup> Dē-ěh'-p' (see pronunciation of the word on opposite page). As already stated, these isolated consonants (in the pronunciation), when apostrophized, indicate that the syllable is merely to be articulated, the consonant being given a slight breathing or vanishing quality.

7. Monsieur<sup>5</sup> veut-il<sup>6</sup> faire porter ses bagages à la voiture?

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Imperative of entrer, to go in. See opposite page, note 1.

<sup>2</sup> Il y a, word for word, = it there has; y a-t-il? word for word, = there has it? making no sense in English. These idiomatic expressions must be taken in their entire meaning respectively, there is, and is there?

<sup>3</sup> Elle a, she has; elles ont, they have, feminine.

<sup>4</sup> There being no neuter gender in French, il and elle also mean it.

<sup>5</sup> Avoid saying mô-shyû, but pronounce distinctly môs-yû', not allowing the s to run into yû with any sound of h whatever.

<sup>6</sup> As seen here, the French instead of having the verb precede the noun to ask a question, have the noun first and use a pronoun after the verb. Thus, Monsieur will he? instead of Will Monsieur?

5. An-tron' dan là sàl dók-trò-à'.	Let us go <sup>1</sup> into the examination-room.
A-vā' vōō kěl-kǔ shōz à dā-klà-rā'?	Have you anything <sup>2</sup> dutiable?

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> Enter (we). — <sup>2</sup> Something to declare.

<sup>5</sup> There (il) in-it is of the (i.e. some) lace. — <sup>6</sup> Subjected to, etc.

* The apostrophe, when found after a whole word (like mál'), or an undivided syllable (like yázh' in vó-à-yázh'), shows that there are really two syllables represented. The accented syllable is the one which precedes the final consonant l, zh, etc.; but the l, zh, etc. (representing the final and so-called mute syllable) is to be fully articulated, and not arrested as quickly as in ēl, for instance. See PRONUNCIATION.

† The t is inserted to avoid the coming together of a and l.

‡ A-t-elle? has she? ont-elles? have they? feminine.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Masculine form of a.

<sup>3</sup> The French have no word for do or did. Did you is (usually) rendered by have you? avez-vous?

<sup>4</sup> They have no adjective use of nouns in French. Instead of saying baggage-check, they have to say check of baggage.

<sup>5</sup> Imperative of vouloir, to will. Hence Will, or Be willing to.

<sup>6</sup> There is usually rendered by là. But when the place has already been named, y is used instead.

<sup>9</sup> How!

* Let it be remembered that all consonants in the pronunciation (except n) are to be pronounced just as in English. The n in ün has the hard nasal sound, but n in ün has all the elasticity of the English letter.

Mais oui. Je dois.

Je ne reste que huit jours<sup>1</sup> à Paris.

Je n'ai pas de temps à perdre.

Chez quelle couturière voudrait-elle la faire faire?

Chez Monsieur Worth.

Mais Monsieur Worth n'est pas une couturière.

---

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> The French say huit jours (eight days), or une semaine, for a week.

<sup>2</sup> The French have no such form as I am going, are you going, they can only say I go, go you.

<sup>3</sup> Du, compound of de (of) and le (the), which are never used together, but always compounded into du (of the).

<sup>4</sup> Des, compound of de (of) and les (the, plural), which are never used together, but always compounded into des (of the, plural).

<sup>5</sup> The French have no adjective use of nouns. Hence, they cannot say a silk dress, a gold ring; but are reduced to say a dress of silk, a ring of gold.

<sup>6</sup> The French have no auxiliary do. Hence they must employ the simple form of question instead. Does not your sister want is to be expressed by your sister wants she not, votre sœur ne veut-elle pas.

Měh wē'. Zhǔ dō-à'.	Why, yes. <sup>1</sup> I have to.
Zhǔn rēs'-t' kǔ ù-ē' zhōor' à Pà-rē'.	I only stay <sup>2</sup> a week in Paris.

The French often avoid, in ordinary conversation, the carrying over of the final s, x, or z of a word in the singular, as it gives too much the impression of the plural, of which these letters are the signs. In fact, they often avoid the carrying over of other consonants than these, wherever it might seem harsh or affected.

LECTURE.

JARDIN DU PALAIS-ROYAL.

— Eh bien, nous voici devant<sup>1</sup> le Palais-Royal.

— Quel est donc ce théâtre, à côté?

— C'est le Théâtre-Français, le théâtre classique de la France. — Mais entrons au Palais-Royal. Tenez,<sup>2</sup> nous voici dans la galerie d'Orléans.<sup>3</sup> C'est la plus belle des quatre qui entourent le jardin.

— Quelle est donc cette musique?

En été, il y a musique militaire, l'après-midi, dans le jardin du Palais-Royal.

— Voyez ces dames, assises ça et là. Elles sont en toilette, mais elles travaillent!

— Oui. Elles font quelque ouvrage de broderie ou de fine couture et écoutent la musique, pendant que leurs enfants jouent au cerceau, à la corde, aux billes, à la balle — que sais-je?

— Regardez cet enfant! Il court trop près du bassin. Il va tomber dans l'eau!

— Pas de danger. Tenez!<sup>2</sup> le voilà déjà près des statues.

— Et ces beaux magasins de bijouterie, sous les arcades, ces gens qui passent, tout ce va et vient! Quel spectacle animé!

For Self-Study, should be read by means of the literal translation, then without it, and when thoroughly understood, read aloud in French.

READING.<sup>1</sup>

GARDEN OF THE PALAIS-ROYAL.

— Well, we here-are before the Palais-Royal.

— What is (then) that theater, by (the) side (of it)?

— That is the Théâtre-Français, the classical theater of France. — But (let us) go-in<sup>2</sup> to-the Palais-Royal. See, we here-are in the gallery of Orleans. It is the most beautiful of the four which surround the garden.

— What is (then) that music?

— In (the) summer, there is military music, (in) the afternoon, in the garden of-the Palais-Royal.

— See those ladies, seated here and there. They are in toilet, but they are-working!

— Yes. They do some work of embroidery or fine sewing and listen (to) the music, while (that) their children play (to-the) hoop, (to-the) rope, (to-the) marbles, (to-the) ball — what (do) I know?<sup>3</sup>

— Look (at) that child. He is-running too near of-the basin. He is-going to-fall in the water!

— No danger. See! he there-is already near of-the statues.

— And those beautiful stores of jewelry under the arcades, those people who pass, all that going and coming!<sup>4</sup> What (an) animated spectacle!

<sup>3</sup> Angl.: I don't know what all. — <sup>4</sup> Strictly: that 'comes' and 'goes'.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> The French cannot say, The horses are going, having no progressive form. They can only say, The horses go.

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> The horses go to-take the bit in-the teeth. — <sup>2</sup> Tell to-the.

<sup>8</sup> I cannot go in-rear without to-have ill (-ness) at-the heart.

<sup>9</sup> I have fear that you, you may-take, etc. Notice the emphasis expressed in French by the repetition of the word vous, instead of strongly accenting it as in English.

<sup>10</sup> Let us go then! An exclamation answering to, Well, now, the idea! etc.

* Let it be remembered that, in this pronunciation, final syllables followed by the apostrophe are not to be pronounced as full syllables, but to be given only the breathing quality of the consonant.

“ “ “ en Californie, <sup>3</sup>	“ “ “ “ to California.

First Cardinal Rule.<sup>1</sup>

THE PARTITIVE ARTICLE.

---

N. B.—The following rule, condensed as it is here, yet fully comprehensive of a cardinal principle in the language, should be completely mastered by the learner.

I.

Du, de la, de l', or des,

SOME* or ANY.

---

In French, some or any must<sup>2</sup> be expressed, and is rendered by du, de la, de l', or des;

EXCEPT IN THREE CASES, when it is rendered simply by de (or d'). These are:

1. Before an adjective;
  2. After an adverb (of quantity);
  3. After a negation.

<sup>1</sup> In all, five rules, which I consider as "Cardinal" and almost indispensable, will be given through the text, in a prominent way.

<sup>2</sup> In English, we often can say indifferently I have some bread, or I have bread; Have you bread? or Have you any bread? The French must say, I have some bread; Have you any bread?

EXAMPLES.

STRAIGHT CASE.

Bring me wine ( or some wine),	Apportez-moi du vin.
Have you beer ( or any beer)?	Avez-vous de la bière?
He always drinks water,	Il boit toujours de l' eau.
Send him liquors,	Envoyez-lui des liqueurs.

EXCEPTIONAL CASES.

1. Before an Adjective.

Has he good ( or any good) wine?	A-t-il de bon vin?
Here is good beer,	Voici de bonne bière.
Drink good water, etc.,	Buvez de bonne eau.

2. After an Adverb.<sup>1</sup>

Have you wine enough?	Avez-vous assez de vin?
Bring more beer,	Apportez plus de bière.
You order too many liquors,	Vous commandez trop de liqueurs.

3. After a Negation.<sup>2</sup>

I do not sell wine,	Je ne bois pas de vin.
He has not brought any water yet,	Il n'a pas encore apporté d' eau.
I never drink liquors.	Je ne bois jamais de liqueurs.

<sup>2</sup> When a negative question is asked in the absolute expectation of an affirmative answer, du, etc., are used. But this is very rare.

The following vocabulary is to be learned by heart.

BOISSONS.<sup>3</sup>

De l'eau * fraîche (dũ lō frěsh'),	Cool or fresh water.
De l'eau de Seltz (d'sěltz'),	Seltzer water.
De l'eau rougie (rōōzhē'),	Wine and water.
De l'eau froide (frō-ād'),	Cold water.
De l'eau tiède (tē-ěd'),	Tepid water.
De l'eau chaude (shōd'),	Warm ( or hot) water.
De l'eau glacée (glā-sā'),	Ice-water.
Une carafe frappée <sup>1</sup> (kā-ráf frā-pā'),	A decanter of ice-water.

Du vin blanc (dũ vin blan'),	White wine.
Du vin rouge (rōōzh'),	Red wine.
Du vin de Bordeaux (d'bor-dō'),	Claret.
Du vin de Bourgogne (d'bōōr-gó'-ñũ),	Burgundy.
Une bouteille de (ũn bōō-těh'-yũ dũ),	A bottle of.

De l'eau de vie<sup>2</sup> (dũ lō d'vē'),	Brandy.
Un verre d'eau sucrée (vēr dō sũ-krā'),	A glass of sugar-water.
Un verre de limonade (lē-mó-nád'),	A glass of lemonade.

<sup>3</sup> Bô-ā-son', beverages.

To be learned by heart and repeated aloud, as a real conversation, whether for self-study or preparation for the class.

LECTURE.

LES TUILERIES ET LES CHAMPS-ÉLYSÉES.*

— En sommes-nous bien éloignés?

— C'est à deux pas. Nous y voici.

— Quelle foule! Quelle véritable fourmilière! Et quel air de gaieté sur toutes ces physionomies!

— Cela vous étonne?

— Oui. Ne pourrions-nous pas sortir de cette cohue? C'est à donner le vertige!

— Eh bien! suivons<sup>2</sup> la grande allée du jardin; elle nous conduira aux Champs-Élysées. Là, vous pourrez respirer plus à l'aise.

— Je ne demande pas mieux. — Quoi! Est-ce là les Champs-Élysées? Cette promenade est magnifique. Qui donc habite ces élégantes villas?

— Cela se demande-t-il? — des Anglais et des Russes.

— Sommes-nous encore loin du Champ de Mars?†

— Non. Ce n'est pas très loin.

<sup>2</sup> Suivons, follow (we), angl., let us follow. Allons, go (we), angl., let us go. The we is really not expressed except by the termination ons, which belongs to the first person plural.

* Tū-ēl-rē', tile-kilns. The palace is so-called because built on the site of ancient tile-factories. — Lěh Shan-zā-lě-zā', the Elysian Fields.

† Shan d' Mārs', Field of Mars; an extensive ground between the Military School and the Seine, where drills and reviews are given.

For Self-Study, the French text should be read by means of the literal translation until thoroughly mastered, then read aloud in French.

READING.

THE TUILERIES, AND CHAMPS-ÉLYSÉES.

— (Let us)<sup>1</sup> leave this garden and go and see that<sup>2</sup> of-the Tuileries.

— Of-it are we well<sup>3</sup> distant?

— It is at<sup>4</sup> two steps. Us in-it see-here.<sup>5</sup>

— What (a) crowd! What veritable ant-hill! And what (an) air of gayety on all these physiognomies!

— That you astonishes?

— Yes. Could we not go-out of this fearful-crowd! That is (enough) to give (one) the vertigo!

— Well, then! (let us) follow the great avenue<sup>6</sup> of-the garden; it us will-conduct to-the Champs-Élysées. There you will-be-able to-breathe more at (the)* ease.

— I ask no better. — What! Is it there the Champs-Élysées? That avenue is magnificent. Who (then) inhabits these elegant villas?

— That itself asks it?<sup>7</sup> Englishmen and Russians.<sup>8</sup>

— Are we still far from-the Champ de Mars?

— No. It is not very far.

— Very well. Go-we there.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> An abbreviated form of cela, that.

<sup>2</sup> Adjectives of nationality do not take a capital letter in French, unless used as a noun. C'est français, It is French; C'est un Français, He is a Frenchman.

<sup>3</sup> In conversation the simple past form I said is very rarely used; but I have said, instead.

<sup>4</sup> From valoir, to be worth. Thus, when speaking of the advisability of doing a thing, the French say: It is-worth better, instead of: It is better.

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> Where go-we? The French have no progressive or emphatic form. They can neither say, we are going, nor we do go, but only, we go, nous allons. — <sup>2</sup> Like that.

<sup>3</sup> I you have not understood. The French, having no form similar to the auxiliary do, or its past tense did, use have instead of this last.

<sup>5</sup> I said that —. That can never be omitted in French.

<sup>6</sup> I would-like rather to-breakfast in. — <sup>7</sup> Well! and the baggages.

3. Concierge, nous avez-vous retenu des chambres?

Oui, monsieur. Mais elles ne sont pas encore tout-à-fait prêtes.

Nous avons dû<sup>1</sup> faire mettre de<sup>2</sup> nouveaux tapis.

Elles seront<sup>3</sup> prêtes dans une demi-heure d'ici.

Si ces messieurs et dames voulaient<sup>4</sup> bien déjeuner, tout d'abord?

Très bien. Veuillez nous dire où est la salle à manger.

Tout droit devant vous; de l'autre côté de la cour.

Je voudrais une tasse de café, des<sup>1</sup> petits pains et un œuf à la coque.

Ne voudriez-vous<sup>2</sup> pas des huîtres, tout d'abord ?

Des huîtres avec un verre de vieux Chablis ?

Pardon, je ne bois jamais de vin.

Ma santé ne me permet pas.<sup>3</sup>

Mon médecin ne me permet pas.

Alors, garçon, ne nous apportez qu'une demi-bouteille de vin.

LECTURE.

LA COLONNE VENDÔME.—LES BOULEVARDS.—
LES THÉÂTRES,—LE GRAND OPÉRA.

—Maintenant, retournons aux boulevards. Cocher, êtes-vous pris?<sup>1</sup> Non? Eh bien! Boulevard de la Madeleine. À la course.

—Tenez, nous y voici déjà. Descendons de voiture. Voici deux francs, cocher; un franc cinquante, pour la course, et dix sous de pourboire.

—Maintenant, mon cher,<sup>2</sup> voyez des<sup>3</sup> deux côtés ces somptueux magasins, ces hôtels magnifiques, ces cafés où l'or et les glaces étincellent.

—Quelle est cette superbe rue que nous laissons à<sup>4</sup> droite?

—C'est la rue de la Paix. Napoléon I<sup>er</sup> la fit percer sur l'emplacement d'un couvent des Capucines. Voyez-vous là-bas la colonne Vendôme?

—Oui. C'est un bien beau monument.

—Pensez qu'il a été fait de 1200 canons pris sur les alliés dans la guerre d'Allemagne de 1805, qui dura trois mois.

—Mais où vont ces énormes voitures remplies de châssis, qui roulent sur le boulevard?

For Self-Study, should be read by means of the translation, then without it, and when thoroughly understood, read aloud in French.

READING.

THE VENDOME COLUMN.—THE BOULEVARDS.—
THE THEATRES.—THE GRAND OPÉRA.

—Now, let-us-return to-the Boulevards. Cab, are you engaged? No? Well-then, Boulevard de la Madeleine. By the mile.<sup>1</sup>

—See, we are there already. Let-us-get-down from carriage. Here are two francs, cab; one franc fifty,<sup>2</sup> for the mile, and ten cents of tip.

—Now, my friend, see on-the two sides those sumptuous stores, those magnificent hotels, these cafés where (the) gold and (the) fine large-mirrors are sparkling.

—What is this superb street which we leave on (our) right?

—That is the rue de la Paix. Napoleon I. it had cut-through on the site of a Capucine convent. Do you see yonder the Vendome Column?

—It is a very beautiful monument.

—Think that it has been made of 1200 cannons taken from the Allies in the War of Germany<sup>3</sup> of 1805, which lasted three months.

—But where go these enormous wagons filled with canvas-frames, rolling along on the Boulevards?

<sup>2</sup> One franc and fifty centimes; one franc being nearly equal to twenty cents, and fifty centimes to ten cents, or sous.

—De quel Opéra voulez-vous parler, Monsieur? Du Théâtre Italien?

—Pardon, Monsieur, du Grand Opéra. Tenez,<sup>2</sup> le voilà devant nous.

—Quel bel édifice! Que c'est grandiose! Et puis, ces boulevards de deux côtés, et cette grande avenue qui va de l'Opéra jusqu'au Louvre! Tout cela est magnifique! Mais quel est ce petit bâtiment, plus loin, à droite.

—Sur le Boulevard Montmartre? Ce sont les Variétés.

—Et qu'est-ce<sup>3</sup> qu'on y joue?

—Le vaudeville<sup>4</sup> la féerie, et les revues.<sup>5</sup>

—Un peu plus loin, à gauche, sur le Boulevard Bonne-Nouvelle s'élève le Gymnase. C'est sur ce théâtre que Scribe a brillé pendant trente ans, que Dumas fils et Victorien Sardou ont compté, de nos jours, leurs plus beaux succès.

—Et tous ces attroupés, de loin en loin?

—Sur le Boulevard Saint-Martin? Ce sont les queues du théâtre de la Porte-Saint-Martin,<sup>6</sup> de l'Ambigu-Comique, et des Folies-Dramatiques.

—Mais voici l'heure de mon rendez-vous au club. Je vous quitte. Au revoir.

<sup>3</sup> (Ce and C') may be rendered either by this, that or it.

— They transfer the sceneries which serve for the representations of the Opera.

— Of what Opera wish you to speak, sir? Of the “Théâtre Italien?”<sup>1</sup>

— (I beg your) pardon, sir, of the Grand Opera. See, there it is before us.

— What beautiful edifice! How it is grand! And then, these Boulevards on two sides, and this great avenue which goes from the Opera until the Louvre! All that is magnificent! But what is that little building, farther, on the right?

— On the Boulevard Montmartre? That<sup>2</sup> are the VARIÉTÉS.

— And what is it that one plays there?

— The vaudeville, fairy pieces, and actuality plays.

— A little farther on (the) left, on the Bonne-Nouvelle Boulevard, rises the GYMNASÉ. It is on this theater that Scribe (has) shone during 30 years, that Dumas fils<sup>3</sup> and Victorien Sardou counted, in our days, their most beautiful successes.

— And those trooping-together from far to far.<sup>4</sup>

— On the Saint-Martin Boulevard? That are the files<sup>5</sup> of the Porte-Saint-Martin Theatre, of the AMBIGU COMIQUE, and of the FOLIES-DRAMATIQUES.

— But here is the time of my appointment at the club. I you leave. Good-by.

— To to-morrow.<sup>6</sup>

<sup>2</sup> Anglice, those are. In this French expression, Ce (lit.: this or that) remains singular, while the verb is in the third person plural. C'est nous, c'est vous = It is we, you; Ce sont eux = It is they.

These letter endings should be learned by heart, and written from <sup>1</sup> Let the pupil remember that these accents, while giving the true tonic quality of French words, do not amount in strength to English accentuation, but denote, first, that no other syllable is to be at all accented, and, secondly, that but the slightest emphasis is to be laid upon the accented syllable.

<sup>2</sup> Let it be remembered that these apostrophes denote the vanishing quality of the French (so-called) mute e.

II.

HOTEL AND BOARDING-HOUSE.

They have given us rooms on the third story; but there is an elevator. And you? — We are on the “entresol,” and we have three rooms facing on the Tuileries.

LITERAL TRANSLATION.

One<sup>1</sup> to-us has given some rooms at-the third story; but there is an elevator. And you? — We, we<sup>2</sup> are lodged at the entresol and we have three rooms which give on the garden of the Tuileries.

<sup>1</sup> On = one, people (also they, and even we and you, when taken in a general sense). The French are also fond of using on with the active form, instead of the passive form in English — especially when referring to anything habitual. Thus: the baggage is examined here = on visite les bagages ici. Lit.: One visits (or they visit) the baggage here.

A l'hôtel où nous sommes<sup>1</sup> descendus<sup>2</sup> à Londres, on nous a donné des chambres au premier étage.<sup>3</sup>

Concierger, à quel étage pourriez-vous nous loger?

A quel étage pourriez-vous nous donner trois chambres?

Je ne peux pas vous dire.

Je dois appeler le maître de l'hôtel.

Le maître d'hôtel?

Pardon. Le maître de l'hôtel.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Descendre, to go or get hence, down; to stop (at a hotel, house, etc.). Nous sommes descendus, lit.: we are (i. e. we have) stopped. Descendre is one of the 12 neuter verbs which are conjugated with the auxiliary être. Nous sommes descendus, lit.: we are descended.

<sup>3</sup> Or simply, au premier.

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> At the first story.

the proprietor.

that the vowels so joined are to be pronounced rapidly together, as adiphthong.

2. Bonjour, Monsieur. — Vous voudriez des chambres?

Combien de<sup>1</sup> chambres voudriez-vous?

Nous voudrions quatre chambres.

Quatre chambres à coucher?

Non, Monsieur. Ne pourriez-vous pas nous donner un salon, deux chambres à coucher contiguës,<sup>2</sup> avec un cabinet de toilette?

Ne pourriez-vous pas nous donner des chambres plus bas?

Mais, sans doute. Seulement, je ne pourrais pas vous donner plus de trois chambres.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> In European hotels and houses, the second story often answers to our fourth. The first or ground floor is the rez-de-chaussée; the second is the entresol; the next or third is called le premier; the next or fourth is called le deuxième, etc. This often gives rise to disappointments and, sometimes, no little indignation on the part of tourists, who, when having made arrangements by letter or telegraph to have rooms on the first floor, find themselves taken up to the third story by the nevertheless innocent host.

imperative affirmative, that is when we give a positive (i. e., the verb, just as in English. Thus :

VERB. PRON.

1. Parlez-lui.

2. Envoyez-nous.

negative (that is, when a negative command is given), the rule. Thus :

1. To her speak not. — Ne lui parlez pas.

2. Us send not. — Ne nous envoyez pas.

4. ŌŌ pōō-rē-ā'-vōō nōō	Where could you give us

7. Quand Monsieur voudrait-il dîner ?

Avez-vous une table d'hôte à l'hôtel ?

Oui, Monsieur. Nous tenons table d'hôte.

Le premier déjeuner entre sept heures et neuf heures du matin.

Le déjeuner à la fourchette<sup>2</sup> entre onze heures du matin et une heure de l'après-midi.

Le dîner à six heures (du soir).

Et le prix ?

C'est dix francs par personne.

Mais nous avons deux enfants.

Doivent-ils payer autant que les grandes personnes ?

Les enfants ne paient que<sup>3</sup> moitié prix.

Très bien ; nous dînerons<sup>4</sup> à la table d'hôte à six heures.

LECTURE.

LA MONNAIE.—L'INSTITUT.—LE CORPS LÉGISLATIF.—LE SÉNAT.—LES THERMES.

—Voyez-vous ce magnifique édifice, parallèle à la Seine, là-bas, sur le quai Conti?

—Parfaitement.

—C'est l'Hôtel de la Monnaie.<sup>1</sup>—Plus loin, mais toujours sur le quai Conti, ce bâtiment à forme sphérique que vous apercevez, c'est le Palais de l'Institut ou Palais Mazarin, fondé en 1661, d'après le testament du cardinal<sup>2</sup> de ce nom, et où se tiennent les séances solennelles des cinq académies.<sup>3</sup>

—Ah! d'ici vous pouvez voir, sur le quai d'Orsay, juste à la jonction des Tuileries et des Champs-Élysées, cette colonnade surmontée d'un fronton. C'est là que, jusqu'en 1871, les représentants de la nation tenaient leurs séances.

—Ah! j'y suis—le Palais Bourbon.

—Il s'est nommé plus tard Palais du Corps-Législatif. A l'heure qu'il est, il a repris son ancien nom et il est occupé par le président de la chambre,<sup>4</sup> M. Gambetta.

<sup>3</sup> The Académie Française, and the four academies of Belles-Lettres, Sciences, Fine-Arts, and Moral and Political Sciences.

For self-study, to be read by means of literal translation, then without it. See also Directions before Part I.

READING.

THE MINT.—THE "INSTITUT."—THE LEGISLATIVE BODY.—THE SENATE.—THE THERMES.

—See-you that magnificent edifice parallel to-the Seine, yonder,<sup>1</sup> on the quay Conti?

—Perfectly.

—That is the Mansion-of-the Money. — Farther, but always<sup>2</sup> on the quay Conti, that building of<sup>3</sup> spherical form which you perceive, (that) is the Palace of the Institute or Palace Mazarin founded in 1661, according<sup>4</sup> to the will of the cardinal of that name, and where are held<sup>5</sup> the solemn sessions of the five academies.

—Ah! From here you can see, on the quay d'Orsay, exactly at the Junction of the Tuileries and the Champs-Élysées, that colonnade surmounted by a pediment. It is there that, until 1871, the representatives of the nation held their sessions.

—Ah! I about-it am<sup>6</sup>—(it is) the Palace Bourbon.

—It itself has named later the Palace of-the Legislative body. At present, it has retaken its ancient name and it is occupied by the chairman of the House, Mr. Gambetta.

<sup>6</sup> J'y suis, anglice, I see (or I understand). — Vous y êtes, you have it, you have caught the idea.

— Et où se réunissaient les sénateurs sous le second empire ?

— Dans le palais du Luxembourg, devenu Palais du sénat. Ce palais a été occupé tour à tour par Marie de Médicis, la duchesse de Montpensier et Louis XVIII. Depuis lors, il a servi successivement de maison d'arrêt<sup>1</sup> sous la République, de palais pour le sénat royaliste, puis pour la chambre des pairs ;<sup>2</sup> enfin c'est là que siégeaient les nouveaux sénateurs créés par Napoléon III. — Mais donnons un coup d'œil,<sup>3</sup> en passant, aux ruines du palais des Thermes, bâti par l'empereur Julien.

— Comment ! Paris aurait aussi son Herculanium ?<sup>4</sup>

— Parfaitement. Nous irons voir tout cela demain. Je veux vous montrer aussi, dans le même quartier, l'hôtel de Cluny, bâti sur une partie de ces ruines, et qui renferme une magnifique collection d'objets d'art. Le mélange d'architecture qu'on y remarque, tient aux<sup>5</sup> variations du goût et au grand nombre des maîtres qui y ont travaillé. Mais je vous en parlerai davantage quand nous irons le visiter.

— And where themselves assembled the senators under the Second Empire.

— In the Palace of the Luxemburg, (which had) become Palace of the Senate. That palace was occupied, turn by turn, by Mary of Medicis, the duchess of Montpensier and Louis XVIII. Since then it has served successively as (a) house of arrest under the Republic, as (a) palace of the royalist senate, then for the Chamber of Pairs; finally, it is there that sat the new senators created by Napoleon III. — But (let us) give a glance (of eye), in passing, to the ruins of the palace of Thermes, built by the emperor Julian.

— What!<sup>5</sup> Paris would-have also its Herculaneum?

— Exactly. We will go (and) see all that to-morrow. I want to show you also in the same quarter (of the city), the Hôtel Cluny, built upon a part of those ruins, and which contains a magnificent collection of objects of art. The mixture of (styles of) architectures, which one therein remarks, comes from the<sup>6</sup> variations of the taste, and from the great number of the masters who to-it have worked. But I to-you about-it will-speak more when we will-go it to-visit.

<sup>5</sup> Lit. : How ? Quoi ; lit. : What ! is not considered polite in French, and is used only when much astonishment or indignation is felt.

<sup>6</sup> Lit. : Holds to-the — .

Vous êtes bien heureux.

Chez moi, il n'y a pas d'ascenseur.

A votre place, je ne voudrais pas rester dans un hôtel comme celui-là.

Je vous conseille d'<sup>1</sup>aller dans une pension.

C'est plus comme chez soi.

C'est vrai, et l'on entend beaucoup plus parler français.

Il y a une bonne pension au coin de la rue.

2. Est-ce une pension française? <sup>2</sup>

Sans doute.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> The use of prepositions "before" verbs always seems a perplexing one to the learner. In point of fact, it is the verb preceding the preposition which regulates its use and not the one following it. Thus we say, je voudrais aller (no preposition); je vous conseille d'aller (prep. de); je vous invite à aller (prep. à); all before the same verb, but after different ones. Thus, some verbs require no preposition after them, others require de, others à, etc. Tables of these verbs will be found on pages 502-3. But it is not practicable to memorize them. In fact, the ear is the best guide, and after all an easy one. But of the 30 verbs which require no preposition after them, the most important are: aller, pouvoir, vouloir, savoir, faire, and (usually) venir. It will be well to memorize these. — <sup>2</sup> Français, masc.: française, fem.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> After parler, the article is (usually) omitted from before (adjective) names of languages, such as français, anglais, etc.; but it is used, if an adverb (bien, mal, etc.) is present. After all other verbs it is always used.

<sup>2</sup> Est-ce que vous prenez? instead of prenez-vous. This form of question with est-ce que is frequently used with the first person singular of the indicative present, and also occasionally with other persons and tenses. Here it sounds less abrupt than to say, Prenez-vous?

<sup>3</sup> Montrez-moi. After the imperative affirmative moi is used instead of me. Veillez me montrer; ne me montrez pas; montrez-moi.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Another form of question is used for the first person of the Present Indicative generally which answers somewhat to the use of do in English. This is Est-ce que; lit.: Is it that? The French say: Est-ce que je parle? Do I speak? (Is it that I speak.) Est-ce que is sometimes used with the other persons and tenses also, either to give greater emphasis, or to vary the form of expression. Thus, Do you speak? = Parlez-vous? or more rarely, Est-ce que vous parlez? Shall we go? = Irons-nous? or more rarely, Est-ce que nous irons?

as the above. Having neither emphatic nor progressive forms, ing? but only Speak you? Parlez-vous? They cannot say, Did spoken? Avons-nous écrit; Avez-vous parlé?<sup>1</sup> in the introduction of the negatives pas, jamais, personne, proves perplexing, especially when pronoun-objects are present.

here given :

these verbal forms, let the learner every time he is to utter a the French form, but by means of English words.

---

NOTES.

<sup>2</sup> As already seen, I treat ne (although etymologically the real nega-tion) as an adjunct or general sign of negation, — the real negations of modern French practically being: pas, jamais, personne, rien, etc.
This simplifies French construction very much, as these negations generally occupy the same place in French as they do in English in equivalent forms. It also will guard the learner against the almost universal habit of putting in pas everywhere, even where rien, jamais, personne, or other negations occur. As if pas was not simply one of those, to be used exactly like, but never with them.

Thus, if he has to say:

1. We are speaking too fast.
2. You do wind it.
3. They were walking together.
4. We are not speaking to you.
5. We do not speak to her.
6. They were not writing to-us.

Or,

7. Do you wind it?
8. Are the ladies speaking too fast?
9. Do we not speak to her?
10. Was not your brother writing to us?
11. Did she not bring it?
12. Didn't the laundress bring it?

And then, he will say without difficulty,

1. Nous parlons trop vite.
2. Vous la remontez.
3. Ils marchaient ensemble.
4. Nous ne vous parlons pas.
5. Nous ne lui parlons pas.
6. Ils ne vous écrivaient pas.

---

10. Est-ce que vous avez sonné?

Est-ce que Madame a sonné?

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> This transposition of English sentences into their French equivalents, though by means of English words, I recommend in the case of the forms above treated, when the learner is not clear about what he is going to utter. Wherever he can utter the foreign phrase at first hand and as a matter of absolute oral memory, he is to do it. Indeed, he should diligently cultivate this independence of translation, as it is the true basis both of correct and fluent speech. But, with the forms change it into {

1. We speak too fast.
2. You it wind.
3. They walked together.
4. We to-you speak not.
5. We to-her speak not.
6. They to-us wrote not.

change it into {

7. It wind you?
8. The ladies speak-they too fast?
9. To-her speak we not?
10. Your brother to-us wrote he not?
11. It has she not brought?
12. The laundress it has she not brought?

and with entire correctness:

7. La remontez-vous?
8. Les dames parlent-elles trop vite?

in question, unless he sees his sentence stand clearly before the mind's eye he is strongly advised to follow the mental process just explained. He will find that, in a surprisingly short space of time, it will impart to him a firm and intuitive knowledge of these peculiar French forms, especially in their connection with pronoun-objects, and enable him to use them with an ease and correctness seldom attained otherwise.

<sup>2</sup> Is it that you have rung? — <sup>3</sup> Is it that Madam has rung?

Oui. Jeanne ne m'a pas nettoyé mes bottines.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> The French have no possessive case, and cannot say: My brother's shoes, my son's clothes; but must say: The shoes of my brother, the clothes of my son. Neither can they say, my brother's, but that (or those) of my brother=celui (or ceux) de mon frère.

<sup>2</sup> To have them do it, — le leur faire faire. Keep clear the distinction between to have in the sense of causing a thing to be done, which is faire, and to have in the sense of having done (seen, written, sent, etc.) anything, which is rendered by avoir.

Zhän . . . . nĕh-tó-á-yā mĕh bó-tĕn'.	Yes. Jane has not cleaned <sup>1</sup> my shoes.
ŌŌ-blē-ād sē-rā lĕh sōō- lē-ād mōn frair', ād bró-sā.	And John has forgotten to black my brother's shoes and to brush my son's clothes. <sup>2</sup>
Pōōr-tan'.	Yet, I had told them to do it. <sup>3</sup>
Vũ-yā m'lĕh . . . . tōōd sü-ēt'.	But give them to me. <sup>4</sup> I am going to have them do it at once. <sup>5</sup>
Sĕh zá-bē', ō plü vĕt'.	John, black these boots and brush these clothes, as quick as you can. <sup>6</sup>
Zhän'.	Jane, clean these shoes. <sup>7</sup>

LECTURE.

LE PANTHÉON, L'OBSERVATOIRE, LA SORBONNE, ETC.

— Eh bien, maintenant que nous avons vu les superbes collections et reliques des temps passés que contient le Musée de Cluny, allons visiter le Panthéon.

— Quel est ce dôme, là-bas, sur la hauteur?

— C'est cela même.<sup>1</sup> Vous savez qui a fondé cet édifice.

— Ma foi, non.

— Eh bien, c'est Clovis, qui le nomma Sainte-Geneviève. Louis XV., le voyant tomber en ruines, le releva et lui fit donner le nom de Panthéon.

— Quelle est la hauteur du Panthéon?

— Deux cent cinquante pieds. Le portique est formé de vingt-deux colonnes et il supporte un fronton qui contient un chef-d'œuvre du sculpteur David.

— Maintenant, nous allons descendre dans les souterrains.<sup>2</sup> Vous y entendrez un écho très remarquable et vous verrez les tombeaux de Voltaire et de Rousseau.

<sup>1</sup> Même = same, or even, or very. Here, by adding the word thing, it is best translated by very.

For Self-Study, the French text should be read by means of the literal translation until thoroughly mastered, then read aloud in French.

READING.

THE PANTHEON, THE OBSERVATORY, THE "SORBONNE," ETC.

— Well, now that we have seen the superb collections and relics of the times past which contains<sup>1</sup> the Museum of Cluny, (let us) go (and) visit the Pantheon.

— What is that dome, yonder, on the height?

— It is that same.<sup>2</sup> You know who (has) founded that edifice.

— My faith, no.

— Well, it is Clovis, who called it Sainte-Geneviève. Louis XV., it seeing fall in ruins, it raised-again and to-it made to-give the name of Pantheon.

— What is the height of the Pantheon?

— Two hundred (and) fifty feet. The portico is formed of twenty-two columns, and it supports a pediment which contains a masterpiece of the sculptor David.

— Now, we are-going to-go-down into the vaults. You there will hear an echo very remarkable and you will see the tombs of Voltaire and of Rousseau.

— Je vous prierai de me dire ce que<sup>1</sup> c'est que j'aperçois là-haut, sous la voûte du dôme. On dirait des peintures à fresque.<sup>2</sup>

— Vous ne vous trompez pas. C'est l'apothéose de Sainte-Geneviève, patronne de l'église.

— Tout cela est bien beau. Mais, est-ce que nous aurons le temps d'aller voir l'Observatoire?

— Sans doute. — Vous savez que je connaissais l'ancien directeur?

— Qui voulez-vous dire? le célèbre astronome Le Verrier, qui est mort en 1877?

— Non, son prédécesseur, le fameux Arago. Mais partons. Comme nous sommes en plein Quartier Latin, je vous ferai voir en route, la Sorbonne<sup>3</sup> et l'École de Médecine.

Good morning, gentlemen. What do you wish?<sup>6</sup>

You have apartments to let?

Yes, sir. Would you want them furnished or unfurnished?

I should like to furnish my rooms.<sup>7</sup>

Well, I could rent you an unfurnished apartment on the second story.

That's a little high (up). But I think it would do.<sup>8</sup>

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> Take the third to left and then follow all straight. It is the fifth to right. — <sup>2</sup> That placard. — <sup>3</sup> What is there upon ?

<sup>4</sup> Voyons, Let us see. Is also used for, Let me see.

<sup>5</sup> It's exactly our affair. — <sup>6</sup> What is there for your service?

Comment, vous parlez anglais?

Non, Monsieur. Je ne le parle pas à présent.

Autrefois, je le parlais<sup>2</sup> un peu.

Pardon, Monsieur. Il y a d'abord le rez-de-chaussée, puis le premier,<sup>3</sup> et enfin le second, où nous sommes à présent.

Me voila tout essoufflé!<sup>4</sup>

Nous y voilà, Messieurs.

Ah! voilà l'appartement? Il ne me convient pas très bien.

Je voudrais quelque chose de<sup>5</sup> plus petit et de moins cher à garnir.

Eh bien, voudriez-vous monter encore un étage?<sup>6</sup>

Encore un étage! Ma foi, je ne sais<sup>1</sup> trop. L'appartement est-il plus petit?

Oui, Monsieur, plus petit et moins cher.

Eh bien, faites-moi<sup>2</sup> voir cela.

Très bien, Monsieur; montons.

5. Il fait bien sombre dans cet escalier.

Tenez-vous à la rampe.

Pardon. Je ne vous comprends pas.

Tenez-vous à la balustrade.

Ah! cela s'appelle<sup>3</sup> aussi une rampe?

Oui, Monsieur. Mais voici l'appartement.

Vous voyez que le salon donne sur la rue, tandis que les chambres à coucher et la cuisine donnent sur la cour.

Je choisirais<sup>4</sup> bien celui-ci,<sup>5</sup> mais il me semble à peine assez grand.

Pourquoi ne choisiriez-vous pas celui du troisième?

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> With pouvoir, to be able, savoir, to know (also oser, to dare, cesser, to cease), pas is sometimes omitted, but may always be used. If omitted, the negative is not (usually) so strong.

Hold on<sup>4</sup> to the banisters.

I beg pardon. I don't understand you.

Hold on to the banisters.

Ah! You also call<sup>5</sup> that a rampe?

Yes, sir. But, here is the apartment.

You see the parlor windows open<sup>6</sup> on the street, while<sup>7</sup> the sleeping-rooms and kitchen are facing the yard.

I would decide for<sup>8</sup> this one; but it scarcely seems to me (to be) large enough.

Why would you not take the one on<sup>9</sup> the third floor?

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> I know not.

<sup>3</sup> It makes very dark on these stairs. Il fait is used impersonally for it is, in expressions of weather, temperature, or light.

<sup>2</sup> Six and dix are pronounced sēs and dēs, when alone, sēz and dēz when before a vowel (or silent h), and sē and dē before a consonant (or h aspirate). Six assiettes, six heures = sē-zā-sē-ēt', sē-zŭr'. Six minutes = sē mē-nüt'.

<sup>3</sup> Sept, huit, and neuf before a consonant are generally pronounced sēh, ü-ē, nŭ. Thus, Sept jours = sēh zhōor, etc.

Quatre-vingts, 80	Un milliard, mē-lē-ār' , a billion.
Quatre-vingt-un, <sup>8</sup> 81

<sup>4</sup> Kā-ran-tā-un'; Sin-kan-tā-un', Sò-à-san-tā-un'. The t of the conjunction et is never carried forward.

<sup>5</sup> Sò-à-sant-dēs; Sò-à-san-tā-onz'; sò-à-sant-dōōz'; . . . . Kā-trũ-vin'; Kā-trũ-vin-un'; Kā-trũ-vin onz'.

<sup>6</sup> As will have been observed, the French count from 60 to 100 in two series of twenty each, instead of four series of ten. Thus they say, sixty-nine, sixty-ten, sixty-eleven, sixty-twelve . . . sixty-nineteen, eighty; and, eighty-nine, eighty-ten, eighty-eleven . . . eighty-nineteen, hundred.

<sup>8</sup> After eighty the word et is dropped from before un. Thus, quatre-vingt-un, not et un; quatre-vingt-onze, not et onze; cent un, not et un.

VOCABULARY.

ORDINAL ADVERBS.

Premièrement (prũ-mē-ěr-man'),	First.
Deuxièmement (dũ-zē-ěm-man'),	Secondly.
Troizièmement (trò-ă-zē-ěm-man'),	Thirdly.
Quatrièmement (ká-trē-yěm-man),	Fourthly, etc.

FRACTIONAL NUMBERS.

Un quart (kâr),	One quarter.
Deux quarts,	Two quarters.
Un demi (dũ-mā'), Une demie (dũ-mē'),	A half. <sup>1</sup>
La moitié (là mò-ă-tē-ā'),	The half.
Le tiers (tē-ěr'),	The third.
Un cinquième (sin-kē-ěm'),	One-fifth.
Un sixième (sē-zē-ěm'),	One-sixth, etc.
Une dizaine (dē-zěn'),	(About) ten.
Une douzaine (dōō-zěn'),	A dozen. <sup>2</sup>
Une vingtaine (vin-těn'),	A score ( about twenty).
Une centaine (san-těn'),	About a hundred. <sup>2</sup>
Un millier,	About a thousand.
Une fois (ũn-fò-ă'),	Once.
Deux fois (dũ-fò-ă'),	Twice.
Dix fois (dē-fò-ă'),	Ten times, etc.
Toutes les fois (tōōt lēh fò-ă'),	Every time.

<sup>1</sup> Demi is an adjective and agrees with the noun it qualifies. Un demi mètre, half a yard; une demie livre, half a pound; un jour et demi, a day and a half; une heure et demie, an hour and a half.

<sup>2</sup> Or, a dozen or so, a hundred or so, a thousand or so.

PECULIARITIES OF CARDINAL NUMBERS.

Un alone has a feminine form, une.

Vingt takes an s in the form of quatre-vingts, when not followed by another number.

Quatre-vingts hommes (80 men); but, Quatre-vingt-cinq hommes (85 men).

Cent, like the above, takes an s, when there are two or more hundred, if not followed by another number. Thus:

Deux cents hommes;
but, Deux cent cinquante hommes.<sup>1</sup>

Mille, as a number, has two forms:

Mille = a thousand.

Mil = one thousand.<sup>2</sup>

Both are invariable.

Mille is also a noun, = a mile, and is then variable.

Deux milles = two miles.

Cent and mille do not take the indefinite article as hundred and thousand do in English. The French say, hundred, not a hundred; thousand, not a thousand.

PECULIARITIES OF ORDINAL NUMBERS.

Le premier juillet<sup>2</sup> = the 1st of July. Napoléon 1<sup>er</sup> = Napoléon the 1st.
 Le deux juillet = the 2d of July. Napoléon deux = Napoléon the 2d.
 Le trois juillet = the 3d of July. Louis quinze = Louis the 15th.
 Le quatre juillet = the 4th of July. Charles six = Charles the 6th.
 Le quatorze juillet = the 14th of July. Henry huit = Henry the 8th.
 Le premier août<sup>3</sup> = the 1st of Aug. Charles deux = Charles the 2d.
 Le deux août<sup>3</sup> = the 2d of Aug. Louis dix-huit = Louis the 18th.
 Le onze août<sup>4</sup> = the 11th of Aug.

N. B.—The French use the absolute case (no preposition) in dates.
Thus:

On* the first of July = Le premier juillet.*

On the second day of August=Le deux août.

And,

On Monday,
(i. e. next<sup>5</sup> Monday), } = Lundi (simply, Monday).

On Monday } Le lundi (simply, The Monday,
(i. e. every Monday) } = or or On Mondays } Les lundis, The Mondays.

<sup>4</sup> The e of the article is never elided before onze. Le onze, not l'onze. — <sup>5</sup> Also, last.

EXERCISES.

1.—TO HIRE ROOMS.†

Good-morning, sir. Do you have any rooms to let? — Yes, sir. We have a furnished room<sup>1</sup> on the third story. — That is a little high (up). But let us go up (and) see it.<sup>2</sup> — The room suits me pretty well. What would be the rent? — How do you wish (to)* hire the room, — by the week or by the month? — By the week. — It<sup>3</sup> would be fifty francs a week. — That's very high.<sup>4</sup> — But remember<sup>5</sup> it is a front room and facing<sup>6</sup> the Boulevards.

2.—THE VISIT.

Ah! here you are, at last. How do you do this morning? — Very well, thank you. And yourself? — Not very well. I have a cold.<sup>7</sup> — I am very sorry.<sup>8</sup>

† Pour louer des chambres.

. . . . But how beautiful everything is<sup>1</sup> in this hotel! — Have you seen the parlors?<sup>2</sup> — I saw them as I came up.<sup>3</sup> The dining-room too is very large.<sup>4</sup> — Yes. You know there is<sup>5</sup> room<sup>6</sup> (in it) for 600 persons. Then, the hotel is lighted by 4000 gas jets.<sup>7</sup> — It is wonderful.<sup>8</sup>

Well, I must leave you. It is twenty minutes to three, and I have an engagement.<sup>9</sup> When will you come<sup>10</sup> (to) see me? — I do not know. I am going (to) leave Paris to-morrow. — What! so soon?<sup>11</sup> Where are you going? — I am going to Switzerland (to) spend ten days (or so),<sup>12</sup> and after that, I go to London on business. — When do you intend to return?<sup>13</sup> In a month from now.<sup>14</sup> — Well, come (and) see me then. — Very well. — Good-by.

3. — DEPARTURE FROM THE HOTEL.

What do you wish, sir? — Please make out my account.<sup>15</sup> I want (to) leave<sup>16</sup> to-morrow morning. —

Remarks.

1. Viendrez-vous (future of venir). Je viendrai, tu viendras, il viendra, nous viendrons, vous viendrez, ils viendront (zhǔ vē-in-drā, tū vē-in-drā', etc.); I shall (or will) come, etc. N. B. — Distinguish between this form (the future of a verb), which expresses mainly futurity, and the form with je veux, etc. (like je veux venir, voulez-vous acheter, etc.), which express more specially desire or willingness.

2. Naturally, in these translations, only that portion of the sentence is given which the pupil is supposed not to know. For instance, Faire mon compte (note 15, page 184) and Faire descendre mes malles (note 3, page 185) do not mean, Please make out my account and Please have my trunks brought down; but only, make-out my account, have my trunks brought down, the student being left to supply the word for Please. Let the learner guard against mistaking a part of the sentence thus given for the whole of it.

To be read by means of the literal translation, then without it, in preparation for reading aloud and translating in class.

For the Pronunciation, see page 192.

LECTURE.

À PROPOS D'IDIOTISMES.

— Savez-vous, mon cher ami, que votre langue française est parfois bien exaspérante?

— Comment ça? N'est-ce pas la langue la plus claire qu'il y ait<sup>1</sup> au monde? Sans parler de ses qualités inapprochables pour la conversation. Car Alexandre Dumas père l'a bien dit: "Tous les peuples parlent. Il n'y a que le Français qui sait causer."

— C'est bien là la vanité gauloise!

— Enfin, quelle mouche vous pique à présent?

— Figurez-vous que je me promenais sur les boulevards, cet après-midi. J'arrive<sup>2</sup> au coin de la rue Saint-Martin. Il y avait des ouvriers qui repavaient la rue. J'allais traverser, tout comme j'aurais fait à Baltimore. Mais l'un d'eux m'arrête et me dit, "Monsieur, on ne passe pas.," Un peu en colère, je me tourne du côté des boulevards pour descendre du trottoir, lorsque le même individu me crie, "Prenez

<sup>2</sup> The Indicative Present is often used in French in narration, and is then called the Historical Present.

For Self-Study, should be read by means of the literal translation, then without it, and when thoroughly understood, read aloud in French.

READING.

ABOUT IDIOMS.

— Do you know, my dear friend, that your French language is sometimes very exasperating?

— How (is) that? Is it not the language the most clear (that) there be in-the<sup>1</sup> world? Without speaking of its unapproachable qualities for conversation. For Alexander Dumas, the elder,<sup>2</sup> (it) has indeed said: “All (the) nations speak. There is only the French<sup>3</sup> who knows (how) to-converse.

— That is indeed (there the) gallic vanity!

— Well, what fly stings you now?<sup>4</sup>

— Imagine (to-yourself) that I (myself) promenaded . . . . . I arrive at the . . . . . There were some workmen who were-repaving the street. I was-going to cross, just as I would have done in Baltimore. But one of them me stops and me tells: “Sir, one passes not.” A little out of temper,<sup>5</sup> I myself turn toward-the side of the Boulevard to get down from the sidewalk, when the same individual to-me cries: “Take

garde de tomber!,, Il n'avait pas dit, que je m'étais accroché les jambes<sup>1</sup> dans une corde qui était tendue près du bord du trottoir, et que je mesurais l'asphalte de tout mon long. L'ouvrier accourt pour me relever, tandis que plusieurs personnes s'assemblaient. Je le repousse en lui disant, „Vous êtes un insolent!,, — Ah bien, voilà qui est fort!

— Je ne sais ce qui serait arrivé. Heureusement qu'un monsieur s'est avancé et m'a demandé en anglais comment cet homme m'avait insulté. Je lui dis alors que pour se moquer de moi, il m'avait crié: „Take good care to fall!” „Pardon, me dit ce monsieur, mais évidemment il y a erreur. Cet homme vous a crié au contraire, Take care not to fall! Vous avez mécompris ce singulier idiotisme français. Voilà tout., Sans en demander davantage, je me confonds en excuses, je me sauve au plus vite, et me voici.

— Jolie aventure, ma foi!

— Atroce. Mais enfin, comment expliquez-vous une phrase pareille?

— C'est bien facile. La préposition de dans cette expression a la force de notre from, ou mieux encore, de notre lest; et les Français disent en réalité, „Take care, or take heed from falling. Take heed lest you fall!”

— Ah! vous m'en direz tant?<sup>2</sup>

---

<sup>1</sup> With parts of the body, the French preferably use the article instead of the possessive adjectives (mon, ma, etc.), whenever such use does not lead to confusion of meaning. The personality is then expressed before the verb by me, nous, vous, etc.

<sup>2</sup> Lit.: Ah! you to-me about-i will-say so-much!

(good) care to fall!” He had scarcely said,<sup>1</sup> when<sup>2</sup> I to-myself had caught the leg in a string which was stretched near the edge of the sidewalk, and when<sup>2</sup> I measured the asphaltum with<sup>3</sup> all my length. The workman runs in-order-to me to-pick-up, while several persons (themselves) were-gathering. I push him away, while to-him saying: “You are an insolent fellow!”

— Well, that’s a little too much!<sup>4</sup>

— I do not know what would-have<sup>5</sup> happened. Fortunately (that) a gentleman (himself has) advanced and me (has) asked, in English, how that man me had insulted. I to-him said then that in-order-to mock (himself of) me he to-me had cried: “Take (good) care to fall!” “Pardon (me),” to-me said that gentleman, “but there is evidently (a) mistake. This man-to-you (has) cried on-the contrary, Take care not to fall! You (have) misunderstood that singular French idiom. That is all.” Without about-it asking any-more, I go into many excuses,<sup>6</sup> I hurry away,<sup>7</sup> and here I am!

— (A) pretty adventure, (upon) my word!

— Atrocious. But after-all, how do you explain such a phrase?

— It is very easy. The preposition de in that sentence has the force of our from, or better still, of our lest. And the French really say, “Take care, or Take heed from falling. Take heed lest you fall?”

— Ah! if you put it in that way —.

LECTURE.

AU SPECTACLE.

— Que donne-t-on<sup>1</sup> ce soir aux Français?

— Une comédie nouvelle de Victorien Sardou, l'auteur de La Famille Benoiton, de Rabagas, etc.

— Quel titre porte-t-elle?

— DANIEL ROCHAT.

— Est-ce bien charpenté?

— Pas trop. Mais il y a, dit-on, beaucoup d'esprit, de la malice.

— Les rôles<sup>2</sup> sont-ils bien distribués?

— On dit que oui.

— La pièce est sans doute montée avec soin. N'êtes-vous pas curieux de voir cette première représentation?

— Ma foi, oui. Ne voulez-vous pas y aller avec moi?

— Avec beaucoup de plaisir. Quelles places prendrons-nous?

— Prenons deux places d'orchestre.

— Nous voici justement arrivés au théâtre.

— Avez-vous deux bonnes places d'orchestre?

— Oui, Monsieur, j'en ai deux au sixième rang.

— Très bien, je les prends. Combien est-ce?

<sup>1</sup> Anglice, What do they play? — <sup>2</sup> Le rôle, the part.

HOTEL

For self-study, should be read by mouth then without it, and when thoroughly so aloud in French.

READING.

AT THE THEATRE.

— What plays one<sup>1</sup> at the THÉÂTRE-FRANÇAIS, this evening?

— A new comedy of Victorien Sardou, (the) author of the Benoiton Family, (of) Rabagas, etc.

— What title bears it?

— DANIEL ROCHAT.

— Is it well carpentered?

— Not too (well). But there is, say-they,<sup>2</sup> much of wit, some keen humor.

— The parts are they we' distributed?

— They say so.

— The piece is without doubt mounted with care. Are you not curious to see this first representation?

— (Upon) my faith, yes. Will you not there go with me?

— With much (of) pleasure. What seats shall we take?

— Let us take two orchestra seats.

— Here we are (just arrived) at the theatre.

— Have you two good orchestra seats?

— Yes, sir. I of-them<sup>3</sup> (en) have at-the sixth row.

— Very well. I them take. How much is it?

<sup>1</sup> Anglice, But they say there is. — <sup>2</sup> Anglice, some.

— C'est huit francs.

— Eh bien ! Mon cher ; nous arrivons à point nommé. On va jouer l'ouverture.

— Mais non ; le rideau est déjà levé. Prêtez-moi un instant vos jumelles.<sup>1</sup> Je crois reconnaître<sup>2</sup> quelqu'un dans cette loge.

— Les voici.

— Je ne me trompais pas.

— Qui est-ce ?

— C'est Jean Mistral, le fameux millionnaire.

— Ah ! bah ! Voici la première fois que je le vois.

— Tiens ! voilà qu'on baisse la toile. Est-ce que le premier acte serait déjà fini ?

— Il paraît. Nous sommes arrivés aux dernières scènes.

— Et que donne-t-on demain ?

— Demain, il n'y aura pas de spectacle.

— Eh bien ! Allons un instant au foyer pendant l'entracte.

Àl-frěd'. Vōō mò-blē- zh'rā. Kēl nǔ sò-à trò p-tē'. Nà-vā vōō pä on'-t'. Vōō vōō mò-kād-mò-à'.	I am afraid to go out this way. <sup>4</sup> But your cousin could lend you his rubbers. Yes, Alfred. You'll greatly oblige me. But I am afraid they are too small. <sup>5</sup> Are you not ashamed to speak that way? <sup>6</sup> You are making fun of me. <sup>7</sup>

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> It makes so bad weather.

<sup>2</sup> Yesterday evening. — If referring to the night and not to the evening, last night would be rendered by la nuit passée.

<sup>3</sup> On or when returning from the play. Can also say, du théâtre.

2. Eh bien! Voulez-vous me les prêter?

Que voulez-vous dire, — mes caoutchoucs et mon<sup>1</sup> parapluie?

Mais, sans doute.

Bien entendu. Je vais vous les faire apporter tout de suite.

Jean, montez dans ma chambre.

Vous y trouverez mes nouveaux caoutchoucs sous le lit et mon parapluie dans l'armoire.

Descendez-les.

Non, je ne la lui ai pas donnée.<sup>2</sup>

Il ne pourra pas ouvrir la porte.

N'a-t-il pas son passe-partout?

C'est juste.

A propos, avez-vous vu Monsieur Félix, ces joursci?

Moi, non. Je ne sais pas ce qu'il est devenu.

NOTES.

<sup>2</sup> Past participles conjugated with avoir agree in gender and number with the direct object, when that object precedes the verb. Thus, in the sentence: Vous ne lui avez-pas donné votre clef, the direct object is votre clef, fem. sing., but the past participle donné remains invariable because clef follows it. But in the next sentence, donnée is written with the feminine sign (e) because the direct object la precedes it.

2. Ā bē-in'! Vōo-lā vōo m'lēh prēh-tā'?	Well! Will you lend them to me? <sup>1</sup> What do you mean, — my rub- bers and <sup>2</sup> umbrella? Why, of course.
Bē-in nan-tan-dü'. Zh' věh.	Certainly. <sup>3</sup> I'll have them brought to you at once. <sup>4</sup> John, go up to my room.
Nōo-vō kà-ōot-shōo' sōol lē' . . . . dan lār-mò-ār'.	You will find my rubbers under the bed, and my umbrella in the closet. Bring them down.

C'est elle = It is she. Ce sont elles = It is they (f.).

It is not I = Ce n'est pas moi, etc. It was I = C'était moi. It was they = C'étaient eux (or elles).

5. Voyons, quand irez-vous<sup>2</sup> le voir?

Je ne sais. Demeure-t-il toujours dans la même maison?

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Moi! Lit.: Me! Of the pronoun-objects, four are never used away from the verb. They are me, te, le, la, and les. The others (moi, toi, lui, elle, eux, elles, nous, and vous) may be used either in immediate connection with the verb, or with a preposition, or entirely alone. Ex.: Speak to me, Parlez-moi; Come with me, Venez avec moi; Who wants to go there? Answer, I; Qui veut y aller? Answer, Moi.

<sup>2</sup> Future of Aller. J'irai, tu iras, il ira, nous irons, vous irez, ils iront; I shall (or will) go, thou shalt (or wilt) go, he shall (or will) go, etc.

Plěh-zan-tā'. Sěh tá pěn' sēzh mēl pē-ā' dǔ-or'.	I! You are joking. I scarcely ever go out. <sup>4</sup>

4. C'est à moi = That's mine. C'est à nous = It's ours.

C'est à toi = It's thine. C'est à vous = That's yours.

C'est à lui = " his. C'est à eux = " theirs.

C'est à elle = " hers. C'est à elles = " "

That's mine, or It's mine, is also rendered by C'est le mien; thine, c'est le tien; his, c'est le sien, etc.

5. Vò-à-yon'. Kan tē-rā vōōl vò-àr'?	Well, now. When will you go and see him? <sup>5</sup>
Zhǔn sěh'. Dǔ-mūr-tēl.	I scarcely know? <sup>6</sup> Does he live in the same house? <sup>7</sup>

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Être à, to belong to; lit.: to be to. N'est pas à moi = is not mine; lit.: belongs not to me.

<sup>5</sup> When two verbs following each other immediately depend on the same subject, the last is often put in the infinitive. I thought it to have lost, instead of I thought that I had lost it.

LE MIN ET LA VILLE

THE DISTINCTION

OF THE PERSONAL OBJECTS.

The distinction between the personal objects (les objets personnels) and the impersonal objects (les objets impersonnels) is not treated at the beginning, and is referred to where their use is made. The words je and me are used both as subject and object, but the learner allow

THE PERSONAL OBJECTS

are the objects of personal objects in the sentence. The words je and me are used both as subject and object, but the learner allow

THE IMPERSONAL OBJECTS

are the objects of impersonal objects in the sentence. The words je and me are used both as subject and object, but the learner allow

Les ais made in the second sentence. Thus, it is in the second sentence. Je and me are used both as subject and object, but the learner allow

3. Even if there are two pronoun-objects.

Thus:

I sent him to you = I to-you him have sent; Je vous<sup>1</sup> l'ai<sup>2</sup> envoyé.

They sent them to us = They to-us them have sent; Ils nous les ont<sup>3</sup> envoyés.

To-you and him in the first sentence, and to-us and them in the second, both come before both parts of the verb (have and sent).

This placing of the pronoun-objects before the verb being established, there remains only one more point to be determined. That is, when there are two pronoun-objects to come before the verb, which should precede the other?

Now, when there are two pronoun-objects, one of them will always be either le, la, or les.<sup>4</sup> And this le, la, or les will always be second of the two, except when the other pronoun is lui or leur.

Thus, suppose we have two pronoun-objects to place before a verb:

If they are, la and vous, the order will be, vous la;

If they are, les and me, the order will be, me les;

If they are, nous and le, the order will be, nous le; — since le, la, or les are always second.

<sup>1</sup> Vous = you or to-you; nous = us or to-us. Likewise me = me or to-me; te = thee or to-thee.

<sup>3</sup> Notice that have is ai, if it is I who have; that it is ont, if it is they who have; avez, if it is you who have; and a, if it is he or she who has. Many annoying mistakes will be avoided if this point is kept in view.

<sup>4</sup> En and y will be treated later.

But, on the other hand :

If they are, lui and le, the order will be, le lui;

If they are, les and leur, the order will be, les leur;—
since le, la, or les are second except when the other pronoun is lui or leur.

All this, i. e., all the possible relative positions of the above pronoun-objects before the verb, the learner will find readily illustrated in the following simple table :

Me	Le	Lui
Te	La	Leur
Nous	Les
Vous

Key to the Table.

If the learner will cover the right-hand square (containing lui and leur) with his hand or pencil, he will see that le, la, les are always second, that is, always follow the other pronouns (me, te, etc.). But if he now will uncover the right-hand square, and place hand or pencil over the left-hand one, the two exceptional cases will appear illustrated, i. e., that le, la, and les, although ordinarily second, do precede lui and leur. Examples :

Do not return it to me, Ne<sup>1</sup> me le rendez pas.

He does not return it to you, Il ne<sup>1</sup> vous la rend pas.

He does not sell it to me, Il ne<sup>1</sup> me la vend pas.

They have sold them to us, Ils nous les ont vendus.

---

<sup>1</sup> As seen here, ne always takes its place just before the pronoun-objects.

But:

Did you tell him (about) it? Le lui avez-vous dit?

Didn't he send it to them? Ne la leur a-t-il pas envoyée?

Hadn't he sent them to her? Ne les lui avait-il pas envoyés?

RECAPITULATION OF THE ABOVE.

1. The place of the pronoun-objects is before the verb, even if the verb has two parts, even if there are two pronouns.<sup>1</sup>

2. When there are two pronouns, † le, la, or les is always second, except when the other pronoun is lui or leur.

ONE EXOEPTION

to the whole rule just recapitulated:

When the verb is in the imperative-affirmative, the pronoun-objects are placed just as in English; that is to say, after the verb, and in the same order in relation to one another as in English. Thus:

Give it to me = Give it to-me; Donnez-le moi.<sup>1</sup>

Send them to her = Send them to-her; Envoyez-les lui.

Bring her to us = Bring her to-us; Amenez-la nous, etc., etc.

Notice that, as this exception applies only to the imperative-affirmative, pronoun-objects do follow the general rule (that is, are placed before the verb), if the verb is in the imperative-negative. Thus:

Give it to me = Give it to-me; Donnez-le moi; But:

---

<sup>1</sup> Me and to-me = me and moi. Before the verb me is used. After it, moi. The same is true of te and toi (thee, to thee). — † Objects.

Do not give it to me = To-me it give not; Ne me le donnez pas.

Send them to her = Send them to-her; Envoyez-les lui;<sup>1</sup> But:

Do not send them to her = Them to-her send not; Ne les lui envoyez pas.

Bring her to us = Bring her to-us; Amenez-la nous; But:

Do not bring her to us = To-us her bring not; Ne nous l'amenez pas.

Tell him so = Dites-le<sup>2</sup> lui;<sup>3</sup> But:

Do not tell him so = Ne le lui dites pas.

---

RECAPITULATION OF THE WHOLE RULE.

This being by far the most important rule in French, and treated here in a novel and comprehensive manner, the pupil should now memorize and master it textually, as recapitulated:

1. The pronoun-objects are placed immediately before the verb, even if the verb has two parts, even if there are two pronoun-objects.

2. When there are two pronoun-objects, le, la, or les is second, except when the other pronoun is lui or leur.

<sup>2</sup> So in this and such phrases is rendered by it (le). Tell him so. French: Tell him it. Also, Tell him about it. French: Tell him it, le lui.

<sup>3</sup> Lui (lit. : to-him, to-her), is used for him (or her) only when him or her really mean to-him, to-her. As, Send him, Tell her so, etc., which in reality mean Send to him, Tell it to her, etc. The same is true of leur (lit. : to-them), which is used for them, but only in the same cases as just mentioned.

3. To this whole thing there is one exception:

When the verb is in the imperative-affirmative, the pronouns are placed exactly as in English.

---

The pupil is advised to keep this rule well in mind, returning to and studying it from time to time. In applying it to sentences containing pronoun-objects, he is reminded to use the process explained on page 144, and shape these sentences in his thought by means of English words, before uttering them in French. This will soon make him so familiar with their mechanism that they will shape themselves readily for him without this aid.

The following vocabulary to be studied by heart.

CONVERSATIONS.

1.—LE LEVER.

Monsieur, vous m'avez dit de vous réveiller à sept heures? — Comment! Il est déjà sept heures? — Oui, Monsieur. Il est sept heures cinq. — Eh bien, je vais me lever.<sup>1</sup> — Monsieur ne veut-il pas mettre<sup>2</sup> sa robe de chambre? — Non, donnez-moi mon caleçon et mon pantalon. — Les voici. — Je ne trouve pas mes pantoufles. — Je ne sais plus où je les ai mises.<sup>3</sup> — Les voilà; à côté du lavabo. — Jean, versez<sup>4</sup> de l'eau chaude<sup>4</sup> dans ma cuvette, je vais me laver.<sup>5</sup> — Après cela, je veux me raser.<sup>6</sup> — Veuillez me passer mon rasoir et le blaireau.<sup>7</sup> — C'est bien. Maintenant, veuillez m'apporter une serviette. — Merci. Versez un peu d'eau froide<sup>8</sup> dans la cuvette. — Voilà, monsieur. — Où est le démêloir? Je ne l'ai pas vu depuis hier soir. — Le voici, monsieur. Il était tombé derrière la commode.

---

Pronunciation and Translations.

<sup>1</sup> Se lever, to rise; lit.: to raise one's self. Me lever, to rise; lit.: to raise myself. — <sup>2</sup> To put, or put on.

3. — CHEZ UN CHANGEUR.

To be translated and written out into French, but also to be recited orally in the class-room. (For Self-Study, see Directions, before Part I.)

EXERCISES.

1.—ABOUT SAMPLES.

Did Mr. Macy send<sup>1</sup> you those samples of silk? — No, he has not sent them to me yet.<sup>2</sup> — I told him to do so,<sup>3</sup> day before yesterday. — Please call on him<sup>4</sup> to-day and ask him why he has not sent them yet. Tell him<sup>5</sup> I must have them before to-night.<sup>6</sup>

2.—SAME SUBJECT.

Why didn't you send those samples of silk to Mr. Lovell? — Why,<sup>7</sup> I sent them to him, yesterday. — He has not received them.<sup>8</sup> — That's impossible. When did you see him? — I saw him this very morning.<sup>9</sup> — Well, wait a minute. I am going to have them sent to him,<sup>10</sup> at once.

3.—INFORMATION.

(Beg) pardon, sir; would you please tell me where the Bazar du Voyage is?<sup>11</sup> — I am very sorry,<sup>12</sup> but

<sup>9</sup> This morning even (même). — <sup>10</sup> Them to-him to-make to-send.

I do not know exactly. Ask<sup>1</sup> that policeman. He will be able to tell you.<sup>2</sup>

What day of the month have we?—To-day is the 10th.—Isn't Mr. Clémenceau's note<sup>3</sup> payable to-day?—Let me see. January 12th, 1888.—That's right.—Now, what day of the week have we?—To-day is Thursday.

4.—AT A MONEY BROKER'S.

Would you have the kindness to give me French money for these twenty dollar pieces?<sup>4</sup>—How would you like to have them?<sup>5</sup>—In gold, or bank bills?—In gold, if you please.

Why, you give me only<sup>6</sup> three-hundred francs!—That's right.—But three hundred francs are not worth<sup>7</sup> sixty dollars.—No, sir. But there is the exchange.<sup>8</sup> Look at that bulletin,<sup>9</sup> by the door.<sup>10</sup> You will see the rate on it.<sup>11</sup>

LECTURE.

LA BOURSE. LE PASSAGE DES PANORAMAS.

— Eh bien, si nous voulons sortir aujourd'hui, il est temps. Partons! Partons! . . . . .

— Tenez! Nous voilà à la Bourse. C'est beau, n'est-ce pas? Ce vaste emplacement, ce large édifice en style corinthien, au milieu!

— En effet! C'est magnifique. Mais qui sont ces individus, près du parquet?

— Des commis qui échangent des ordres.

— Et là, sur les côtés?

— Ce sont les rois de la finance.

— On les nomme, je crois, des loups-cerviers?

READING.

THE EXCHANGE. PASSAGE OF PANORAMAS.

— Well, if we wish to-go-out to-day, it is time. Let us start! Let us start! . . . . .

— See! We are now at the Exchange. It is fine, is it not? That wide square, that large building, in (the) Corinthian style, in-the middle!

— Yes, indeed! It is magnificent. But who are those individuals, near the parquet?

— Clerks who are-exchanging orders.

— And there, on the sides?

— Those are the kings of finance.

— One names them, I believe, lynxes?

— Yes; from jealousy. — But see, under the colonnades, those small speculators who read their feuilleton.<sup>1</sup> (Do) you see? One of them puts (down) his paper and asks information concerning the rate of stocks from the broker who is passing. One offers him Vienna stocks; another, some Spanish funds. — But let us go now to the Passage of-the Panoramas. — There! Let us go in-it by the Gallery of the Bourse. — How it is gay, is it not? At least one has not to fear (the) carriages. Now, let us turn to (the) right, into that gallery. That is the Montmartre Gallery, the entrance of which is on the Boulevard of-the same name.

NOTES.

<sup>2</sup> In the case of two verbs closely connected in the same clause, the French always prefer to use the negative with the first, where the sense is not altered thereby.

<sup>3</sup> When speaking about the length of time they have been in a place where they are still at the time they speak, the French use the present. The English say, since we have been; the French, since we are in Paris.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Il ne pleut pas = It is-not (i. e. raining). The French cannot say, simply, It is, it does, he does, we do, etc., referring to a preceding verb. They must say, It is raining, It does-rain (rains), He does-go (goes), We think so, etc.

6. Qui est-ce qui<sup>2</sup> descend de voiture à la porte de la maison vis-à-vis?

Je crois vraiment que c'est votre beau-frère.

Mais oui. C'est son équipage.
 Le cocher s'est trompé de maison.

Que voulez-vous — par un tel orage — ?
 Ah! le voilà qui vient<sup>3</sup> de ce côté-ci de la rue.

Je me demande ce qu'il vient faire ici par un temps pareil.

Bonjour, belle-sœur, comment vous portez-vous?

Je me porte à merveille.<sup>4</sup> Mais je crains pour votre santé.

Vous voilà bien arrangé!

Vous êtes mouillé jusqu'aux os.

Vous ne pouvez pas manquer de prendre froid.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Quel in exclamations = What a!

<sup>2</sup> Or, simply, Qui descend.

NOTES.

<sup>2</sup> Subjunctive present of Pleuvoir. After que, when doubt or negation is expressed or implied, the subjunctive is used.

<sup>3</sup> Future of Pleuvoir, although after que, and with doubt really implied in the sentence. But in using the verbs to hope, to believe, to think, affirmatively, the French, singularly enough, do not appear to consider them as implying doubt, and hence do not then use the subjunctive. Do you think it is raining, Croyez-vous qu'il pleuve (subj.); but, I think it is raining, je crois qu'il pleut (indic.).

LECTURE.

LE PASSAGE DE L'OPÉRA.—LE GRAND OPÉRA.

—Maintenant, au passage de l'Opéra!

—Que voulez-vous dire?

—De l'autre côté des boulevards.

—Ah! —Mais nous voici au passage.

—Que de monde!

—Oui; ce passage a la vogue. Il la doit à l'élégance de ses magasins, à son aristocratie de bon goût, à ses allures de bonne compagnie. Les entrepreneurs ont fait là une fameuse spéculation!

—Ah! nous voici dans la galerie Colbert. Elle<sup>2</sup> vaut bien le passage dont<sup>3</sup> nous sortons, n'est-ce pas?

—Mais à propos, êtes-vous curieux de voir la galerie Vivienne? Elle est négligée, mal tenue. Néanmoins, c'est un des passages les plus fréquentés<sup>4</sup> de la capitale.

—Fréquenté par le beau monde?

—Oh! non; par les commerçants. Tout ce que vous y voyez s'adresse aux besoins d'une vie paisible

For Self-Study, should be read by means of the literal translation, then without it, and when thoroughly understood, read aloud in French.

READING.

THE PASSAGE DE L'OPÉRA.—THE "GRAND OPÉRA."

— Now, to the passage of-the Opera!

— Oh! what fine turn-outs before that great bazar!

— Where do you mean?

— On the other side of-the Boulevards.

— Oh! — But here we are at the passage.

— What a crowd!<sup>1</sup>

— Yes; this passage has the vogue. It owes it to the elegance of its stores, to its refined aristocracy, to its good society ways.<sup>2</sup> The managers have made there a famous speculation!<sup>3</sup>

— But here we are in the Colbert Gallery! It's just as fine as the gallery from-which we are-coming-out, is it not? — But, by the way, are you curious to see the Vivienne Gallery? It is neglected, badly kept. Nevertheless, it is one of the passages the most frequented of the capital.

— Frequented by the élite?<sup>4</sup>

— Oh! no; by the tradespeople. All (that which) you there see addresses itself to-the needs of a life

---

<sup>1</sup> Monde = world, or people; que de monde! lit.: What (a quantity of) people! — <sup>2</sup> To its ways of good society.

et calculée. C'est un foyer<sup>1</sup> continuels d'activité, un des centres de l'industrie parisienne.

— Il nous reste encore deux heures avant de nous rendre au théâtre. Ne pourrions-nous pas visiter le Diorama?

— Il n'existe plus. C'était un spectacle très amusant. Vous connaissez de réputation l'auteur, Daguerre?

— Celui qui a donné son nom au daguerréotype?

— Lui-même.

— On dit que ce Diorama était une des merveilles de Paris. L'illusion, paraît-il,<sup>2</sup> était si complète qu'on aurait juré être à Rome, à Saint-Petersbourg, ou dans les montagnes de la Suisse. On parlait aussi beaucoup des effets de lumière. L'ombre projetée par les arbres suivait, dit-on,<sup>2</sup> tous les mouvements que le vent imprimait à leurs branches. Le brouillard se formait et se dissipait à volonté. Vous croyez peut-être que cette mécanique lui coûtait cher? Eh bien, pas du tout.

— Comment ça?

— Oh! ce n'est pas bien malin. Il y avait des châssis placés à distance<sup>3</sup> et tendus de gaze. Quand on les rapprochait, l'air devenait obscur; quand on les éloignait, il redevenait clair. — Mais l'heure avance et nous ne trouverons plus de place à l'Opéra. Dépêchons-nous. Vous allez voir des costumes frais et élégants, de magnifiques décors qui ravissent le public par leur variété, leur richesse et leur nouveauté.

<sup>2</sup> Seems it, instead of it seems; say they instead of they say — an inversion customary with the French in narration.

— There to-us remains yet two hours before rendering ourselves to the theatre. Could we not visit the Diorama?

— It does not exist any more. But it was a very amusing show. You know of reputation the author, Daguerre?

— The-one who has . . . . . to-the daguerreotype?

— Himself.

— They say that this Diorama was one of the marvels of Paris. The illusion, it seems, was so complete that one would have vowed he was<sup>1</sup> in . . . . . People spoke also much of the effects of light. The shadow projected by the trees followed, say they, all the movements which the wind imparted<sup>2</sup> to their limbs. The fog formed (itself) and dispersed (itself)<sup>3</sup> at will. You think perhaps that all this mechanism cost him dear? Well, not at all.

— How (is) that?

— Oh! it is not very wonderful.<sup>4</sup> There were sashes placed at distance and stretched over with gauze. When one them brought together, the air became dark; when one them separated, it became again clear. — But the hour is-advancing,<sup>5</sup> and we will find no-more places at the opera. Let-us-make-haste. You are-going to see fresh and elegant costumes, and magnificent scenery,<sup>6</sup> which . . . . .

<sup>3</sup> Who, beginning an interrogative sentence, is rendered by Qui, or Qui est-ce qui. Thus, qui fait tant de bruit? or qui est-ce qui fait tant de bruit? (Lit.: Who is it who makes, etc.). Qui est-ce qui is used when more energy is required, or for euphony.

<sup>4</sup> What, at the beginning of an interrogative sentence, is rendered either by que or qu'est-ce que. What do you say = que dites-vous (lit.: What say you?), or, qu'est-ce vous dites (lit.: What is it that you say?). The latter is used when more energy is required, or for euphony.

PRONUNCIATION.

TRANSLATION.

1. Ēl nōō fō-drá' rēs-tā' á là mēh-zon'. Lǔ sē-ēl ěh kōō-vēr'.  Kēs kǔ.  Pōōr-kó-à sá' ? Lǔ tan ěh sē kōō-vēr'.	We shall have to stay at home.<sup>1</sup> The sky is overcast. We must stay at home. <sup>2</sup> What did your father say? <sup>3</sup> He said we must stay at home. Why so? <sup>4</sup> Because we are going to have rain. <sup>5</sup> The weather is so cloudy. <sup>6</sup>
2. Kē ěs kē fěh' tan-d brü-ē' ? Zhü-lē', nēs pä' ? Kēs kǔ vōō dēt' ? Zhǔ dēk sěh zhü-lē'. Kēl fōs tair'. Fä-shā'.	Who is making so much noise? <sup>7</sup> It is Julia, is n't it? What do you say? I say it is Julia. Tell her she must be silent. <sup>8</sup> She is angry because she has <sup>9</sup> to stay at home. <sup>10</sup>

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> It to-us will-be-necessary to.<sup>2</sup> It is necessary to.<sup>3</sup> What is this that your father has said?<sup>4</sup> Why that? — <sup>5</sup> Water. — <sup>6</sup> Covered.<sup>7</sup> Who is this who makes so-much of noise?<sup>8</sup> Tell-her that it-is-necessary herself to-silence.<sup>9</sup> Because it is-necessary for-her.<sup>10</sup> At the house. — When speaking to or about any one either in their own house, or if we frequent their house, we often use: à la maison, for home or at home (instead of chez moi, chez lui, chez elle, chez vous, etc.).

Je n'y peux rien. Le temps est trop abominable pour sortir.

Quand on ne peut rien à une chose, il faut l'endurer.

Qu'elle attende<sup>1</sup> jusqu'à demain. Elle n'y perdra rien.

3. Il me faudra garder la maison toute la journée.

Pourquoi (donc) vous faudra-t-il rester à la maison?<sup>2</sup>

Pour surveiller les ouvriers qui vont venir.

À propos. Il nous faut faire refaire le plafond de la salle à manger, pendant que les ouvriers y sont.

Ne ferions<sup>3</sup>-nous pas mieux de faire badigeonner les murs de la cuisine.

Il est trop tard.

4. Il fallait<sup>4</sup> dire cela hier, pendant que les badigeonneurs y étaient.<sup>5</sup>

NOTES.

<sup>5</sup> Could also say, pendant que les badigeonneurs étaient ici. But y is often used for here, as well as for there, when the place referred to has already been mentioned, or is self-evident.

Zhnē pû rē-in' . . . . . trô- pá-bó-mē-ná'-bl'.	I can't help it. <sup>1</sup> The weather is too wretchedly bad to go out.
Kan-ton n'pû rē-in ná . . . . lan-dü-rā'.	What can't be cured, must be endured. <sup>2</sup>
Zhüs-kád-min'.	Let her wait <sup>3</sup> till to-morrow. She won't lose anything by it.

3. Ēl mǔ fō-drà gār-dā lá mēh-zon'.	I'll have to stay at home all day. <sup>4</sup>
Pōōr-kò-à sá.	Why will you have <sup>5</sup> to stay in?
Sür-vēh-yā lēh zōō-vrē-yā' kē von v'nēr'.	To keep watch over the work- men who are coming.
Plà-fon dlá sál á man- zhā', pan-dan klēh zōō-vrē- yā zē son'.	By the way; we must have <sup>6</sup> the ceiling in the dining- room done while the work- men are here.
Bà-dē-zhó-nā lēh mür dǔ lá kü-ē-zēn'?	Had we not better have <sup>7</sup> the kitchen walls whitewashed too?
	It is too late.

4. Ēl fà-lēh dēr sǔ-lá ē- yēr, pan-dan klēh bà-dē- zhó-nūr ē ā-tēh'.	You should have men- tioned it yesterday <sup>8</sup> while the whitewashers were here.

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

- <sup>1</sup> I about-it (y) can nothing.
- <sup>2</sup> When one can't anything to a thing, it-is-necessary it.
- <sup>3</sup> That she may wait.
- <sup>4</sup> It for-me will-be-necessary to keep the house.
- <sup>5</sup> Why so, to-you will-it-be-necessary, etc.
- <sup>6</sup> It for-us is-necessary to-make rebuild.
- <sup>7</sup> Would we not do better.
- <sup>8</sup> It was-necessary to-say that.

C'est égal. Il faudra faire nettoyer et badigeonner la cave.

D'ailleurs, à votre place, j'aurais fait remettre toute<sup>1</sup> la maison à neuf.

Vous plaisantez.

Vous devriez bien savoir que je n'ai pas les moyens de faire une dépense pareille.

Mais enfin; combien faudrait-il?

Il ne faudrait pas moins de<sup>2</sup> deux mille dollars.

En effet, c'est trop d'argent.

Il faut encore attendre.

---

5. Tiens! Voilà notre ami Bocage.

Vraiment, on ne vous voit plus.

Quel temps! N'est-ce pas?<sup>3</sup>

Tenez! Il tonne.

Mais, il faut que je vous parle.

Je voudrais vous emprunter de l'argent.

Combien vous faut-il?

---

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> All=tout, before nouns in the masculine singular, toute before nouns in the feminine singular; tous and toutes before plural nouns.

<sup>3</sup> N'est-ce pas, lit.: is it not? is often used in French merely to strengthen the expression.

Fair nēh-tó-á-yā ā bá-dē-zhó-nā'	No matter. <sup>1</sup> We will have to have the cellar cleaned and whitewashed. <sup>2</sup>
Dà-yŭr . . . . fēh r'mēh'-tr'.	Anyway, if I had been in your place, I would have had the whole house gone over. <sup>3</sup>
Plēh-zan-tā'.	You are joking, surely. <sup>4</sup>
Vōō dŭ-vrē-yā' . . . . lēh mò-á-yin' . . . . pà-rēh'-yŭ.	You ought to know that I have not the means to go to such an expense. <sup>5</sup>
Mēh zan-fin.	But now, <sup>6</sup> how much would be needed? <sup>7</sup>
Pà mò-ind dŭ mēl.	I would not need less than two thousand dollars.
Ēl fō tan-kor á-tan'-dr'.	Yes, it is too much money.
	We must wait.

---

5. Tē-in'! Vó-á-lá nó-trá-mē'.	Why! Here is our friend Bocage!
On n'vōō vó-á plü'.	You are becoming a stranger. <sup>8</sup>
Nēs pā'.	What weather! Eh?
Ēl tón'.	See! It is thundering.
Kŭzh vōō pàr'-l'.	But I must speak to you.
Vōō zan-prun-tā'.	I want to borrow some money.
	How much do you need? <sup>9</sup>

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

6. Il faut.<sup>1</sup>

NOTE. — The use of il faut being of some difficulty, and its presentation in the various text-books generally a confusing and bewildering one, the following directions have been introduced.

"IL FAUT" MAY BE USED IN THREE WAYS.*

First Way. — With the infinitive only. — This is the case whenever the application is general or self-evident. Ex.:

1. General. { In order to prosper, we must work.
Pour prospérer, il faut travailler.<sup>2</sup>

2. Self-evident; i. e. when those spoken to must know from the circumstances that the order or injunction is meant for them. For instance:

To an office-boy:

You must post these letters.

Il faut mettre ces lettres à la poste.<sup>3</sup>

Or, when giving any order of such evident application:

We must close the store, Il faut fermer le magasin.

Or, if speaking, for instance, to persons about to leave:

We (or, you) must go = Il faut partir. — etc., etc.

Second Way. — With the infinitive and a pronoun. — This takes place, when, the case not being a general

<sup>1</sup> Il faut (indicative present of falloir, to-be-necessary), It is-necessary. Anglice, I, thou, he, she, we, you or they must.

<sup>2</sup> It is-necessary to-work.

* The following rule, of course, applies to all the tenses of falloir (il faudra, etc. ) as well as to il faut.

one, the personality naturally needs to be represented.
Ex.:

When must you leave? = Quand vous faut-il partir?†

I must go to-day. = Il me faut partir<sup>1</sup> aujourd'hui.

Must she not send? = Ne lui<sup>2</sup> faut-il pas envoyer?

Third Way. — With “que” and the subjunctive. — This is used also when the personality naturally needs to be expressed, but when at the same time, more energy is required; or else, for the sake of euphony. Thus:

You must go there before 12 o'clock.

Il faut que vous y alliez<sup>3</sup> avant midi.

Must she not tell him so?

Ne faut-il pas qu'elle le lui dise?<sup>4</sup>

---

WHEN THE SUBJECT IS A NOUN.

In all cases treated above, the subject has been a pronoun. When, instead, a noun is the subject, only the third form (subjunctive, with que) can ever be used. Ex.:

My brother must go.

Il faut que mon frère parte.

Mr. X must pay $1000 by the 15th.

Il faut que M. X paie 1000 dollars pour le quinze.<sup>5</sup>

Must not his partner tell him about it?<sup>6</sup>

Ne faut-il pas que son associé le lui dise?

---

<sup>1</sup> It for-me is-necessary to start.

<sup>2</sup> For-her is-it-not-necessary to-send?

<sup>3</sup> It is-necessary that you there go.

<sup>4</sup> Is-it-not-necessary that she it to-him say?

<sup>5</sup> It is-necessary that Mr. X pay $1000 for the 15th.

<sup>6</sup> Is-it-not-necessary that his partner it to-him say?

† When to-you is-it-necessary to-start?

7. Combien vous faudrait-il<sup>1</sup> pour faire rebâtir la maison?

Il ne me faudrait pas moins de cent mille francs.

Vous faudrait-il autant que cela?

Pas un sou de moins.

Mais Monsieur Mackay me disait qu'il ne lui faudrait pas plus de soixante-quinze mille francs pour faire rebâtir la sienne.

Monsieur Mackay a beau dire.<sup>2</sup>

Il ne me fera jamais croire que des vessies sont des lanternes.

8. Si vous voulez que je vous mène<sup>3</sup> au spectacle ce soir, il faut que vous soyez ici à sept heures.

Ne craignez<sup>4</sup> rien. Je serai ici à l'heure dite.

C'est ce qu'il faut.

Quel chapeau allez-vous mettre?

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Conditional of falloir, to be-necessary. — Il faut, Il faudrait are also used in the sense to need. Il me faut = I need (lit.: There to-me is-necessary); Il me faudrait = I would need (lit.: There to-me would-be-necessary).

<sup>2</sup> Avoir beau dire, to talk in vain (lit.: to-have (a) fine (time) talking). Vous avez beau dire = You are talking in vain, or (colloquially) You may say what you please.

7. Kon-bē-in vōō fō-drēh tēl pōōr fair rū-bā-tēr?

Pä mö-in'.

Ō-tank s'lä'.

Pä zun sōōd mö-in'.

Mā-kām-dē-zēh . . . . plūd-sō-ā-sant-kinz mēl.

À bō dēr'.

Zhā-mēh krò-ār kǔ dēh vēh-sē son dēh lan-tēr'-n'.

How much would you need for rebuilding the house?<sup>1</sup>

I would not need<sup>2</sup> a cent less than 100000 francs.

Would you need<sup>3</sup> as much as that?

Not a cent less.

But Mr. Mackay was telling me that he would not need more than 75000 dollars to have his (house) rebuilt.

Mr. Mackay may say what he likes.<sup>4</sup>

He never will make me believe that the moon is made of green cheese.<sup>5</sup>

8. Sē vōō vōō-lā kǔzh vōō mēn ō spēk-tā-kl' . . . .
sō-ā-yā zē-sē ā sēh-tūr'.

Nǔ krēh-ñā rē-in'. Zhūs-rā ē-sē ā lūr dēt'.

Sēh skēl fō'.

Kēl shā-pō.

If you want me to take you to the theater, this evening, you must be here<sup>6</sup> at seven o'clock.

Don't be afraid.<sup>7</sup> I shall be here on time.<sup>8</sup>

That's right.<sup>9</sup>

What bonnet are you going to put on?<sup>10</sup>

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> How much to-you would-it-be-necessary for to-have rebuilt the house?

<sup>2</sup> There to-me would-not-be-necessary.

<sup>3</sup> To you would there-be-necessary.

<sup>4</sup> Mr. Mackay has fine to-talk; i. e., "has it fine, talking," i. e. is talking in vain.

<sup>5</sup> He will-make me never believe that bladders are lanterns.

<sup>9</sup> That is what (strictly, that which) is necessary.

<sup>10</sup> mettre = to put, or to put on.

Je vais mettre mon chapeau de satin blanc.
 Il ne faut pas mettre celui-là.
 Pourquoi pas ?
 Il ne me plaît pas du tout.<sup>1</sup>
 Il est pourtant tout à fait à la mode.
 C'est possible. Mais je ne le trouve pas du tout comme il faut.

---

9. À propos, ne nous faut-il pas inviter Madame de X. ?

Non. Il ne faut pas le faire.<sup>2</sup>
 Pourquoi ne faut-il pas le faire ?
 Je trouve<sup>3</sup> qu'elle n'est pas du tout comme il faut.
 Mais ne faut-il pas inviter Monsieur Basly ?
 C'est un homme très comme il faut, n'est-ce pas ?
 C'est ce qu'on dit. Il faudra que je l'invite.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Could also say, je ne l'aime pas du tout. But aimer, to like, to love, refers rather more especially to settled tastes or affections. When to like expresses merely an opinion or impression, the French prefer, whenever practicable, to use some indirect form like That does not please me (or suit me), instead of I do not like it; Do you find it good ? instead of Do you like it ? etc.

<sup>2</sup> Notice the tendency, in French, to complete a sentence. English : We must not. French : We must not do it.

<sup>3</sup> Je trouve, lit. : I find; here, I think. To think may be expressed by penser, croire or trouver. Penser refers rather to thought, croire to a belief, trouver to an opinion.

Sēh skon dē'.	That's what they say. I must <sup>10</sup> invite him.

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

- <sup>1</sup> It pleases me not at all.
<sup>2</sup> But it is quite to the fashion.
<sup>3</sup> I find it not at all as it is-necessary (i. e. as it should be).
<sup>4</sup> It is-not-necessary it to-do.
<sup>5</sup> Why is-it-not-necessary it to do.
<sup>6</sup> That she is not at all as it is-necessary (i. e. as it should be).
<sup>7</sup> Why is-it-not-necessary to invite.
<sup>8</sup> Before a noun or pronoun, he, she, it (or they) are rendered by ce instead of il. It is Mr. so and so = C'est Monsieur un tel; It is she = C'est elle. — <sup>9</sup> A man very-much as should be.
<sup>10</sup> That's what one says. It will-be-necessary that I —.

Pourquoi faire?

Il faut que j'écrive<sup>2</sup> à ma couturière de venir m'essayer ma robe.

10. Qu'est-ce que vous allez faire?<sup>3</sup>

Il faut que je sonne<sup>4</sup> la domestique.

Voulez-vous avoir l'obligeance de me passer la sonnette?

Bien certainement. La voici.

Ah! voici Jeannette.

Madame m'a fait demander?

Oui. Il me faut de l'encre.<sup>5</sup>

Celle de l'encrier est tout à fait séchée, madame.

Eh bien, il faut en aller<sup>6</sup> chercher.

Apportez-moi aussi des plumes et du papier à lettres.

Mais, madame, que faut-il que je fasse pour le dîner?

NOTES.

<sup>3</sup> Two forms of questions with What. Qu'est-ce que vous allez faire (lit.: What is it that you go to-do?); and, qu'allez-vous faire (lit.: What go you to-do?).

<sup>6</sup> First form, self-evident application.

Kŭ fō-tēl kŭzh fàs.	But, what must I make <sup>8</sup> for dinner?

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

- <sup>1</sup> It is-necessary that John have the carriage come.
- <sup>2</sup> That I write to my dressmaker to come to-me to-try my dress.
- <sup>3</sup> To pass me the bell.
- <sup>4</sup> Madame me has made to-call.

LECTURE.

À L'OPÉRA.

— Oh ! quelle splendeur ! On se croirait dans un palais de fées. Combien la salle peut-elle contenir de personnes ?

— En général, un peu plus de deux mille ; mais les jours de représentations à bénéfice, on délivre<sup>1</sup> plus de trois mille billets. Ces jours-là toutes les entrées de faveur sont suspendues. Car le public payant<sup>2</sup> envahit jusqu'à l'orchestre.

— Mais alors, le régisseur doit faire fortune.

— Pas toujours. Mais écoutez l'ouverture.

— Vraiment, cet orchestre<sup>3</sup> est admirable.

— Songez que chacun des musiciens dont il se compose est un artiste à part.<sup>4</sup>

— Dites plutôt : Heureux artistes !<sup>7</sup> Tous ces premiers sujets du chant ou de la danse sont millionnaires.

— Millionnaires !

— Rappelez-vous<sup>8</sup> les sommes fabuleuses qu'ont touchées Taglioni, Elsler, Jenny Lind et tant d'autres. Mais silence. On va chanter.

For self-study, should be read by means of the literal translation, then without it, and when thoroughly understood, read aloud in French.

READING.

AT THE OPERA.

— What splendor! One would-believe himself in a palace of fairies. How many the hall can (it) contain of persons?

— In general, a little more of two thousand; but (on) the days of benefits they deliver more of three thousand tickets. On those days, all free lists<sup>1</sup> are suspended. For the paying public invades even the orchestra-enclosure.

— But then, the manager must make (his) fortune.

— Not always. But listen to the overture.

— Really, this orchestra is admirable.

— Think (only) that each of-the musicians of-which it is composed<sup>2</sup> is an exceptional artist.

— And what a corps de ballet! Happy Parisians!

— Say rather: Happy artists! All these first artists<sup>3</sup> of-the singing or of the dancing are millionaires.

— Millionaires?

— Remember the fabulous sums which Taglioni, Elsler, Jenny Lind and so-many (of) others have received.<sup>4</sup> But silence. They are-going to-sing.

<sup>4</sup> A very common inversion: the fabulous sums which "touched" Taglioni and others, instead of, which Taglioni and others "touched."

THE PURCHASES.

In order to go and meet<sup>1</sup> Frederick, call at the Belle Jardinière, and return in<sup>3</sup> time for dinner, we will have to start almost immediately.

LITERAL TRANSLATION.

For to-go 'to-the meeting'<sup>2</sup> of Frederick, pass at the Belle Jardinière, and come-back at<sup>3</sup> time for dinner, it will-be-necessary that we may-start so-to-speak<sup>4</sup> at<sup>3</sup> the minute.

<sup>4</sup> Strictly : for thus to-speak.

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> To go 'to-the meeting' of Frederick.

<sup>2</sup> I do not believe that me I'll have. N. B. — Notice that to think in French is usually rendered either by croire (to believe) when it is a matter of belief; trouver (to find) when it is a matter of opinion; penser (to think) when it is a matter of thought. Yet this is not rigorous, or universal. For instance, What do you think of this action = Que pensez-vous de cette action? But I wish to guard the pupil against the insipid habit of using penser for everything.

2. Monsieur Petit, je viens vous solder mon compte.

Je ne vous dois que 200 francs.

Je puis me tromper, mais je le crois à peine.

<sup>2</sup> Remember that after numbers (or expressions of number, such as plusieurs, several; beaucoup, quelque chose, something, many; rien, nothing; personne, nobody), de is used before a following past participle.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> When "will" expresses futurity rather than willingness or desire, it is rendered in French by a termination only (rai, ras, ra, rons, rez, ront), I will make it, Je le ferai; Will you come, Viendrez-vous; You will let me have it, Vous me le laisserez; I'll select another, J'en choisirai un autre; etc. But when "will" expresses desire or willingness more especially than futurity, it is rendered by the independent verb vouloir. Thus, Will you go with me (i. e., Do you want, etc.), Voulez-vous aller avec moi? Answer: I will, Je veux bien; etc. Let the learner distinguish between these two cases.

It becomes you very well. It could not really become you better.<sup>9</sup>

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> When the suit will it be ready?

<sup>7</sup> It is all (that which) there-is of most new.

<sup>8</sup> How to-me goes it?

Quel est le prix de ce chapeau?

Il est de soixante-quinze francs.

Vous me le laisserez bien à moins.

Je voudrais bien; mais ça ne se pourrait pas.

Si je vous le laissais<sup>1</sup> à moins, j'y perdrais.

Eh bien, c'est trop cher. J'en choisirai un autre.

Montrez-moi un chapeau de paille.

6. Quel est le prix de celui-là?<sup>2</sup>

Il est de quarante-cinq francs. Faut-il l'envoyer à madame?

Non. Ce n'est pas assez bon marché.

Celui de ma tante,<sup>3</sup> qui est tout aussi beau, ne lui a pas coûté la moitié du prix.

Lequel<sup>4</sup> voulez-vous dire?

Celui qu'elle avait la dernière fois.

Enfin, puisque c'est vous, je vous laisserai celui-ci<sup>5</sup> à 40 francs.

Dans ce cas-là, envoyez-le moi. Voici ma nouvelle adresse.

LECTURE.

À PROPOS DE FEU.—N° 1.

— Quelle est cette histoire que vous alliez me<sup>1</sup> raconter?

— C'est à propos de Tennyson. — Le poète anglais était venu en France accompagné d'un<sup>2</sup> ami qui savait bien le français, ou du moins qui croyait bien le savoir.<sup>3</sup> Ils étaient installés dans leur hôtel. Un beau matin, comme l'ami se disposait à sortir, le poète lui dit en anglais: "Will you please tell the waiter not to let the fire go out?"

— L'autre, bien aise de pouvoir se rendre utile, quitta la chambre et, voyant un domestique dans le corridor, l'appela et lui dit: „Garçon! Ne laissez pas sortir le feu!„

— Le malheur voulut qu'il prononcât mal le dernier mot et dît fou au lieu de feu. „Comment!„ s'écria le garçon, alarmé. „Il y a un fou dans cette chambre!„ „Oui,„ répondit l'interprète, charmé d'avoir été si bien compris, „et ne le laissez pas sortir!„ — „Soyez tranquille,„<sup>4</sup> répliqua l'autre. „Il faudra qu'il me passe sur le corps avant de sortir de là!„

For self-study, to be read by means of translation, then without it, and when thoroughly understood, read aloud in French.

READING.

ABOUT FIRE. — N° 1.

— What is that story you were-going to-relate to-me?

— It's about Tennyson. — The English poet had come to France accompanied by a friend who knew French, or at least who thought he knew it well. They were settled in their hotel. One fine morning, as the friend was about to<sup>5</sup> go-out, the poet said to him in English: "Will you please tell the waiter not to let the fire go out?"

— The other, very glad to-be able himself to make useful, left the room, and seeing a servant in the hall, called him and said to-him: „Garçon! Ne laissez pas sortir le feu!„ — Misfortune would (have it) that he pronounced badly . . . . . and said fou instead of feu. "What!" exclaimed . . . . . "There is a fou (a man insane) in that room!" — "Yes," answered the interpreter, delighted to have been . . . . . "and do not let him<sup>6</sup> go out!" — "Be easy," replied the other. "He will have to pass me over the body before he goes out of there!"

<sup>5</sup> Lit. : disposed himself to. — <sup>6</sup> Le means either him or it.

NOTES.

SUPPLEMENTARY FORMS

In answering, the French do not employ the short forms he didn't; Yes, I am; No, he does not; but (for instance): going there; No, he does not speak of it. In other words, what-sentence in which it is again referred to (see Note 1). Hence, French, the learner must supply the pronouns and other words

1. Question. Do you have the book?

Answer { English, Yes, I have.
              { French, Yes, I have it (je l'ai).

2. Question. Did you tell him so?

Answer { English, I did.
              { French, I did tell him it (je le lui ai dit).

3. Question. Do you have bread?

Answer { English, Yes, I have.
              { French, Yes, I have some (j'en ai).

As seen here, en (meaning of it, of them, from it, from them, y (meaning to it, to them, there, etc.) are used as pronoun-objects in sentences like the above, where they are not present in before the verb.<sup>2</sup> The position of y is the same, except when

1. Did you speak to him about it? = Lui en avez-vous parlé?

Ans.: I did = Je lui en ai parlé (lit.: I of-it to-him have spoken).

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> This is not really restricted to answers, but holds wherever anything mentioned is again referred to. Thus, If you ever want any paper, come to me, I have plenty. French: I have plenty of it (j'en ai beaucoup).

<sup>2</sup> Some or any before nouns is du, de la, de l', or des; (or de); as already known to the pupil. Some paper = du papier, etc. But, some or any with verbs = en. Ex.: Have you bread? Ans., Yes I have some = Oui, j'en ai. No, I have not any = Non, je n'en ai pas.

<sup>3</sup> This is the case even if other pronoun-objects are present, en

IN FRENCH.

usual in English. That is, they will not say: Yes, I have; No, Yes, I have seen him; No, he didn't give me any; Yes, I am ever has already been mentioned must be represented in any when having such curtailed English sentences to render in necessary to complete the sentence. Examples:

4. Question. Did Mr. X give you some money?

Answer { English, No, he didn't.
 { French, No, he didn't give me any.
 Non, il ne m'en a pas donné.

5. Question. Have you a pen?

Answer { English, Yes, I have one.
 { French, Yes, I have one of them (j'en ai une).

6. Question. Are you going there?

Answer { English, Yes, I am.
 { French, Yes, I am going there (oui, j'y vais).

for it, for them, about it, about them, some, any,<sup>2</sup> from there) and as well as me, te, le, etc., and, like them, must be supplied English. N. B.—The position of en is always immediately en is also present.<sup>4</sup> Examples:

2. He gave me some = Il m'en a donné.

3. I sent him one = Je lui en ai envoyé un (lit.: I to-him of-them have sent one).

NOTES.

coming then between them and the verb. This is seen in the examples given, where en is between lui and ai parlé in the first sentence, between m' and a donné in the second, between lui and ai envoyé in the third; while y is between l' and ai mené in the fifth. Of course, when the verb is in the imperative-affirmative, en and y come after the verb, like all other pronoun-objects, according to the exception to the general rule (see page 241): Give me some = Donnez-m'en; Go there = Allez-y. (But: Do not give me any = Ne m'en donnez pas, Do not go there = N'y allez pas). — <sup>4</sup> This is rare.

4. Are you speaking of him to me = Me parlez-vous de lui ?

Ans. : Yes, I am = Oui, je vous en<sup>1</sup> parle (lit. : Yes, I to-you about-him speak).

7. Ne vous faut-il pas aussi des aiguilles ?

Non, j'en ai déjà.

Peut-être madame aurait-elle besoin de boutons ?

Je crois que j'en ai. Mais faites-m'en toujours voir.

En voici de bien jolis,<sup>2</sup> madame.

Combien les vendez-vous ?

Trois francs la douzaine.

Ce n'est pas bon marché.

Veuillez remarquer, madame, que c'est de bien belle marchandise.

Eh bien, donnez-m'en<sup>3</sup> une douzaine.

Envoyez tout cela chez moi.

Très bien. Tout y sera dans une heure.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> As seen here, en is also (but rarely) used of persons, in the sense of about (or of) him, about (or of) her, about (or of) them. Y is also (but rarely) used of persons, in the sense of to him, to her, to them.

<sup>2</sup> Notice that in sentences where the word ones comes in English, no corresponding word is used in French. English : Here are some very nice ones. French : Of-them (en) here-are some (de) very nice.

<sup>3</sup> As seen here, m' (and t') are used instead of moi and toi after the imperative-affirmative, when en is present. Give me = Donnez-moi ; Give me some = Donnez-m'en.

5. I took him there = Je l'y ai mené (lit.: I him there have taken).

6. There is some = Il y en a.

LECTURE.

À PROPOS DE FEU. — N° 2.*

— M. Wilson, car tel était son nom, partit très satisfait, n'ayant saisi autre chose que les protestations chaleureuses du garçon, mais ne se doutant nullement de ce que ce dernier disait en réalité.

— Or, † l'après-midi, à trois heures, la colonie américaine donnait un grand dîner en l'honneur de M. Tennyson. Tous les convives s'y trouvaient, y compris M. Wilson. Seul, le poète lauréat manquait à l'appel.

— On attendit une demi-heure, une heure, deux heures, lorsque l'alarme devenant irrésistible, les convives se rendirent en masse à l'hôtel.

— Arrivés là, leurs craintes furent loin d'être<sup>1</sup> calmées. En effet, l'hôtel semblait tout sens dessus dessous.<sup>2</sup> D'ailleurs, Monsieur Wilson n'eut pas plus tôt atteint<sup>3</sup> la marche du haut que le domestique auquel il avait parlé le matin lui cria: „Ah! Monsieur, vous aviez bien raison. C'est le fou le plus forcené que j'aie jamais vu de ma vie. Mais je vous avais dit qu'il ne sortirait pas de là, et, vous voyez, il y est ! „

— De son côté, Monsieur Tennyson n'entendit pas

ABOUT FIRE.—N° 2.

—Mr. Wilson, for such was his name, went-away quite satisfied, having caught no other thing than the warm protestations of-the waiter, and suspecting † not-at-all (of) that which this latter was-saying in reality.

—Now, in the afternoon, at 3 o'clock, the American colony was giving a great dinner in honor of Mr. Tennyson. All the guests themselves there found,<sup>1</sup> therein included<sup>2</sup> Mr. Wilson. Alone, the poet laureate lacked at the roll-call.<sup>3</sup>

—They waited a half hour, an hour, two hours, when the alarm becoming irresistible, the guests themselves betook altogether to the hotel.

—Arrived there, their fears were far from being calmed. In fact, the hotel seemed to be topsy-turvy. And, Mr. Wilson had no sooner reached the step at-the top, than the servant to-whom he had spoken (in) the morning, to-him-cried-out: “Ah! sir. You had indeed right. He is the madman the most violent that I have ever seen of my life. But I had told you that he would not go out of there, and you see, he is in there!”<sup>4</sup>

—On his part,<sup>5</sup> Mr. Tennyson heard no sooner the plus tôt la voix de ses amis qu'il ouvrit sa porte et s'écria: „Enfin! vous voilà. Vous me sauvez la vie! Je n'ai jamais vu des fous furieux comme ces Français. Voilà deux heures qu'ils cherchent à me tuer, simplement parce que j'ai voulu sortir!„

— Naturellement, tout s'expliqua, et M. Wilson apprit qu'au lieu de, „Ne laissez pas sortir le feu„, il aurait dû dire,<sup>1</sup> „Ne laissez pas éteindre le feu„. Car alors même s'il eût prononcé fou au lieu de feu, il aurait été compris. Mais M. Wilson avait appris le français par une méthode dite grammaticale, et qui consiste, non pas à savoir la grammaire (car la plupart du temps ceux qui étudient de cette manière ne la savent pas), mais à menuiser des phrases au moyen de règles qu'on ne sait pas et qui, même si on les sait, nous font à tout bout de champ<sup>2</sup> dire des absurdités, comme dans le cas de M. Wilson. Ceux qui étudient ainsi me font l'effet de danseurs de corde qui voudraient danser sans corde.

— Mais enfin, la grammaire . . . . .

— Est utile; je dirais même, en dépit de John Locke, presque indispensable. Mais la conversation au moyen de phrases idiomatiques et nécessaires, c'est là la corde. La grammaire n'est jamais que le balancier.

<sup>1</sup> Lit.: He should-have ought-to (dû) say. Anglice: He ought to have said.

voice of his friends than he opened his door and exclaimed: "At last! There you are. You save my life!"<sup>1</sup> I have never seen such<sup>2</sup> furious madmen as these French. Here are two hours that they are-trying<sup>3</sup> to kill me, simply because I wanted to-go-out."

— Naturally, everything was explained, and Mr. Wilson learned that instead of "Let not go-out the fire," he ought to have said, "Let not extinguish the fire." For then, even if he had pronounced fōō instead of fû, he would have been understood. But, Mr. Wilson had learned the French by a method so-called<sup>4</sup> grammatical, and which consists not in knowing (the) grammar (for the most of-the time those who study of this manner, know it not), but in carpen-tering-together sentences by means of rules which one knows not, and which, even if one knows them, make us at every turn say absurdities, as in the case of Mr. Wilson. Those who study thus, appear to me as<sup>5</sup> rope-dancers who would want to dance without rope.

— But now, (the) grammar . . . . .

— Is useful; I would-say even, in spite of John Locke, almost indispensable. But (the) conversation by means of idiomatic and necessary phrases, that is the rope. (The) grammar is never but the balancing-pole.

Remark.

It would show = Ça montrerait. Observe that would is rendered here by the conditional termination (rait), and not by voudrait. Thus, would is rendered by one of the conditional terminations (rais, rait, rions, riez, raient) whenever it expresses a condition whether understood or stated. Here If I were to buy it, is the condition understood. N. B. This applies also to should and could.

On the other hand, whenever would expresses desire or willingness, rather than condition, it is rendered by voudrais, voudrait, voudrions, etc.

LECTURE.

UNE VISITE AU SALON.

— En quoi diffèrent-ils donc?<sup>8</sup>

<sup>3</sup> Has arisen (lit.: itself has raised) with us to a height which gives to the French school the precedence (lit.: the step) over.

— Mais nous voici arrivés devant les marines.<sup>5</sup>

— Je ne vois rien ici de bien supérieur, si ce n'est<sup>6</sup> cette Vue de Naples. Mais comme ce ciel est bien réussi!<sup>7</sup> Voyez la surface de la mer<sup>8</sup> fouettée<sup>9</sup> par le vent. Y a-t-il rien de plus vrai<sup>10</sup> que ces vagues<sup>11</sup> qui blanchissent<sup>12</sup> au loin?

— En effet, c'est un bien joli tableau.

— C'est mon avis. Mais passons maintenant à la peinture<sup>13</sup> historique. Que pensez-vous de ce Detaille?<sup>14</sup> — C'est très correct et bien exécuté. Mais voyez comme cela est pâle<sup>15</sup> à côté de<sup>16</sup> ce de Neuville!<sup>14</sup>

— En effet! Quelle admirable toile!<sup>17</sup> Quelle composition! Quelle vérité! Cela respire.<sup>18</sup> Cela vit.<sup>19</sup> Quel est le nom du tableau?

FRENCH.

1. Il faut que nous partions<sup>1</sup> à la minute.

Je ne peux pas. Il faut que je fasse mon courrier.

À qui faut-il que vous écriviez?

À mon agent d'affaires à New York.

Pourquoi ne lui avez-vous pas écrit la semaine dernière?

Je lui ai écrit il y a un mois, mais il ne m'a pas répondu.

Mais, qu'y a-t-il?

Je vois ma femme qui vient par ici.

Elle a l'air toute bouleversée.<sup>4</sup> Je me demande ce qu'elle a.

Qu'y a-t-il donc, ma chère?<sup>5</sup>

NOTES.

<sup>3</sup> After rien, quelque chose, personne, quelqu'un, or any other indefinite expression of quantity, de is used before an adjective or participle. See page 525.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Venir de (to come from), is used idiomatically for To have just done a thing. English, I have just upset the what-not. French, I come from upsetting (lit.: To-upset) the what-not. — <sup>2</sup> To whose = à . . . . duquel; à . . . . de laquelle etc., according to number and gender.

<sup>3</sup> Dont (or de qui) = of whom, whose. Notice that dont comes exactly in the same place as in English, but the word following it in English is placed farther on, i. e. after the verb, if it happens to be the object of this verb. Ex.: Le monsieur dont la propriété est à Versailles (propriété being just after dont, because it is the subject of est). But: le monsieur dont vous vouliez acheter la propriété (propriété being last because it is the object of acheter).

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Duquel (compound of de and lequel), de laquelle, desquels desquelles, of whom, whose, of which. They are used for whose, instead of dont (or, de qui) whenever whose is preceded in English by a preposition. Ex.: The gentleman whose son, etc., = Le monsieur dont le fils, etc.; but, the gentleman 'to' whose son, etc., = Le monsieur au fils duquel. Notice that duquel, etc., do not follow the first noun as dont, but the second, instead. English, To whose son. French, To the son of-whom.

Thus: That's easy to do = C'est facile à faire, etc. — <sup>4</sup> Or, Ce sont les miens; Ce sont ceux-là, etc.

*Speaking of a man: He is tall; We cannot say,
Speaking of a table: It is round; We could not say,*

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Or, les billets de seconde classe.

<sup>4</sup> Nouns with avoir govern the preposition de after them, if they have the definite article. They govern the preposition à, if they have the partitive article. I have not the time to do that = Je n'ai pas le temps de faire cela. But, I have no time to lose = Je n'ai pas de temps à perdre.

* At least, ordinarily. Speaking in a general way, however, we might say, here: "That's round," and, hence, in French also: C'est rond. Likewise, referring to a picture, we could say, Oui, il est bien beau; or, Oui, c'est bien beau (meaning, in the latter case, "That's beautiful").

That is tall. Hence, French; Il est grand.

*That's** round. Hence, French; Elle est ronde.

PARIS, le 20 juin, 1888.

MA CHÈRE AMIE,

Voici deux semaines que nous sommes à Paris.<sup>1</sup> Après nous être reposés un jour, nous avons commencé à en visiter les mille et une merveilles. Inutile<sup>2</sup> de vous décrire, à vous qui avez si longtemps demeuré dans cette ville unique,<sup>3</sup> toutes les beautés sur lesquelles nous avons dû nous extasier.<sup>4</sup> Les Champs-Élysées, L'Arc de Triomphe,<sup>5</sup> le Bois de Boulogne, le nouvel Opéra, Cluny, le Luxembourg,<sup>6</sup> le Louvre, et tout le reste. Demain, nous irons voir les Catacombes.<sup>7</sup> Après-demain, nous prendrons le rapide pour Nice.<sup>8</sup>

Monsieur et Madame Morgan vous font bien des compliments.

Pensez à nous.<sup>9</sup> Malgré le plaisir que nous avons ici, nous n'oublions ni les amis, ni le pays.<sup>10</sup> Home, Sweet Home, vous savez.

Écrivez-nous à Rome.

CORRESPONDENCE.

PARIS, June 20th, 1888.

MY DEAR FRIEND,

We have now been two weeks in Paris. After resting<sup>1</sup> (for) a day, we began to visit the thousand and one marvels in it. It would be useless to describe to you, who have lived so long in this unique city, all the beauties before which we have been obliged<sup>2</sup> to go into raptures. The Champs-Élysées, the Arc de Triomphe, the Bois de Boulogne, the new Opera, Cluny, the Luxembourg, the Louvre, and the rest. To-morrow, we are going to visit<sup>3</sup> the Catacombs. Day after to-morrow, we take<sup>4</sup> the lightning express for Nice.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan send you their high regards.<sup>5</sup>

Think about us.<sup>6</sup> Notwithstanding the pleasure we have here, we forget neither friends nor fatherland. Home, sweet Home, you know.

Write us to Rome.

Yours very affectionately,<sup>7</sup>

Emily Smith.

<sup>1</sup> Lit.: After ourselves to-have (i. e. having) reposed.

<sup>2</sup> We have had-to (dû, past participle of devoir).

PLEASURES AND HEALTH.

I have not seen anything of Mrs. Carrière for the last two weeks, and I wonder if† she is ill.<sup>1</sup>

Don't you believe it; for I have just met her on the Boulevards, on the other side of the Gymnase (theater).

LITERAL TRANSLATION.

There-are at least fifteen days that I have not seen Mrs. Carrière, and I ask myself if she could-be ill.

Of-it believe absolutely nothing; for I come from<sup>2</sup> meeting<sup>3</sup> her on the Boulevards, of<sup>4</sup> the other side of the Gymnase.

<sup>2</sup> Venir de, to come from, is employed idiomatically in the sense of having just done the thing in question. I have just arrived = Je viens d'arriver (lit.: I come from arriving). He had just gone out = Il venait de sortir (lit.: He came from going-out). Never forget the de.

<sup>3</sup> Strictly: From to-meet her. All prepositions, except en, govern the infinitive present. — <sup>4</sup> Anglice, on.

† Si = whether, here. Hence, the conditional (serait). See page 234.

FRENCH.

1. Il y a au moins quinze jours que je n'ai vu madame Carrière.

Croyez-vous qu'elle soit indisposée?
 Allons donc! Elle fait semblant d'être malade.
 Que voulez-vous dire?
 Je l'ai vue hier, en revenant du club.

Elle ne paraissait<sup>1</sup> nullement<sup>2</sup> malade.
 En êtes-vous bien sûr?<sup>3</sup>
 J'en suis positif.
 D'ailleurs, je la vois presque tous les jours.
 De sorte<sup>4</sup> que je le sais.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Paraissait, imperfect of paraître.

<sup>2</sup> Lit.: She seemed in-no-wise ill. Remember that pas is never present in any sentence in which figures any other negation.

<sup>4</sup> So, meaning thus, = ainsi; but, meaning so that = de sorte que. So I told him = De sorte que je lui ai dit. Remember, also, that so, in such sentences as I said so, I thought so, is rendered by le, or cela. Je l'ai dit, Je pensais cela. Note that so before an adjective = si. You look so pale, Vous avez l'air si pâle. Si also means as (in comparisons). He is not as tall as I, Il n'est pas si grand que moi.

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

- <sup>1</sup> There are at-the least 15 days that I (n') have seen, etc.
<sup>2</sup> That she be ill? — <sup>3</sup> Come now; strictly, Let-us go-then.
<sup>6</sup> She seemed in-no-wise ill. Also, aucunement malade (ō-kün-man'). — <sup>7</sup> Of-it are you very sure?
<sup>8</sup> Almost every day, presque tous les jours, or, à peu près (about. Lit.: To little near) tous les jours. Tous les soirs, every evening. Tous les deux jours, every other day. Tous les deux soirs, every other evening. — <sup>9</sup> In (such) sort that.

NOTE. — 1. After il y a, the French use ne (or, n') when during the time mentioned. This is the case in the sentence, transposed into, I have not seen Mrs. Carrière for at least two n'ai vu madame Carrière. (Notice here, that the past indefinite,

2. If, however, the action referred to has been taking place imperfect, takes the place of the past indefinite).* Ex.:

Have you had these books for a long time? =
I had had these books for a long time =

2. Jean, est-il venu quelqu'un pour me voir?

Non, madame, personne<sup>1</sup> n'est venu.

On a sonné. Peut-être que c'est elle.

C'est Monsieur d'Argenton qui voudrait vous voir.

Faites-le entrer au salon, et dites-lui que j'y serai dans quelques instants.

Voulez-vous que j'allume le feu?<sup>2</sup>

Oui, allumez le feu. Voici des allumettes . . . . .

Ah! Monsieur, vous vous faites rare.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Whether personne and rien are subjects or objects of a verb, ne has to be used. Personne n'est venu; Rien n'est venu; Je n'ai vu personne; Je n'ai rien vu.

<sup>2</sup> With verbs expressing desire or will, a second verb is placed in the subjunctive, if its subject is different from that of the first. Do you want to light the fire = Voulez-vous allumer le feu. But: Do you want me to light the fire = Voulez-vous que j'allume le feu (lit.: That I light, etc.).

* We would also say: Il n'y a pas longtemps que je l'ai vu (no ne), It is not long since I saw him; because here we are not trying to state that we didn't see him, but, on the contrary, to fix the time when we did.

ever the action is really referred to as not having taken place It is at least two weeks since I saw Mrs. Carrière, since it could be weeks. Hence, French: Il y a au moins quinze jours que je nite (have seen) is used).

during the time mentioned, ne is not used (and the present, or

Y a-t-il longtemps que vous avez ces livres?†
Il y avait longtemps que j'avais ces livres.††

Fēt rār'.

John, did somebody call to see me?<sup>1</sup>

No, ma'am. Nobody came.<sup>2</sup>

Some one<sup>3</sup> has rung. May be it is she.<sup>4</sup>

No, ma'am. It is Mr. d'A. who would like to see you.

Show him into the parlor, and tell him<sup>5</sup> I will be there<sup>6</sup> in a few moments.

Do you want me to light a fire?<sup>6</sup>

Yes, light the fire. Here are some matches. . . . .

Well! you are getting to be a stranger.<sup>7</sup>

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> Is there (il) come somebody for (see p. 312) to-see me? Could also say: Quelqu'un est-il venu?

<sup>2</sup> Nobody (n') is come.

<sup>3</sup> On = They, we, some one, people, etc. Lit.: One has rung.

<sup>5</sup> When him (or her) really means to him (or to-her), translate by lui. The French really say: Tell to a person. Ex.: Dites à mon frère, Tell my brother.

† Is there (a) long-time that you have these books? Notice that the French never say "a long time," but only, "long-time," longtemps.

†† There-was (a) long time that I had these books.

Il y a tout un temps qu'on ne vous a vu.

J'ai été à la campagne.

Puis-je m'informer de votre santé et de celle de toute votre famille?

Merci. Nous sommes tous bien portants, en ce moment.

Je suis bien aise<sup>1</sup> de vous entendre dire cela.<sup>2</sup>

Et chez vous?

Tout le monde se porte bien, merci.

Quand avez-vous reçu des nouvelles de monsieur votre fils?

Il y a fort longtemps que nous n'avons eu de ses nouvelles.

• Nous attendons de ses nouvelles de jour en jour.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Adjectives of feeling take the preposition de after them. I am glad to see you, Je suis content de vous voir.

<sup>2</sup> Entendre, alone, means simply, to hear (some one speaking, a sound, music, etc.). To hear, meaning, to hear anything told = entendre dire. To hear, meaning, to hear anything talked about = entendre parler de. Ex.: Have you heard that Mr. X is here? = Avez-vous entendu dire que M. X est ici? Have you heard about it? = En avez-vous entendu parler? — <sup>3</sup> Lit.: I leave you much to (my) regret.

Tōō tun tan kon n'vōō zā vū'.	We have not seen you for a long time. <sup>1</sup>
Min-for-mā.	I was in the country.
	May I inquire about <sup>2</sup> your health and that of your family?
Tōōs bē-in por-tan'.	Thank you. We are all in good health, <sup>3</sup> just now.
Bē-in nēz' dū vōō zan-tan'-dr' dēr sū-là'.	I am very glad to hear it. <sup>4</sup>
	And at your house?
	Everybody is well, thank you. <sup>5</sup>
Kan tā-vā-vōōr-sū . . . . . fēs?	When did you have news from your son?
For lon-tan'.	We have not had any news for a long time. <sup>6</sup>
	We are daily expecting news from him. <sup>7</sup>

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>1</sup> There is quite a time that we (n') have seen you.

<sup>6</sup> There is (a) very long-time that we had any of his news. Notice, that while depuis (since) must never be used after il y a, (but que, instead), depuis would be used if il y a were not there. One could say, Nous n'avons pas reçu de ses nouvelles depuis longtemps.

<sup>7</sup> We expect of his news from day to day. — <sup>8</sup> To leave me.

Ma femme m'attend alors.

Nous allons à une conférence de M. About.

Il faut que je sois de retour à la maison avant deux heures.

Alors, je ne vous retiens pas.

Entre l'arbre et l'écorce, il ne faut pas mettre le doigt.

Vous plaisantez toujours.

Eh bien, quand nous ferez-vous l'honneur de renouveler votre visite?

Je reviendrai sous peu, je vous le promets.

N'y manquez pas.

Ne vous dérangez pas, je vous prie.

Je vous accompagnerai jusqu'à<sup>1</sup> la porte.

Faites mes compliments à monsieur.

Je n'y manquerai pas. Bien<sup>2</sup> des amitiés à votre dame.

Madame, j'ai l'honneur de vous saluer.

Adieu, Monsieur d'Argenton.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> There are three ways of saying until: (1) Jusque, before an adverb. Ex.: Jusque là, as far as that (lit.: Until there). (2) Jusqu'à Paris, as far as Paris (lit.: Until-to Paris). (3) Jusqu'à ce que, before a verb. Ex.: Jusqu'à ce que je revienne, Until I return (lit.: Until to this, that I return).

<sup>2</sup> Bien is sometimes used in the sense of many. Des (not de) is used after it, because it is not really an adverb of quantity.

EXERCISE.

UN CHAPITRE D'EXPLICATIONS.*

How do you say<sup>1</sup> Never mind, in French? — N'importe.<sup>2</sup> — Well, how do you translate<sup>3</sup> that? — Let me see it.<sup>4</sup> Ah, Vous mettez la charrue devant les bœufs.<sup>5</sup> —
Well, what does it mean?<sup>6</sup> — It<sup>7</sup> means, You are putting the cart before the horse. — How do you pronounce<sup>8</sup> the last word? — What word<sup>9</sup> do you mean? — Bœufs.
— That is pronounced<sup>10</sup> bû. — But how do you say Is that right, in French? — They say, Est-ce bien? or, Est-ce juste? Never say, Est-ce raison?<sup>11</sup> — And, Is that wrong? — Est-ce mal? Never say, Est-ce tort?<sup>11</sup> — But, how do you say, On the floor? — Par terre. — And, On the carpet? — Generally,<sup>12</sup> par terre.<sup>13</sup> — And, Up stairs?
— En haut.<sup>14</sup> — And, Down stairs? — En bas. — Many thanks.

LECTURE.

UN MOT DE LITTÉRATURE.

— Vous êtes fatigué, n'est-ce pas?

— Je crois bien. Je n'en peux plus.<sup>1</sup> Je viens du Musée de Cluny, où j'ai vu une superbe collection d'armes. Celle du XVI<sup>e</sup> siècle,<sup>2</sup> surtout, m'a vivement intéressé. Quelle époque, tout de même,<sup>3</sup> que ce XVI<sup>e</sup> siècle!<sup>4</sup> Un âge de renouvellement<sup>5</sup> artistique et littéraire; l'âge de Ronsard,<sup>6</sup> de Rabelais,<sup>6</sup> de Montaigne,<sup>6</sup> les précurseurs immédiats de Malherbe,<sup>7</sup> ce poète et grammairien qui réduisit<sup>8</sup> la langue française à des règles sévères, et dont<sup>9</sup> Boileau<sup>10</sup> a dit plus tard:

Fit sentir<sup>12</sup> dans ses vers<sup>13</sup> une juste cadence.<sup>14</sup>

Fē san-tēr dan sěh vēr ū-nǔ zhūs-tǔ ká-dan'-s'.

* For instance: In what manner was the sixteenth century a remarkable age? Who were the most illustrious French writers of that period? What did Boileau say of Malherbe? From what languages was the Romance language formed? Into what dialects was it divided? etc., etc.

Mais me voilà parti encore une fois,<sup>1</sup> et tout cela vous ennuie.

— Non ; bien au contraire. J'aime à vous entendre parler<sup>2</sup> littérature. D'ailleurs, je n'ai jamais bien su<sup>3</sup> distinguer les grandes périodes de la littérature française. Ne pourriez-vous pas m'en dire quelques mots ?

— Peut-être. Mais, par où commencer ?<sup>4</sup>

— Commencez par le commencement. Ce sera plus simple.

— Eh bien ; vous savez que du mélange<sup>5</sup> de la langue latine et de celle des Gaulois<sup>6</sup> sortit<sup>7</sup> enfin la langue romane.<sup>8</sup> Cette dernière<sup>9</sup> se divisa en deux grands dialectes : le dialecte du sud, ou langue d'oc,<sup>10</sup> et le dialecte du nord, ou langue d'oïl.<sup>11</sup> La première était la langue des Troubadours,<sup>12</sup> ces aventureux<sup>13</sup> poètes qui erraient<sup>14</sup> en chantant les tournois,<sup>15</sup> la beauté et l'amour. La langue d'oïl, au contraire, fut celle des Trouvères, qui se plaisaient<sup>16</sup> dans les récits guerriers<sup>17</sup> et dans les fabliaux<sup>18</sup> malins et grivois.<sup>19</sup> C'est aux Trouvères que nous devons<sup>20</sup> la Chanson de Roland,<sup>21</sup> et Lancelot du Lac.<sup>22</sup> C'est de<sup>23</sup> la langue

— Non. Ce fut bien<sup>7</sup> avant cela. C'est au<sup>8</sup> XI<sup>e</sup> siècle que le clergé fit<sup>9</sup> donner,<sup>9</sup> sous le nom de Miracles ou de Mystères, des pièces où l'on reproduisait principalement des scènes tirées<sup>10</sup> du<sup>11</sup> Nouveau Testament ou des<sup>11</sup> traditions. Ces pièces étaient parfois<sup>12</sup> d'une longueur si démesurée,<sup>13</sup> qu'il fallait des journées pour en<sup>14</sup> représenter une seule.<sup>15</sup> Le Mystère de la Passion,<sup>16</sup> reproduit de nos jours<sup>17</sup> à Oberammergau, ne durait pas moins de vingt-cinq jours!

CORRESPONDANCE.

Boston, le 1<sup>er</sup> juillet.

MA CHÈRE LOUISE,

Votre bonne lettre du 22 dernier m'est parvenue<sup>1</sup> hier. Nous avons tous été très heureux de savoir que vous vous plaisiez si bien<sup>2</sup> à Paris. Mais comme vous y restez peu de temps!<sup>3</sup>

À Rome, abstenez-vous<sup>4</sup> de fruits et de mets indigestibles,<sup>5</sup> aussi bien que d'eau glacée, cette boisson pourtant<sup>6</sup> si chère au cœur américain. Je n'ai pas besoin de vous recommander d'éviter<sup>7</sup> les excursions nocturnes à la Daisy Miller, mais je voudrais vous conseiller de ne pas vous fatiguer, de ne pas rester trop longtemps dans les églises froides et humides, et de ne pas vous promener le soir dans les rues et dans les faubourgs<sup>8</sup> de la ville immortelle. Avec ces précautions, il n'y a pas plus de danger à Rome qu'à Boston; peut-être<sup>9</sup> pas autant.<sup>10</sup>

Nous jouissons tous d'une<sup>11</sup> bonne santé. Nous comptons<sup>12</sup> partir à la campagne la semaine prochaine. Écrivez-nous à Newport.

Votre bien fidèle amie,

Catherine Fuller.

<sup>11</sup> Lit.: We enjoy all of. — <sup>12</sup> Expect. Lit.: Count, reckon.

FRENCH.

1. Je me demande s'il serait malade.

De qui parlez-vous?

Je parle de mon petit garçon.

Qu'a-t-il donc?

On lui donne trop<sup>2</sup> à faire à l'école.

Oui, il étudie beaucoup,<sup>3</sup> cette année.

La semaine dernière, il avait l'air si pâle.

Je crains bien qu'il ne devienne malade.

Je crois que je ferai<sup>4</sup> venir le médecin.

Je ne crois pas qu'il soit<sup>5</sup> en ville.

J'y suis allé avant-hier, mais il venait de partir.

Il est allé à la campagne pour quelques jours.

 NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Tant = so much, or so many. Be careful never to say si tant, nor tant beaucoup, (nor si beaucoup), as often done. Tant is always used alone.

<sup>2</sup> Trop = too much, or too many. Never say trop beaucoup, as frequently done. Beaucoup is always used alone.

<sup>3</sup> Never say très beaucoup for very much. Beaucoup means either much (many), or very much (very many), and is always used alone.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Or, te sens-tu. I rarely introduce the familiar form in this book, and advise learners not to use it, for two reasons. First, it is always readily understood in reading. Secondly, it need never be used at all in speaking. Thus, by keeping to the ordinary form (vous), many annoying mistakes are avoided by students, who will find they will always know when to use the familiar form by the time they have had sufficient intercourse with French people to warrant such use.

<sup>9</sup> That goes without to-say (i. e. saying). In English, all prepositions (except to and its compounds) govern the present participle. In French, all prepositions (except en) govern the infinitive present. ENGLISH: Before sleeping, after running, for writing, etc. FRENCH: Before sleeping (avant de dormir); After to-have run (après avoir couru); For to-write (pour écrire). But, en écrivant (when, while, by, or through writing). — <sup>10</sup> Have care that he take. Subj. of prendre.

Fifth Cardinal Rule.

USE OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE.<sup>1</sup>

The subjunctive (from the Latin subjunctivus, subjoined) is used only in subordinate or secondary clauses.<sup>2</sup> It expresses the uncertainty or emotion existing in the mind of the speaker as to the action referred to. Hence:

FIRST GENERAL RULE.

The subjunctive is used after que,* qui, or dont,† whenever doubt (or negation) is implied. Thus, we will say:

I know he will come = Je sais qu'il viendra.

The Indicative,<sup>3</sup> because no doubt is entertained by the speaker.
But:

Do you think he will come = Croyez-vous qu'il vienne.

The Subjunctive, because there is doubt implied in the very question.

I don't think he will come = Je ne crois pas qu'il vienne.

The Subjunctive, because there is negation and uncertainty implied.

N. B. — The proper application of this first rule, would solve almost every case of subjunctive; but, in order to illustrate and place the case more fully before the student, I subjoin the following subordinate rules which all spring, more or less directly, from the above general principle:

<sup>1</sup> The subjunctive mood has four tenses (present, past, imperfect, pluperfect), and (practically) is always preceded by que, qui, or dont (see page 528). It is therefore a dependent mood, used in clauses united to others by qui, que, or dont. See note †, this page.

<sup>2</sup> Example: Je doute qu'il vienne. Principal clause, Je doute; subordinate clause, Il vienne; word uniting the two, qu' (for que). Or, C'est le seul qui puisse le faire. Principal clause, C'est le seul; subordinate clause, Puisse le faire; word uniting the two, qui.

<sup>3</sup> The indicative mood, as known, is made up of the following tenses: Present, imperfect, preterit, future, (and their compounds, Past indefinite, etc.).

* And many conjunctions compounded with que, as: afin que, à moins que, quoique, etc. For list, see page 527.

† Also, sometimes, où; or lequel, laquelle, etc., (with a prepos.).

SUBORDINATE RULES.

The Subjunctive is used :

1. After interrogative or negative sentences. Ex. :

What do you want me to do? Que voulez-vous que je fasse?
I don't want you to speak, Je ne veux pas que vous parliez.

2. After verbs (or, sentences) expressing pleasure, wonder, surprise, will, desire, command, doubt, fear :

I am glad you saw him = Je suis content que vous l'ayez vu.<sup>1</sup>
I am sorry you are ill = Je suis fâché que vous soyez malade.<sup>2</sup>
I doubt if he 'll come = *Je doute<sup>3</sup> qu'il vienne.**

3. After impersonal verbs :<sup>4</sup>

Il est temps que nous partions.

4. After a relative clause† into which enters one of the following : le plus, le moins, le mieux, le meilleur, le pire, le moindre, le seul, le premier, le dernier, or peu ; or, any superlative. Example :

The only one who can do it = Le seul qui puisse le faire.

It is the first I heard about = C'est le premier dont j'aie entendu parler.

The best horse I know = Le meilleur cheval que je connaisse.<sup>5</sup>

EXCEPTIONS.

The subjunctive is not used :

1. After interrogative or negative sentences, or any

* Notice that in order to have the subjunctive in the second clause, the two verbs must (generally) be of different subjects. Thus, je and vous are the subjects in the first and second sentences, je and il in the third. When the two verbs have the same subject, the second is (generally) put in the infinitive : [I am glad to see you = Je suis content de vous voir (I being the subject both of to be glad and to see)].

† I. e. a clause united to the one following it by who, which (what, that), whose (of which), where, in which, etc., (qui, que, dont, où, etc.).

verb, if the speaker is certain about the fact advanced. Ex.:

Do you know your brother is ill? = Savez-vous que votre frère est malade?

He does not know he is ill = Il ne sait pas qu'il est malade.

2. Nor, after the verbs croire, espérer, penser, used affirmatively. Ex.: Croyez-vous qu'il le fasse. (Lit.: May-do it.)

Subjunctive, because croire is used interrogatively.

But: "Je crois qu'il le fera."

Indicative (future), because croire is used affirmatively.

3. Nor, after the impersonal verbs il y a, il paraît, il me semble,<sup>1</sup> il est certain, il est vrai, (and a few others which express a positive fact), if, however, they are used affirmatively. Ex.:

It seems to me she is wrong = Il me semble qu'elle a tort. But: It does not, etc. = *Il ne me semble pas qu'elle ait tort.**

Ne before the Subjunctive.

The following verbs and locutions of a restrictive nature require ne before a following verb in the subjunctive:

(1) Empêcher, to prevent; prendre garde, craindre avoir peur, and trembler; if used affirmatively. Ex.:

Prenez garde qu'il ne tombe.<sup>1</sup>

Je crains qu'il ne devienne malade.

But not if they are negative or interrogative:

Je ne crains pas qu'il vienne<sup>2</sup> (no ne).

Craignez-vous qu'il le dise (no ne)?

(2) A moins que, de peur que, de crainte que. Ex.:

À moins qu'il n'écrive bientôt, je vais partir.

---

<sup>1</sup> Take care he does not fall. Lit.: Take care that he may-not-fall. Notice that a few verbs (such as empêcher, ordonner, prendre garde) may have either the subjunctive with que after them, or the infinitive. Ex.: Prevent him from doing it = Empêchez qu'il ne fasse cela; or, Empêchez-le de le faire. Take care not to fall = Prenez garde que vous ne tombiez; or, (much more common), Prenez garde de tomber. — <sup>2</sup> I don't fear he will (lit.: may) come.

* For special cases of the Subjunctive, see page .

UN MOT DE LITTÉRATURE.—2.

qu'il<sup>1</sup> joue avec ses condisciples<sup>2</sup> au collège de Coqueret.<sup>3</sup> Régnier<sup>4</sup> et d'autres suivent son exemple. La tragédie française<sup>5</sup> n'est pas encore créée, mais la voie se traçait déjà<sup>6</sup> pour l'immortel Corneille et son émule,<sup>7</sup> Jean Racine. L'auteur inconnu<sup>8</sup> de l'Avocat Pathelin, comme nous l'avons vu,<sup>9</sup> avait déjà préparé le terrain de la comédie<sup>10</sup> pour l'inimitable Molière. Mais il manquait à<sup>11</sup> la langue un dernier poli.<sup>12</sup> Malherbe, et plus tard, Balzac, se chargent<sup>13</sup> de cette tâche.<sup>14</sup> Louis XIV apparaît. Le XVII<sup>e</sup> siècle est là.<sup>15</sup>

Molière produit<sup>1</sup> sur la scène,<sup>2</sup> les Précieuses Ridicules.<sup>3</sup> C'est à la première représentation de cette pièce qu'un spectateur s'écrie,<sup>4</sup> „Courage! Molière. Voilà la bonne comédie!„ Après les Précieuses Ridicules, Molière fournit au théâtre le Bourgeois Gentilhomme, l'Avare, le Misanthrope, le Tartufe, les Femmes Savantes, le Malade Imaginaire.<sup>5</sup> Œuvres<sup>6</sup> immortelles! Vraiment, si l'on doit dire qu'il n'y eut jamais au monde de génie aussi universel que<sup>7</sup> Shakespeare, il faut, je le crois, accorder la palme à<sup>8</sup> Molière comme au plus parfait de tous les écrivains<sup>9</sup> comiques.

FRENCH.

1. N'en croyez rien, car je viens de la rencontrer, de l'autre côté du Gymnase.

Je me promenais avec un de mes amis.<sup>1</sup>

De quel côté allait-elle?

D'abord, elle venait de ce côté-ci, et alors elle est retournée du côté de la Madeleine.

Il n'y a plus à en douter. Elle est allée autre part.

Pourquoi riez-vous? Moi, je n'ai pas envie de rire.

Je compte lui<sup>2</sup> demander les raisons d'une telle conduite quand elle viendra.

Elle devient de plus en plus indifférente envers moi.

Eh bien, à demain. Je vous quitte. J'ai envie d'aller au spectacle, ce soir . . . . .

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> The French never say a friend of mine, un ami de moi, but always, one of my friends, un de mes amis.

<sup>2</sup> When one verb is immediately followed by another in the infinitive, the pronoun-objects are (habitually) placed before the second. Ex.: Je veux le voir; je vais le faire; il veut le leur dire; Il est allé les voir. EXCEPTION: If the two verbs form one single expression, as faire faire, to order, to have made; faire voir, to show, etc., the pronouns come before both. Ex.: Je vous le ferai voir.

* The t of the conjunction et is never carried forward.

NOTES.

<sup>1</sup> Never say très alone. Always, Très joli; Très mal. Or, Oui, c'est très joli; oui, c'est très mal, etc.

<sup>2</sup> Be careful never to say, Pas du tout (not at all), when meaning Pas tout à fait (not quite). A frequent mistake.

<sup>3</sup> When verbs expressing will or desire (as vouloir, désirer, exiger (ěg-zē-zhā'), to exact, to demand; défendre, to forbid, etc.) are followed by another verb with a different subject, they generally govern the subjunctive. Ex.: Do you want me to go? = Voulez-vous que j'aille (lit.: Do you want that I go)? As already known, if the subject is the same for both verbs, the second is in the infinitive: Je veux y aller, je désire voir cela, etc.

Yes, very. But not as warm as yesterday.

Not quite . . . . .

Your pens are coarser than<sup>5</sup> mine. I can't write with (them).

Pardon me. They are not as coarse as<sup>5</sup> yours. Do you want me to go and get one?<sup>6</sup>

LITERAL TRANSLATIONS.

<sup>3</sup> Beaucoup = much (or, very much), many (or, very many), a great deal. — <sup>4</sup> Quelque part, somewhere; autre part, somewhere else.

Non, merci. J'avais grand' faim, il y a une heure.

Mais à présent, je n'ai plus faim. Donnez-moi un peu d'eau, seulement.

Comme vous avez l'air fatigué! . . . .

Eh bien, qu'est-ce qu'il y a de nouveau?

Savez-vous quelle nouvelle je viens d'apprendre?

Connaissez-vous<sup>2</sup> Monsieur Legros?

NOTES.

<sup>2</sup> To know is rendered by savoir, or connaître (to know, to be acquainted with). The best guide is to translate to know by connaître, whenever the English verb can be turned into To be acquainted with. Ex.: Do you know this man (or, this town)? We could say: Are you acquainted with this man (or, this town)? Hence, French: Connaissez-vous, etc. But, Do you know your lesson? We could not well say, Are you acquainted with your lesson? Hence, Savez-vous, etc.

Pěr-sòn'. ( Do not say, Pěr-sòn'. )	Not I. I have not heard anybody. <sup>2</sup>
Sē ō' . . . . . kěl-kun'.	Nor I, either . <sup>3</sup>
	Don't talk so loud. <sup>4</sup> I hear somebody.
	So do I.

4. Vōo zā-vā só-áf', nēs-pä' ?	You are very thirsty, are you not?
Fās.	Yes, I am very thirsty. <sup>5</sup>
	Shall I have a glass of wine and something to eat brought to you?
Gran fin'. ( Do not say, fām. )	No thank you. I was very hungry, <sup>6</sup> an hour ago.
Plü fin'.	But now, I am not hungry any more. <sup>7</sup> Give me a little water only.
Sül-man'.	How tired you look! . . . .
Fà-tē-gā'.	Well, what's the news?
Kēs kěl ē yà d'nōō-vō'.	Do you know what news I have just heard?

UN MOT DE LITTÉRATURE.

Je ne puis quitter le XVII<sup>e</sup><sup>1</sup> siècle sans nommer les triomphes<sup>2</sup> dramatiques de Racine:<sup>3</sup> — Andromaque<sup>4</sup> (1667);<sup>5</sup> Britannicus (1669); Iphigénie (1674); Phèdre (1677); Esther (1689); Athalie<sup>4</sup> (1690). Il faut aussi que je vous rappelle<sup>6</sup> le bon La Fontaine, qui aimait peu les enfants, mais dont pourtant les fables font les délices<sup>7</sup> de cet âge. Qui n'a lu Le Corbeau et le Renard,<sup>8</sup> Le Chêne et le Roseau,<sup>8</sup> et, surtout, Les deux Pigeons?<sup>8</sup>

Mais il faut que je me hâte.<sup>9</sup> Il suffit, parmi les innombrables illustrations de ce siècle de grandeur monar-chique et littéraire, que je vous cite les noms de Descartes,<sup>10</sup> de Pascal,<sup>10</sup> de Bossuet<sup>10</sup> et de Fénelon,<sup>10</sup> pour que vous
grandiose<sup>15</sup> à travers l'arène de la littérature.

<sup>10</sup> Dēh-kār'-t', Pās-kāl', famous philosophers. . . . . Bō-sū-ēh', Fā-nā-lon', celebrated divines and preachers of the 17th century.

<sup>11</sup> In order that you may-know (subj. pres. of savoir). Notice the expression: Pas que je sache (pā kūzh sá'-sh'), Not that I know.

<sup>12</sup> Nī . . . . . nī, neither . . . . . nor. Ne before the verb, because of the negation nī . . . . . nī. — <sup>13</sup> Shair', pulpit.

Il<sup>1</sup> ne me reste plus<sup>2</sup> à présent qu'<sup>3</sup>à vous dire un mot de la cinquième période littéraire de la France, c'est-à-dire du XVIII<sup>e</sup> siècle. Imitateur<sup>4</sup> du siècle de Louis XIV pour le style, cette époque voit surgir<sup>5</sup> une multitude d'idées nouvelles et révolutionnaires. Montesquieu,<sup>6</sup> Voltaire, Rousseau,<sup>6</sup> Beaumarchais,<sup>7</sup> Mirabeau<sup>8</sup> travaillent tous<sup>9</sup> plus ou moins directement à la destruction des vieilles traditions monarchiques et philosophiques. Mais tandis que<sup>10</sup> les pensées nouvelles bouillonnent<sup>11</sup> et se forcent<sup>12</sup> jusqu'à la surface, le style conserve la simplicité qui le distinguait au XVII<sup>e</sup> siècle, quoiqu'en en perdant graduellement la noblesse et l'ampleur.<sup>13</sup>

<sup>20</sup> Plā-yâd', Pleiad, or, group. The so-called 'romantic' school of French literature led by Victor Hugo, in opposition to the 'classic' school, which upheld the style of the 17th and 18th centuries.

GRAMMAR.

I. — THE DEFINITE ARTICLE

has 3 forms, and agrees in gender and number with its noun:<sup>1</sup>

1st Form (before masculine nouns), Le billet = The ticket.

2d “ ( “ feminine “ ), La poste = The mail.

3d “ (all plural nouns), Les billets; Les postes.

The article the (le, la, les) is the same in form as the pronoun-objects, le, la, les, meaning him, her, it, and them.

N. B.—Before singular nouns beginning with a vowel or silent h,<sup>2</sup> le and la become l':

L'ami; l'amie;<sup>3</sup> l'habit (masc.); l'heure (fem.).

Par. 2.—THE ARTICLE IS VERY GENERALLY USED.

The article is not only used before nouns used in a definite, but also before nouns used in a general sense.

The house is ready = La maison est prête.

Virtue is lovable = La vertu est aimable.

Men are selfish = Les hommes sont égoïstes.

---

<sup>1</sup> The French have no neuter gender, so that inanimate objects are classified either as masculine or feminine.

<sup>2</sup> As a matter of fact, although there is a so-called aspirate, there is no aspiration such as in English. The only difference between the silent and aspirate h, is, that before the latter, the particles le, la, me, ce, que, etc., do not lose their a or e, while before a silent h, they become l', l', m', c', qu', etc.

<sup>3</sup> The (male) friend; the (female) friend.

Also, before titles: Le président Tyler; Le docteur Ox;
Au revoir, Monsieur le docteur.<sup>1</sup>

But it is omitted,
in rapid enumerations; also, in proverbial expressions:

1st case: Promesses, prières, menaces, rien n'y fit =
Promises, entreaties, threats, nothing availed.

2d case: Pauvreté n'est pas vice = Poverty is no crime.

Le, la, l', les are also omitted before nouns used adjectively, and with numerals of titles.

A gold ring = une bague d'or; not, de l'or.

Louis the fifteenth = Louis quinze; not, le quinze.

Or, when a noun depends closely on another, as:

A glass of water = Un verre d'eau; (not, de l'eau).

Par. 3. — THE ARTICLE IS REPEATED

before each noun of a series:

French and English; Le français et l'anglais.

The coat, pants, and vest; L'habit, le pantalon et le gilet.

Contractions of the Article.

With the 1st form of the article (le) and the 3d form (les), the prepositions de and à combine. De le, de les; à le, à les, are never used, but become du, des; au, aux. So that:

Of the, before masculine singular nouns, beginning with a consonant (or aspirate h) = du.

Of the, before feminine singular nouns, beginning with a consonant (or aspirate h) = de la.

Of the, before mas. or fem. nouns, beginning with a vowel (or silent h) = de l'.

Of the, before all plural nouns = des.

1st case: Du mari; of the husband. — Du hangar.<sup>2</sup>

2d case: De la femme; Of the woman. — De la halle.<sup>2</sup>

3d case: *De l'*ami; *de l'*amie; *de l'*honneur.<sup>3</sup>

4th case: Des maris, des femmes, des amis, des honneurs.

<sup>1</sup> In addressing, if Monsieur (or, Madame) is not used, the article is omitted. — <sup>2</sup> Of the shed; of the (market) hall. Aspirate h.

<sup>3</sup> Of the (male) friend; of the (female) friend; of the honor.

Likewise:

To the, before masculine singular nouns, beginning with a consonant (or aspir. h) = au.

To the, before masculine or feminine nouns, beginning with a consonant (or aspirate h) = à la.

To the, before masculine or feminine nouns, beginning with a vowel (or silent o) = à l'.

To the, before all plural nouns = aux.

1st case: Au mari = To the husband. — Au hangar.<sup>1</sup>

2d case: A la femme = To the wife.

3d case: *A l'*ami, à *l'*amie, à *l'*honneur; à la halle.

4th case: Aux maris, aux femmes, aux amis; aux honneurs.

For the "Partitive Article" (Du, etc. = Some or any), see page 59.

THE INDEFINITE ARTICLE.

Un (un), masc.; une (ün'), fem.; = a (or one).

Ex.: Un homme; un bateau (boat); une femme, etc.

Par. 1. — THE INDEFINITE ARTICLE IS OMITTED in exclamations; also, before names of nationality:

What a beautiful landscape! Quel beau paysage (pěh-ě-zázh')!
He is a Frenchman, Il est Français.<sup>2</sup>

Par. 2. — THE INDEFINITE ARTICLE IS NOT USED before nouns of weight or measure; but, le, la, l' instead. Ex.:
Ten francs a pound = Dix francs la livre.
How much a yard? = Combien le mètre?

II. — THE NOUN.

I. — No Adjective use of Nouns.

A noun (Lat.: nomen) is the name of a creature or thing.

Par. 1. The French cannot say, a gold pen, a dining room, the water pitcher, the steam-engine, (thus using one noun as an adjective to the other) but, only, a pen of gold, a room for<sup>3</sup> dining, the pitcher for<sup>3</sup> (the) water, the engine with<sup>3</sup> steam.

<sup>1</sup> To the shed; to the (market) hall. — <sup>2</sup> For except. with c'est, see p. 384.

<sup>3</sup> For and with in this connection, are both rendered by à.

Une plume *d'*or; une salle à manger.

Le pot à l'eau; la machine à vapeur.

Par. 2.—NO POSSESSIVE CASE IN FRENCH.

The French cannot say, my father's coat, my brother's clerk, my friend's carriage, but must say:

The coat of my father, L'habit de mon père.

The clerk of my brother, Le commis de mon frère.

II.—The Plural of Nouns

is formed by adding s to the singular:

L'homme; les hommes; l'ami, les amis. But:

Par. 2. Nouns ending in s, x, or z, in the singular, remain the same in the plural:

Le bras, the arm; les bras, the arms; (brá').

La voix, the voice; les voix, the voices; (vô-â').

Le nez, the nose; les nez, the noses; (nā).

Par. 3.—NOUNS IN AU OR EU

add x to the singular:

Le couteau, les couteaux; un cheveu, des cheveux.<sup>1</sup>

Par. 4.—NOUNS IN AL,<sup>1</sup> AND A FEW NOUNS IN AIL, change al (âl) and ail (â'-yũ) into aux (ô):<sup>2</sup>

Le cheval; les chevaux; le corail (coral); les coraux.<sup>3</sup>

Par. 5.—SEVEN NOUNS IN OU

take x in the plural. They are:

Bijou, jewel; caillou, pebble; chou, cabbage; genou, knee; hibou, owl; joujou, plaything, toy; pou, louse.

Plural: Bijoux, cailloux (kâ-yōō'), etc.

Par. 6.—IRREGULAR PLURALS.

Le ciel (sē-ôl'), the sky; Les ciels (sē-ô'), the skies.

L'œil, (lũ'-yũ), the eye; Les yeux (lěh zē-ô'), the eyes.

L'aïeul (lâ-yũl'), the ancestor; Plur.: Les aïeux (lěh zâ-yû').

Le bétail (bâ-tâ'-yũ), cattle; Plur.: Les bestiaux (bēs-tē-ô').

<sup>2</sup> The following nouns in al take s: Bal, ball; carnaval, carnival; cal, callosity; chacal, jackal; régal, a treat; pal, a pale.

<sup>3</sup> But, éventail, a fan, éventails; and so, most nouns in ail.

III.—The Feminine of Nouns.

Par. 1. Nouns which are susceptible of having both a masculine and a feminine form generally add e to the masculine form :

Le marchand, storekeeper ; la marchande, storekeeper.

Par. 2.—NOUNS IN ER

change er into ère :

Le boulanger,<sup>1</sup> la boulangère;<sup>1</sup> the baker.

Par. 3.—NOUNS IN IEN AND ON

add ne to the masculine :

Un chrétien,<sup>3</sup> a christian (man) ; une chrétienne.<sup>3</sup>

Un lion,<sup>2</sup> a lion ; une lionne,<sup>2</sup> a lioness.

Par. 3.—NOUNS IN EUR

change eur into euse :

Une danseur, a dancer. Fem.: Une danseuse, a dancer.

Un chanteur, a singer. Fem.: Une chanteuse,<sup>4</sup> a singer.

But: Un acteur = an actor ; une actrice = an actress.

Par. 4.—NOUNS WITHOUT FEMININE.

Auteur, author ; connaisseur, expert ; docteur, doctor ; peintre, painter. Thus: Une femme auteur ; une femme peintre.

IV.—How to tell the Gender of Nouns.

Par. 1.—BY THEIR NATURE.

MASCULINE (generally): Days, months, seasons, metals, trees, mountains.

FEMININE (generally): flowers, fruits, sciences, virtues, vices.

Par. 2.—BY THEIR ENDING.

MASCULINE (generally): Nouns ending in aire, age, al, ant, asme, at, au, aume ; or, in er, ège, ent, et ; or, in ime, isme, iste ; or, in ol, ome, ôme ; or, in b, c, d, g, l, m, n, p, q, z. Ex.:

Dictionnaire (dēk-sē-ô-nair') ; courage ; animal ; ruban ; etc.

FEMININE (generally): Nouns ending in ade, ance, ée, ence, esse, eur ; or, ie, ié, ion, ise ; or, in oire, ude, ure ; or, in té. Ex.:

Promenade ; espérance ; sagesse, wisdom ; valeur, value ; etc.

<sup>1</sup> Bōo-lan-zhā', bōo-lan-zhair'. — <sup>2</sup> Lē-on', lē-ôn'. — <sup>3</sup> Kr ā-tē-in', krā-tē-ën'. — <sup>4</sup> Also, cantatrice, a professional singer. Chasseur, a hunter ; also has two fem. forms, chasseuse, chasseresse.

III.—THE ADJECTIVE.

*All adjectives agree in gender and number with the nouns they “determine” or “qualify.”* They are divided into two great classes: Determining and qualifying adjectives.*

I.—The Determining Adjectives.

I. POSSESSIVE.

Par. 1. — SING. MASC.	SING. FEM.	PLURAL. <sup>1</sup>
Mon,	Ma,	Mes = My .
Ton,	Ta,	Tes = Thy .
Son,	Sa,	Ses = His or Her .
Notre, <sup>2</sup>	Notre,	Nos = Our .
Votre,	Votre,	Vos = Your .
Leur, <sup>3</sup>	Leur,	Leurs <sup>3</sup> = Their .

N. B.—The possessive adjectives agree in gender and number with the possessed object; not with the possessor, as in English.

Thus, a man and woman will say alike:

Ma mère; mon père; mon livre; ma lettre.

Par. 2.—THEY ARE NOT USED WITH PARTS OF THE BODY, but le, la, les instead, whenever there is no danger of confusion of meaning, thereby. Thus:

He lost his arm = Il a perdu le (the) bras (brâ).

I have a pain in my foot = J'ai mal au (to-the) pied (pē-ā').

Par. 3. Mon, ton, son are used instead of ma, ta, sa, before feminine nouns beginning with a vowel or silent h:

Mon encre = My ink (instead of ma encre).

Mon amie = My friend (instead of ma amie).

Par. 4.—WITH MAL, FROID, AND CHAUD the article is used instead of the possessive adjective:

Mal au bras; not, à mon (or son, votre, etc.), bras.

Froid aux mains; not, à mes (or ses, vos, etc.), mains.

* Notice, however, that one adjective qualifying two nouns becomes masculine plural (i. e. takes s only) even if only one of those is masculine. Thus, Une fille et un garçon polis. If both nouns are feminine, the adjective takes es: Une rose et une pensée charmantes. For special cases, see APPENDIX, page 528.

2. DEMONSTRATIVE.

Singular	{	Ce ( masc. ),	Plural, Ces.
		Cet <sup>1</sup> ( masc. ),
		Cette ( fem. ),

Ce monsieur; cet ami; cet homme; cette dame.<sup>2</sup>

Ces messieurs; ces amis; ces hommes; ces demoiselles.

Par. 2. — CE, CET, CETTE, AND CES WITH CI AND LÀ.

Wherever it is necessary to bring out the distinction between this and that, ci and là are added to the noun of ce, cet, etc.:

Bring this book	= Apportez ce livre- ci .
I said this lamp	= J'ai dit cette lampe- ci .
Not that lamp	= Pas cette lampe- là .
Look at these papers	= Regardez ces papiers- ci .
Read those letters	= Lisez † ces lettres- là .

3. INTERROGATIVE.

	SING.	PLUR.
Masculine:	Quel?	quels?	} = Which, or what?
Feminine:	Quelle?	quelles?

Quel mari? Quels maris? Quelle femme? Quelles femmes?

N. B. — In exclamations, quel, etc., means what a! or, in the plural, what!

Quel homme! = What a man! Quels chevaux! = What horses!

4. INDEFINITE.

Aucun, aucune, no, not any.	Certain, certain.
Pas un, pas une, no, not a.	Tout, toute, tous, toutes, all.
Nul, nulle, no.	Plusieurs, several.
Autre, other.	Quel, quelle, etc., what.
Même, same.	Quelque, some.
Chaque, each, every.	Quelconque, whatever.
Maint, mainte, many a.	Tel, telle, such, many a.

Aucun égard (ō-kun nā-gār'), No consideration.

Chaque personne est venue, Every person came; etc.

For the Numeral Adjectives, see pages 176–181.

<sup>2</sup> Never say: cette madame, cette mademoiselle. Always, cette dame, cette demoiselle (sēt dŭ-mô-ā-zěl'). — † Lē-zā.

II.—The Qualifying Adjectives.

I. THE FEMININE OF QUALIFYING ADJECTIVES.

Par 1. They form it by adding e to the masculine :

Un petit homme ; une petite femme.

Par 2.—ADJECTIVES ALREADY ENDING IN *E in the masculine, do not change, of course :

Un chapeau rose = a pink bonnet.

Une robe rose = a “ dress.

Par. 3.—ADJECTIVES IN F AND *X change f into ve, and x into se, in the feminine :

Un chapeau neuf (nũf), une robe neuve (new) ; nũv’.

Un temps affreux,<sup>1</sup> une pluie affreuse<sup>1</sup> (ã-frũz’).

But : doux (soft, sweet), becomes douce ; faux (false), fausse ; roux (reddish), rousse. Pron. : dōō, dōōs’ ; fō, fōs’ ; rōō, rōōs’.

Par. 4.—ADJECTIVES IN *EL, EIL, IEN, ON, AND ET double the l, n, or t, and add e :

Éternel, éternelle ; pareil, pareille.<sup>2</sup>

Ancien,* ancienne ;<sup>3</sup> bon, bonne ; cadet,<sup>5</sup> cadette.<sup>6</sup>

Par. 5.—SIX ADJECTIVES IN ET, however, do not double the t, but change et into ète. They are :

Complet, concret, discret, inquiet, replet, secret.

Fem. : Complète, concrète, discrète, inquiète, replète, secrète.

Par. 6.—ADJECTIVES IN *ER
change er into ère :

Léger (light), légère ; entier (whole), entière.

Par. 7.—ADJECTIVES IN *EUR change eur into euse (generally) :

Parleur (talkative), parleuse. Travailleur (industrious), travailleuse.

N. B.—Adjectives in “érieur,” however, simply add e : Extérieur, extérieure. Likewise : majeur,<sup>7</sup> mineur,<sup>7</sup> and meilleur ;<sup>7</sup> fem. : majeure, mineure, meilleure.

Par. 8.—ADJECTIVES IN TEUR change teur into trice, in the feminine :

But : enchanteur becomes enchanteresse ; vengeur, vengeresse.

Par. 9.—MORE ADJECTIVES WHICH DOUBLE THEIR CONSONANT.

Nul (null, no one) ; épais (thick) ; gros (big) ; gentil (pretty).<sup>2</sup>

Fem. : Nulle “ “ épaisse “ grosse “ gentille “

Also : Bas<sup>3</sup> (low) ; gras (fat) ; las (tired) ; sot (foolish) ; exprès.<sup>4</sup>

Fem. : Basse “ grasse “ lasse “ sotté “ expresse.<sup>4</sup>

Par. 10.—ADJECTIVES WITH IRREGULAR FEMININE.

Blanc, white ; blanche.<sup>5</sup>

Public, public ; publique.

Franc, frank ; franche.<sup>5</sup>

Caduc, decrepit ; caduque.

Sec, dry ; sèche.<sup>5</sup>

Grec, Greek ; grecque.<sup>6</sup>

Long, long ; longue.<sup>5</sup>

Aigu, sharp-pointed ; aiguë.<sup>6</sup>

Malin,<sup>1</sup> sharp ; maligne.<sup>5</sup>

Ambigu, ambiguous ; ambiguë.

Par. 11.—ADJECTIVES IN EAU AND OU.

Beau, beautiful ; belle.

Mou, soft ; molle.

Nouveau, new ; nouvelle.*

Fou, foolish ; folle.

Jumeau, twin ; jumelle.

Vieux, old ; vieille.<sup>7</sup>

They owe this to their old masculine forms : bel, nouvel, jumel, vieil, fol, mol, which are still used before masculine nouns beginning with a vowel or silent h. Thus :

Un nouvel opéra ; un bel homme (bĕl òm'), a fine man.

But : Un nouveau théâtre ; un beau garçon.

2. THE PLURAL OF QUALIFYING ADJECTIVES.<sup>8</sup>

Par. 1. They form their plural by adding s to the singular, unless already ending in s, x, or z :

Un joli paysage.<sup>7</sup>

Une jolie demoiselle.<sup>8</sup>

De jolis paysages.<sup>7</sup>

De jolies demoiselles.<sup>8</sup>

Par. 2. Adjectives in eau, however, add x.

Un beau paysage ; de beaux paysages.<sup>1</sup>

Par. 3. Adjectives in al, generally change al into aux :

Un homme loyal ; des hommes loyaux.

But a few, little used in the plural, add s to the singular. Such are : amical, amicable ; fatal ; initial (ē-nē-sē-ā<sup>l'</sup>) ; etc. Ex. :

Un garçon bancal = A lame boy.

Des garçons bancals = Lame boys.

3. THE COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES

Par. 1.—IS REGULARLY MADE by prefixing plus (more), or moins (less), to the adjective for the comparative ; and le plus (the most), le moins (the least), for the superlative :

Fine, beau ; finer, plus beau ; finest, le<sup>2</sup> plus beau.

“ “ less fine, moins beau ; the least fine, le moins beau.

Par. 2.—IRREGULAR COMPARISON.

The following adjectives have irregular comparative forms :

Bon, good. Meilleur, better.<sup>3</sup> Le meilleur, the best.

Petit, small. Moindre, less.<sup>3</sup> Le moindre, the smallest.<sup>4</sup>

N. B. — We also say : plus mauvais, plus petit ; le plus mauvais ; etc.

4. THE POSITION OF ADJECTIVES.

Par. 1.—GENERALLY AFTER THE NOUN :

A rare man = un homme exceptionnel.<sup>5</sup>

An amiable person = une personne aimable.

Par. 2.—A FEW, HOWEVER, GENERALLY GO BEFORE the noun. They are :

Bon, good .	Grand, large .	Vilain, homely .
Mauvais, bad .	Petit, small .	Jeune, young .
Méchant, “	Beau, fine .	Vieux, old .
Meilleur, better .	Joli, pretty .	Saint, holy .

Par. 3.—TWO ADJECTIVES TOGETHER USUALLY GO AFTER the noun, however. Thus:

A lame old horse = Un cheval vieux et bancal.

Par. 4.—SOME WHICH ALWAYS GO AFTER,
with rare exceptions. They are:

All adjectives of color, form, taste, or nationality.
Also, participles used adjectively:

La Maison Blanche = The White House.

La Table Ronde = The Round Table.

Du fruit sur = Sour fruit.

Un garçon français = A French boy.

Un endroit fréquenté = A frequented place.

Un homme souffrant = A suffering man.

Par. 5.—LONG ADJECTIVES GO AFTER the noun. When an adjective has more syllables than its noun, it is apt to follow it:

An accommodating fellow = Un garçon complaisant.

Par. 6.—EUPHONY OFTEN DETERMINES THE POSITION, irrespective of the foregoing rules; the same adjective going some- times before, sometimes after the noun. For this, the ear is the only guide.

Par. 7.—A FEW ADJECTIVES ARE PLACED ACCORDING TO MEANING.

Un brave homme (brà-vôm') = A good sort of a man.

Un homme brave (un nôm) = A brave man.

Un grand homme (gran tôm') = A great man.

Un homme grand (gran) = A tall man.

Mon cher père = My dear father.

Un tableau cher = A dear picture.

La dernière année = The last year (of a series).

L'année dernière = Last year (just expired).

Un pauvre homme (pō-vrôm') = A 'poor fellow.'

Un homme pauvre = A poor man (in purse).

Un vrai conte = A downright story.

Un conte vrai = A true story.

THE PRONOUN.

The pronoun (lit. : for noun) is a word used instead of a noun. He sold it, instead of, Albert sold his horse and mine, has three pronouns; he, used for Albert; it, used instead of his horse; and mine, instead of my horse.

I.—Personal Pronouns.

(CONJUNCTIVE AND DISJUNCTIVE).

They are either pronoun-subjects, i. e. used as subjects to the verb (I say it, we told him, etc.), or, pronoun-objects, i. e. used as objects to the verb (I say it, we told him).

Pronoun-subjects: Je, tu, il, elle, nous (we), vous (you), ils, elles.

Pronoun-objects: Me, moi, te, toi, le, la,<sup>1</sup> lui, nous (us, or to us), vous (you, or to you), les,<sup>2</sup> leur.<sup>3</sup>

The Personal Pronouns are also divided into Conjunctives and Disjunctives:

The Conjunctives can only be used in direct connection with the verb, (i. e. neither separated from it, nor united to it by a preposition). They are: Je, tu, il, me, te, le, la, ils, les, and leur.

Ex.: I did it = Je l'ai fait. But, Who did it? Ans.: I, Moi (never, Je).

The Disjunctives may be used either with or away from the verb. They are: Moi, toi, elle, lui, nous, vous, eux, elles.

Ex.: Send me, envoyez-moi; Come with me, venez avec moi; I! Moi!

For the position of pronoun-subjects in the sentence, see page 494. For place of pronoun-objects, see page 236.

II.—Possessive Pronouns.

SING. MASC.	SING. FEM.	PL. MASC.	PL. FEM.
Le mien,	La mienne,	Les miens,	Les miennes = Mine .
Le tien,	La tienne,	Les tiens,	Les tiennes = Thine .
Le sien,	La sienne,	Les siens,	Les siennes = His or hers .
Le nôtre,	La nôtre,	Les nôtres,	Les nôtres = Ours .
Le vôtre,	La vôtre,	Les vôtres,	Les vôtres = Yours .
Le leur,	La leur,	Les leurs,	Les leurs = Theirs .

<sup>3</sup> En (of it, of them, etc.), and y (to it, to them, etc.), are also pronoun-objects. — <sup>4</sup> Pron.: Lũ mē-in', lã mē-ën', lěh mē-in', lěh mē-ën'. Lũ sē-in, etc. Lũ nō'-tr', etc. Lũ (lã, or lěh) lŭr'.

These agree in gender and number with the possessed object, not with the possessor. Mine, referring to (1) a book, (2) a table, (3) to books, (4) to tables = (1) le mien, (2) la mienne, (3) les miens, (4) les miennes, whether the possessor be man or woman. Also: I kept my books and hers = J'ai gardé mes livres et les siens (not, les siennes); les siens agreeing with books, which is masculine plural.

REMARK. — The article (le, la, les) of these pronouns combines with the prepositions de and à in the usual way:

Du mien, de la mienne, des miens, des miennes = of mine.

Du sien, de la sienne, des siens, des siennes = of his, etc. And:

Au mien, à la mienne, aux miens, aux miennes = to mine.

Au leur, à la leur, aux leurs, aux leurs = to theirs.

Par. 2. Mine, his, hers, etc., are also rendered by à moi, à lui, à elle, à nous, à vous, à eux, à elles.<sup>1</sup> For instance, in answer to the question: Whose book is this (à qui est ce livre)? (It's mine; or, it's his; or, it's hers), the answer may be either:

Ce livre est le mien; or, Ce livre est à moi.

" " " le sien; or, " " est à lui.

" " " le sien; or, " " est à elle.

TRANSLATE AND WRITE OUT THE FOLLOWING: (1) Her father is richer than yours. (2) His aunt is richer than ours. (3) My watch (fem.) is prettier than his. (4) My dog (chien) is larger than hers. (5) My garden (jardin, masc.) is smaller than yours. (6) Your house (f.) is larger than mine. (7) Your nephew is taller than mine.

Also: (1) I have lost your letters (f.) and mine. (2) Your pencils (m.) are better than ours. (3) These needles (f.) are longer than theirs. (4) Your eggs (m.) are better (mieux) cooked than hers. (5) Those horses (m.) are not so tall (aussi grands) as yours. (6) My flowers (f.) are not so beautiful as his. (7) Our tickets (m.) are better than theirs.

III. — Demonstrative Pronouns.

Par. 1. Ce, this or that; Ceci, this; Cela, that.

Do you mean this (i. e. this thing)? = Voulez-vous dire ceci?<sup>2</sup>

Bring me that (i. e. that thing) = Apportez-moi cela.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Lit.: To me, to him, to her, to us, etc.

<sup>2</sup> Lit.: Whenever this or that mean this one or that one, they are rendered by celui-ci (or, celle-ci), celui-là (or, celle-là).

Par 2. MASCULINE.Celui-ci = *This one.*Celui-là = *That one.*Ceux-ci = *These.*Ceux-là = *Those.FEMININE.Celle-ci = *This one.*Celle-là = *That one.*Celles-ci = *These.*Celles-là = Those.

Celui-ci, celle-ci, also mean, the latter. Celui-là, celle-là, also mean, the former.

Sylla and Pompey were two great generals; but the former was cruel, and the latter was generous = Sylla et Pompée étaient deux grands capitaines; mais celui-ci (the latter) était bon, et celui-là était cruel.

Par. 3. Celui, celle (that, the one), ceux, celles (those, the ones), are also used without ci or là.

But then, they must be followed either by de, or by qui, à qui, de qui (or auquel, etc., duquel, etc.), que, or dont.

Celui de mon frère, My brother's.<sup>1</sup>

Ceux de mon père, My father's.<sup>1</sup>

Celui que j'ai vu, The one I saw.<sup>2</sup>

Ceux que j'ai vus, Those I saw.<sup>2</sup>

Celle qui m'a parlé, The one who spoke to me.

Celle à qui j'ai parlé, The one to whom I spoke.

Celle dont j'ai parlé, The one of whom I spoke.

V.—Relative Pronouns.

Qui = Who, whom, which, or that.

Que = Whom, which, or that.

De qui (or Dont) = Of whom, from whom.

À qui = to whom, whose.

Quoi = what; De quoi = of what, the wherewith.

Lequel, laquelle, lesquels, lesquelles = whom, which, which one, which ones.

Duquel, de laquelle, desquels, desquelles = of whom, of which, of which one, of which ones.

Auquel, à laquelle, auxquels, auxquelles = to whom, etc.

1. Qui is used as subject to the verb, and refers either to persons or things: The woman who sings, La femme qui chante; The birds which sing, Les oiseaux qui chantent.

2. N. B.—Lequel, laquelle, etc., are used instead of qui, wherever the use of qui would lead to confusion. Thus:

I saw your sister's husband, who sends you his compliments = J'ai vu le mari de votre sœur, lequel vous fait ses compliments (not: qui vous fait, etc., because qui would refer indifferently either to sister or husband).

3. Que (or, qu') is used as object to the verb:

The gentleman I saw = Le monsieur que (lit.: whom) j'ai vu.

The letter he wrote = La lettre qu'il a écrite (lit.: which, etc.).

N. B. — When what means that which, it is rendered, in French, by ce qui (as subject), or ce que (as object). Ex.: What astonishes me, is, etc. = Ce qui m'étonne, c'est que, etc. — I hear what you say = J'entends ce que vous dites.

4. Dont is often used instead of de qui and duquel:<sup>1</sup>

The gentleman of whom I speak = Le monsieur dont je parle.

N. B. — Notice that in phrases like: The gentleman whose portrait I painted, dont occupies the same place as whose, but the noun following whose in English, is placed at the end of the sentence, in French: Le monsieur dont j'ai peint le portrait.

REMARK. — De qui (or, duquel) is used, however, and not dont, whenever, in English, whose is preceded by a preposition. Thus: That's the gentleman in whose yacht I was = That's the gentleman in the yacht of whom I was = C'est le monsieur dans le yacht duquel j'ai été.

Other examples:

Ce à quoi il fait allusion = What he alludes to.

Il a de quoi = He has means (i. e. the wherewith).

Remember, that: 1. Que is never omitted:

The things I said = Les choses que j'ai dites.

2. Which, referring to a whole clause, is rendered by ce que:

He consented, which surprised me.

Il a consenti, ce qui m'a surpris.

VI.—Indefinite Pronouns.

Par. 1.—SIMPLE.

On	{	One, they, we.	Aucun, aucune	} No one.
	{	you, people.	Nul, nulle

Par. 2. — COMPOSITE.

L'un . . . . . l'autre = the former . . . . . the latter.†

L'un l'autre = one another (sing.).

Les uns les autres = one another (plur.).

L'un et l'autre = the one and the other, both.

Les uns et les autres = the ones and the others, all.

L'un à l'autre = one to the other, to one another.

L'un de l'autre = from one another.

Les uns aux autres = to one another (plur.).

Les uns des autres = from one another (plur.).

Ni l'un ni l'autre = neither.

Examples :

L'un partit, l'autre resta ; the former went, the latter stayed.

Aidons-nous les uns les autres ; Let us help one another.

Vous vous nuisez l'un à l'autre = You hurt<sup>1</sup> one another.

Ni l'un ni l'autre n'est venu = Neither came.<sup>2</sup>

Je n'ai vu ni l'un ni l'autre = I did not see either (of them).<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Lit. : You to-yourselves are-hurtful (from nuire, to be hurtful, to harm) one to the other.

<sup>2</sup> Notice n' (for ne) before the verb, when ni . . . . . ni is present.

† Tor à. — † Or, simply, the one . . . . . the other.

THE VERB.

GENERAL REMARKS.*

1. The verb (Latin, verbum, word) is the word which expresses action or state. In, I walk, he told me, the verbs are walk and told.

2. A verb has a subject (or subjects), and an object (or objects).

(1) The subject is that person or thing of which anything is affirmed or denied. Thus: in, My father spoke to him, My sister and I read the papers every day, Alfred was dangerously wounded in that battle; my father, my sister and I, and Alfred, are the subjects.

(2) The object is that person or thing through which the action or state expressed by the verb is transmitted. Thus, in the above sentences, him, the papers, and that battle, are the objects.

Objects are divided into direct and indirect. Direct objects are these which need no preposition (de, à, pour, etc.) to connect them with the verb; indirect objects are those that do. Thus, in the above sentences, the paper, is a direct object; but, (to) him, and (in) that battle, are indirect objects.

NOTE. — The preposition may be understood, as in the case of the pronoun-objects me (me, or to me; sometimes even of or from me), te (thee, or to thee, etc.), lui (to him, to her, etc.), nous (us, or to us, etc.), vous (you, or to you, etc.), and leur (to them, etc.). Thus, in Il m'écrit, m' (for me) really means to me, and is an indirect object. Likewise, in I sent him a letter; him, meaning really to him, is an indirect object.

MOODS AND TENSES.

Verbs are divided into moods (to express the mode of the action or state). There are five moods in French. See p. 506.

Moods are subdivided into tenses (Latin, tempus, time), to express the time of the action or state. See page 506.

SIMPLE AND COMPOUND TENSES.

Simple tenses are those which are simply made up of a stem and a termination. As, parl-er, fin-ir, vend-re, recev-oir. Parl, fin, etc., are stems, and, in regular verbs, never vary.

---

* To many pupils, these will be needless; but many others will be materially aided by them.

Er, ir, re, and oir are endings, and vary to indicate various persons and tenses. Thus: To speak=Parl er; but, I speak, =Je parl e; He was speaking=il parl ait.

Compound tenses are made up of one of the auxiliary or helper verbs, avoir and être,* coupled with the past participle of any verb being conjugated. Thus: with spoken, finished, sold, wounded, we form such compound tenses as To have spoken (avoir parlé), I have spoken (j'ai parlé), etc., I have finished (j'ai fini), etc., I have sold (j'ai vendu), etc., I am wounded; or, I had spoken, I had finished, I had sold, etc.

THE THREE REGULAR CONJUGATIONS.†

There are, in French, three regular conjugations or classes of verbs distinguished from each other by the termination of the infinitive present (English, to speak, to finish, etc.). These terminations are er, ir, and re. Hence,

All regular verbs ending in er take the same terminations in the various tenses and persons. See p. 506.

All regular verbs ending in ir take the same terminations in the various tenses and persons. See p. 506.

All regular verbs ending in re take the same terminations in the various moods and tenses. See p. 506.

THE "SIX NECESSARY TENSES."

I give first, on pages 476-494, what I call the "six necessary tenses" (that is, those which occur most frequently in ordinary conversation) of the two auxiliaries and three model regular verbs.

The four forms of each verb (affirmative, interrogative, negative, and negative-interrogative) are given. When the pupil has mastered these, he will find no such difficulty and confusion as is usually experienced in learning the full conjugations, on pages 504-509.

THE EUPHONIC T.

A t is inserted between the verb and the subject pronoun il or elle, in the 3d pers. singular, of the interrogative form, whenever the verb ends in a vowel. Thus: A-t-il, has he? A-t-elle, has she? Parle-t-il? Parle-t-elle? instead of a-il, a-elle, etc.

---

* These are the only two auxiliaries in French.

† Grammarians generally give four conjugations, calling verbs in oir, the third. But, as there are only a few primitive verbs in oir conjugated like the model (recevoir), and these really old verbs in re, some grammarians very properly treat them as irregular verbs.

AVOIR, to have (first auxiliary). — Affirmatively.*Present Participle: Ayant (ěh-yan'), having.Past Participle: Eu (tū), had.Imperative: Ayons (ěh-yon'), let us have; ayez (ěh-yā'), have.†THE "SIX NECESSARY TENSES."*INDICATIVE MOOD. — 1. Present Tense.

GENERAL FORM OF A SENTENCE IN FRENCH.

Apart from the position of the pronoun-objects [me, te, le, la, lui, nous, vous, les, leurs, meaning: me (or to me), thee (or to thee), him (or it), her (or it), etc.], the general order of an affirmative sentence is the same in French as in English. Thus:

SUBJECT.	VERB.	OBJECT.	ADVERB. <sup>1</sup>
My watch	goes		right.
Ma montre	va		bien.
Mr. X	will see	your father	to-morrow.
M. X	verra	votre père	demain. Etc.

If this is kept in mind, it will greatly simplify construction when the pronoun-objects are reached.

However, the French have no auxiliary such as do, nor any progressive form such as I am coming, and, in order to retain the general uniformity of construction mentioned above, the English sentences in which these occur have to be reduced to their simplest form. Thus:

I do not understand = I understand not, Je ne comprends pas.

He is not coming = He comes not, Il ne vient pas.

He was not reading = He read not, Il ne lisait (lě-zěh) pas.

Again, the auxiliary did is turned into have (or be) in French:

I did not understand you = I have not understood you,

Je ne vous ai pas compris (kon-prě').

Did you go to Paris? = Have (lit.: Are) you gone to Paris?

Êtes-vous allé à Paris?

Notice, however, that in negative phrases an extra word, ne, is placed before the verb. This, as already stated, was formerly the real negation, but has become practically a mere adjunct; a warning, so to speak, that something negative (not, or nothing, or never, or nobody, or nowhere, etc.), is going to be said. But the real negations (pas, personne, etc.), are (usually) placed after the verb (if the verb is in a simple tense). Thus:

I do not see your friend = I see not your friend,

<sup>1</sup> For difference in position of adverbs, see page 525.

He does not see anybody = He sees nobody.

Il ne voit personne.

Notice that the French can not say not anything, not anybody, not anywhere, not ever, etc.; but must say nothing (rien), nobody (personne), nowhere (nulle part), never (jamais), etc.

If the verb is in a compound tense, these negations (except personne and nulle part) are placed between the auxiliary and past participle:

He has never seen me = Il ne m'a jamais vu.

She said nothing to us = Elle ne nous a rien dit. — But:

I did n't see anybody = Je n'ai vu personne.

She did not go anywhere = Elle n'a été nulle part.

FORMS OF QUESTION

1. WHEN THE SUBJECT IS A PRONOUN. — With to have (avoir) and to be (être), both languages use the simplest form of question, placing the pronoun-subject (je, tu, il, elle, nous, vous, ils or elles), after the verb. Thus:

I have becomes, Have I? — J'ai becomes, <sup>1</sup> ai-je?

You are becomes, Are you? — Vous êtes becomes, êtes-vous?

With other verbs, however, the English use do and did in asking questions. The French having no such auxiliaries, still use the simple form of question instead of do, and change did into have (or be). Thus:

Do you write much? French: Write you much?

Écrivez-vous beaucoup?

Did he speak long? French: Has he written long?

A-t-il écrit longtemps?

Did they go to Paris? Fr.: Are they gone, etc.

Sont-ils allés à Paris?

2. WHEN THE SUBJECT IS A NOUN, — it precedes the verb, and its corresponding pronoun (il, elle, ils or elles) is placed after the verb or auxiliary. Thus:

Is your father here? Fr.: Your father is he here?

Votre père est-il ici?

Where do your friends live? Fr.: Where your friends live they?

Où vos amis demeurent-ils? <sup>1</sup>

When did Mr. X come? Fr.: When Mr. X is he come?

Quand M. X est-il venu?

N. B. — With où we can also use the simple form of question : Où demeurent vos amis (lit : Where live your friends?). With que the simple form only can be used. Ex. : What does your father do ? :— Que fait votre père ? or, Qu'est-ce que votre père fait ?

Note 1. — Questions with est-ce que.

The French, however, sometimes use another form of question somewhat similar to the English use of do and did. This is with est-ce que (ès kũ ; lit. : Is it that?). Ex. :

Do you understand ? = Est-ce que vous comprenez ?

Did you understand ? = Est-ce que vous avez compris ?

This form generally expresses more energy, or a degree of surprise. — With the first pers. sing. of the indicative present of most verbs, it is nearly always used, so as to avoid such sounds as parlé-je ? vend-je ? etc.

Note 2. — Questions with qui, qui est-ce qui, etc.

Who ? = Qui ? or Qui est-ce qui ? (kē ès kē) ?

Whom ? = Qui ? or Qui est-ce que ? Ex. :

Who speaks ? = Qui parle ? or Qui est-ce qui parle ?

Whom do I see ? = Qui vois-je ? or Qui est-ce que je vois ?

What ? (as a subject) = Qu'est-ce qui (kēs kē) ?

What ? (as an object) = Que ? or Qu'est-ce que (kēs kũ) ?

Ex. : Qu'est-ce qui vous fait mal ? What hurts you ?

Que dites-vous ; or Qu'est-ce que v. dites ? What do you say ?

NEGATIVE FORMS OF QUESTIONS

differ from the above only in the introduction of some negation : (pas (not), point (absolutely not),<sup>1</sup> nul or aucun (none), jamais, personne, rien, que (only), guère (scarcely), ni . . . . ni (neither . . . . nor), or nulle part). For ne, see bottom of p. 494. — Ex. :

Are you not going there ? = Go you not there ?

N'y allez-vous pas ?

Did you not go there ? = There are you not gone ?

N'y êtes-vous pas allé ?

He likes neither fat nor lean = He likes neither fat nor lean.

Il n'aime ni le gras (grä), ni le maigre.

Why did Mr. Adams never make that journey ? —

Pourquoi M. Adams n'a-t-il jamais fait ce voyage ? — etc., etc.

Note. — For personne and rien as subjects, see page 404.

THE PAST INDEFINITE, PRETERIT, AND IMPERFECT.

I. The simple English past (I saw, he went, etc.) may be rendered in French by one of the three tenses above.

II. But the Past Indefinite and Preterit represent a past action as single or momentary.

Practically, the Past Indefinite<sup>1</sup> alone of these two, is used in conversation :

I saw him yesterday = Je l'ai vu hier ; —

While the Preterit<sup>2</sup> fills in narration, the same office as the Past Indefinite in conversation :

Cæsar saw him and said . . . . , César le vit, et dit . . . . ,

III. Now, the Imperfect is used either in conversation or narration, to express :

(1) A past action which was already going on, when the one expressed by either the Past Indefinite or Preterit takes place.
Ex. :

When I came in,<sup>3</sup> he was writing =

or, Quand j'entraî (preterit ; narrative style) il écrivait.

I saw her yesterday. She was walking about =

Je l'ai vue hier. Elle se promenait.

(2) A continued action :

While I spoke, he wrote = Tandis que je parlais,<sup>4</sup> il écrivait.<sup>4</sup>

Where were you, yesterday? = Où étiez-vous, hier ?

(3) A repeated or habitual action :

1. Every time I spoke, he interrupted me =

Chaque fois que je parlais, il m'interrompait.

2. Last summer, I took a walk every morning =

L'été passé, je faisais une promenade tous les matins.

I used to read a good deal, then = Je lisais beaucoup, alors.

<sup>1</sup> Or, conversational tense. — <sup>2</sup> Or, historical tense.

<sup>3</sup> Lit. : When I am (i. e., have) come-in ; past indefinite.

<sup>4</sup> He wrote, I spoke [imperfect termination : (ais, ait, etc., etc.)]. As seen here, the learner can often mechanically ascertain when the imperfect is to be used. If the verb can be transposed into the English progressive forms (as : I spoke, here, = I was speaking ; he wrote, here, = he was writing), use the imperfect.

USE OF THE TENSES OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE.

The subjunctive is put in the present, if the verb in the principal clause is in the present or future tense :

I want him to come, Je veux qu'il vienne.

I'll forbid his coming, Je défendrai qu'il vienne.

I fear he has come, Je crains qu'il ne soit venu.<sup>1</sup>

But the subjunctive is put in the imperfect, if the verb in the principal clause is in a past tense or the conditional. Ex. :

I feared he was gone, Je craignais qu'il ne fût parti.<sup>2</sup>

I would fear he might die, Je craindrais qu'il ne mourût.

NOTE. — If some condition, however, is expressed or understood, the imperfect of the subjunctive is always used, even if the first verb is not in a past tense. Ex. :

I do not think he would have given that order, if he had known it =
Je ne crois pas qu'il eût donné cet ordre, s'il l'avait su.

AGREEMENT OF VERBS WITH THEIR SUBJECT.

The verb agrees in person and number with its subject. Thus :

Mon frère part. — Mes frères partent.

When there are several subjects, the verb is in the plural, unless the subjects are synonymous. Ex. :

Mon frère et lui viendront.

Mon frère et moi,<sup>3</sup> nous viendrons. But :

Son courage, son intrépidité nous surprend.

When the subject is a collective noun, the verb is in the singular or the plural according to whether the noun expresses the totality of individuals or their separate personality. Thus :

The army was routed = L'armée fut mise en fuite. But :

A great many soldiers were killed = Un grand nombre de soldats furent tués.

<sup>1</sup> Note that if the subjunctive is in a compound tense, we have then the present subjunctive of the auxiliary, with the past participle.

<sup>2</sup> Note that if the subjunctive is in a compound tense, we have then the imperfect subjunctive of the auxiliary, with the past participle.

<sup>3</sup> When one of the subjects is of the 1st (or 2d) person, a reduplicating pronoun (nous, or vous), representing both, is often used before the verb.

THE PAST PARTICIPLE.

The Past Participle, if conjugated with être, agrees in gender and number with the subject. Thus:

Mon frère est parti; But: Mes frères sont partis;

Ma sœur est partie; Mes sœurs sont parties.

The Past Participle, if conjugated with avoir, agrees with the direct object, when that object precedes the verb. Thus:

J'ai acheté une maison. — The direct object maison follows acheté; hence, no agreement (no e). — But:

Voilà la maison que j'ai achetée. The direct-object (maison) precedes, hence acheté is made feminine, to agree with it.

NOTE 1. — The application of the two rules above, if reasoned out, will solve every case of past participle, and stand in much better stead to the pupil than the many mechanical and incomprehensible rules usually given. For instance, in the following difficult case:

Did you hear the birds sing? Ans.: Yes, I heard them sing.

Oui, je les ai entendus chanter.

What did we hear? Ans.: Them (the birds) singing. Hence, them (les) is the direct object, and as it precedes entendu, the latter agrees with it, and becomes entendus.

Have you heard those songs? Ans.: Yes, I heard them.

Oui, je les ai entendu chanter. (Lit.: I them heard sing.)

What did we hear? — them (the songs) sing? Of course, not. But we heard 'sing' (i. e., the-singing-of) them (the songs). Sing, i. e., chanter [and not them (les)], is therefore direct object of heard (ai entendu). Hence entendu does not vary.

NOTE 2. — The Past Participles of impersonal verbs are invariable:

Quelle chaleur il a fait! How hot it has been! (not faite).

NOTE 3. — With en there is no agreement, as, although it may appear to be a direct, it is really an indirect object:

I found strawberries, and ate some (en; lit.: of-them).

J'ai trouvé des fraises et j'en ai mangé (not mangées).

For the Past Participle of Reflexive Verbs, see p. 512.

The Present Participle. — The present participle ends in ant. As a verb, it is invariable. If used as an adjective, it agrees with the noun it qualifies. Thus:

An obliging man = Un homme obligeant.

Obliging women = Des femmes obligeantes.

PECULIAR VERBS IN ER.

1. Verbs having an e mute before the “er.”

The e mute preceding the termination of verbs in er, such as mener, peser (pũ-zā') to weigh, etc., is changed into è (pron.: ěh), whenever, in the course of the conjugation, it comes before another e mute.<sup>6</sup> Thus:

Mener, to take (anybody anywhere).

Ind. Pres.	Imperf.	Past Indef.	Preterit.
Je mè-ne (mĕn')	Je me-nais <sup>3</sup>	J'ai me-né	Je me-nai <sup>4</sup>
Tu mè-nes <sup>7</sup> “	Tu me-nais	Tu as me-né	Tu me-nas
Il mè-ne “	Il me-nait	Il a me-né	Il me-na
N. me-nons <sup>1</sup>	N. me-nions	N. avons me-né	N. me-nâmes <sup>7</sup>
V. me-nez <sup>2</sup>	V. me-niez	V. avez me-né	V. me-nâtes <sup>7</sup>
Ils mè-nent <sup>7</sup> (mĕn')	Ils me-naient <sup>7</sup>	Ils ont me-né	Ils me-nèrent <sup>7</sup>
Future.	Conditional.	Subj. Present.	Subj. Imperf.
Je mè-ne-rai <sup>5</sup>	Je mè-ne-rais	Que je mè-ne	Q. je me-nasse
Tu mè-ne-ras	Tu mè-ne-rais	Que tu mè-nes	Q. tu me-nasses, <sup>7</sup> etc.
Il mè-ne-ra'	Il mè-ne-raît	Qu'il mè-ne	Imperative.
N. mè-ne-rons	N. mè-ne-rions	Que n. me-nions	Mè-ne
V. mè-ne-rez	V. mè-ne-riez	Que v. me-niez	Me-nons
Ils mè-ne-ront	Ils mè-ne-raient <sup>7</sup>	Qu'ils mè-nent <sup>7</sup>	Me-nez

The division of syllables is marked so as to show how this e, followed by er in the infinitive, becomes accented and pronounced ěh, whenever in any other tense it comes to be followed by a syllable ending in an unaccented e.

2. Verbs having an é before the er.

The é (pron.: ā) preceding the infinitive termination of verbs in er, like considérer, régler, espérer, is likewise changed into è (ěh), before an e mute.<sup>8</sup> Thus:

<sup>8</sup> Verbs in éer, like créer, however, do not change é into è. Je crée, not je crée.

Je considè-re, tu considè-res, il considè-re, n. considé-rons, v. considé-rez, ils considè-rent.<sup>1</sup>

Je considé-rai, etc. Je considè-re-rai,<sup>1</sup> etc. Je considè-re-rai.<sup>1</sup>

Q. je considè-re, q. n. considé-rions, qu'ils considè-rent.

3. Verbs in eler and eter.

Verbs in eter and eler, like appeler, épeler, jeter, etc., do not change e into è, but double the t and l instead, the result (the broadening of e into ěh) being the same. Thus:

J'appe-lais,<sup>4</sup> etc. J'appel-le-rai,<sup>5</sup> etc. J'appel-le-rai, etc.

Q. j'appel-le,<sup>2</sup> q. n. appe-lions,<sup>6</sup> qu'ils appel-lent.<sup>2</sup>

4. Verbs ending in ger or cer.

1. Verbs in ger, like manger, changer, nager (to swim), introduce an e mute before terminations beginning with a or o, so as to preserve the soft (zh) sound of g (see p. xix). Thus:

N. mangeons, we eat. Je mangeais, I was eating; Tu mangeais, thou wast eating, etc. Je mangeai, I ate. Q. je mangeasse.

2. Verbs in cer, like menacer, placer, etc., take a cedilla before a or o, so as to preserve the soft sound of c. Thus:

N. menaçons, we threaten; Je menaçai, I threatened; etc.

5. Verbs in yer.

Verbs in yer, like employer, appuyer, change y into i before an e mute. Thus:

J'emploie, n. employons, v. employez, ils emploient.

J'employais, etc. J'emploierai, etc. J'emploierais, etc.

N. B. — Verbs in ayer and eyer, like payer, grasseyer (to lisp), may retain the y, or change it into i. Thus:

Je paye; or, je paie; etc. The Academy favors the first.†

<sup>6</sup> Ā-pŭ-lē-ôn'. — * Acheter, geler, and peler (to peel), however, do not double t or l, but change e into è. J'achète, il gèle, ils pèlent.

† Verbs in yer or ier, as envoyer, prier (prē-yā'), naturally keep the y or i of the root, even before terminations beginning with i. Thus: N. envoy-ions (we used to send), v. pri-iez (you were praying).

CONJUGATE:

After the model verb Parler: Aimer, porter, estimer, préférer (see p. 500).

After the model verb Finir: Accomplir, bâtir, réussir.

After the model verb Vendre: Attendre, rendre, fondre.

TABLE OF COMMON VERB ENDINGS.

From the above paradigms, it will be seen that for all regular verbs, whether ending in er, ir, or re, there is but one single set of terminations, for any one tense. Thus:

Indicative Present.	Imperfect Indic.	Preterit.	Future.
—	ais	—	rai
—	ais	s	ras
—	ait	—	ra
ons	ions	mes	rons
ez	iez	tes	rez
ent	aient	rent	ront
Conditional.	Imperative.	Subj. Present.	Imperfect Subj. rais	—	e	sse
rais	—	es	sses
rait	—	e	t
rions	ons	ions	ssions
riez	ez	iez	ssiez
raient	ent	ent	ssent

Observe also that these endings are likewise the endings of all irregular verbs (with rare exceptions in the case of the indicative present and imperat.). This, if properly taken in, will be seen to simplify a hundred-fold the question of verb terminations.

NOTICE, however, — (1) That all regular verbs in er introduce an e between the stem and the termination of the Future and Conditional: Je parl *e*rai, je frapp *e*rai, je travaill *e*rais, etc.

(2) That all regular verbs in ir introduce i between the stem and termination of the Indicative Present, Preterit, and Future.

(3) That all regular verbs in ir introduce iss between the stem and termination of the Indicative Present, Imperfect, and Present Subjunctive.

All irregular verbs in ir omit these inserted letters.

VERBES RÉFLÉCHIS. — MODÈLE: Se Dépêcher.

Reflexive verbs are those in which the action is reflected upon the subject, as: To flatter one's self, I wash myself, etc. Many verbs, however, are reflexive in French, which are not so in English. For instance, Se dépêcher (lit.: To hasten one's self), Eng.: To hasten:

SE DÉPÊCHER, to make haste.*

Vous vous êtes dépêchés, hurry,		Vous êtes-vous dépêchés?
Ils se sont dépêchés, etc.		Se sont-ils dépêchés?

<sup>1</sup> Lit.: I hasten myself, etc. — <sup>2</sup> Do I hasten = Est-ce que je me dépêche? Te dépêches-tu? Se dépêche-t-il? etc. I do not hasten, etc. = Je ne me dépêche pas; Tu ne te dépêches pas, etc. Do I not hasten? etc. = Est-ce que je ne me dépêche pas? Ne te dépêches-tu pas? etc.

<sup>3</sup> Would I not hurry? etc. = Ne me dépêcherais-je pas? Ne te dépêcherais-tu pas? etc. — * Se dépêchant, me dépêchant, etc., making haste.

Negative form.

*Je ne me suis pas dépêché,
Tu ne t'es pas dépêché, etc.*

Negative-interrogative.

*Ne me suis-je pas dépêché ?
Ne t'es-tu pas dépêché ? etc.*

Conjugate the following three tenses in the same manner :

1. Plus-que-parfait.

*Je m'étais dépêché, I had hurried, etc. M'étais-je dépêché ? etc.
Je ne m'étais pas dépêché, I had not, etc. Ne m'étais-je pas dépêché ? etc.*

2. Futur.

Je me serai dépêché, etc.

3. Conditionnel.

Je me serais dépêché, etc.

Subjonctif (Passé et Plus-que-parfait).

Que je me sois dépêché, That I (may) have hurried. Que je me fusse dépêché.

NOTE. — The reflexive pronouns (me, myself or to myself; te, thyself, or to thyself; se, himself, herself, one's self; also, to himself, etc.; nous, ourselves, or to ourselves; vous, yourself, or to yourself; se, themselves, or to themselves) are really pronoun-objects, and as such always placed immediately before the verb (except with the imperative-affirmative; which see above). But the pronoun-subjects (je, tu, il, elle, nous, vous, ils, elles) change their place in interrogative forms and come after the verb (see Conditional, above, and the Past Indefinite, p. 510).

NOTE also that in the negative forms of these verbs, ne comes in its usual place, just before the pron.-objects (that is, just before me, te, etc.).

Agreement of Past Participle of Reflexive Verbs. — Although conjugated with être, the past participle of these verbs follow the 2d rule (see p. 99), that is, they agree with the direct-object, if that object precedes the verb.

This will appear rational, if we remember that être with these verbs has really the force of avoir. Ex.:

Elle s'est promenée, She took a walk (lit.: She herself has promenaded).

Ils se sont dépêchés, They hurried (lit.: They themselves hurried).

Elles se sont dépêchées, They hurried (lit.: They themselves hurried).

Notice, that if the past part. of reflexive verbs appears often to agree with the subject, it is only when the subject and direct-object actually refer to the same person or thing. Ex.:

Elle s'est coupée, She has cut herself (lit.: She herself has cut). But:

Elle s'est coupé la main, She cut her hand (lit.: She to-herself has cut the hand).

Coupé is made feminine in the first, because agreeing with the direct-object herself (s'). It remains invariable in the second, because the direct-object, la main, does not precede it.

Reciprocal Use of Reflexive Verbs. — Sometimes, the reflexive pronouns se, nous, vous, have the meaning of each other, one another: Ils s'aiment, They like each other; Ils se font mal, They hurt one another.

PASSIVE VERBS.

The only passive forms in French are those made up of the past participle of any active verb (aimer ; flatter ; estimer ; haïr ; etc.), and the various tenses of the verb être. Thus :

ÊTRE AIMÉ, to be loved.

Indic. Présent.	Prétérit.	Impératif.
I am loved, etc.	I was loved, etc.	Be thou loved ? etc.
Je suis aimé <sup>1</sup>	Je fus aimé <sup>4</sup>	Sois aimé <sup>1</sup>
Tu es aimé	Tu fus aimé, etc.	Soyons aimés <sup>1</sup>
Il est aimé	Futur.	Soyez aimés <sup>1</sup> *
N. sommes aimés <sup>1</sup>	I shall be loved, etc.	Subjonc. Présent.
V. êtes aimés *	Je serai aimé <sup>1</sup>	That I (may) be loved, etc.
Ils sont aimés	Tu seras aimé, etc.	Que je sois aimé <sup>1</sup>
Imparfait.	Conditionnel.	Que tu sois aimé
I was loved, etc.	I would be loved, etc.	Qu' il soit aimé
J' étais aimé	Je serais aimé <sup>1</sup>	Que n. soyons aimés <sup>1</sup>
Tu étais aimé <sup>1</sup>	Tu serais aimé	Que v. soyez aimés *
Il était aimé	Il serait aimé	Que ils soient aimés
N. étions aimés <sup>1</sup>	N. serions aimés <sup>1</sup>	Imparfait du Subj.
V. étiez aimés *	V. seriez aimés *	That I (might) be loved, etc.

Passé Indéfini.	Futur Antérieur.	Plus-que-parfait.
I was or have been loved.	I shall have been loved.	I (might) have been loved.
J'ai été aimé <sup>1</sup>	J'aurai été aimé, etc. <sup>1</sup>	Q. j'eusse été aimé, etc. <sup>1</sup>

Complement of Passive Verbs. — Passive verbs (generally) take de before their complement, if they express a sentiment or passion. They take par, if expressing an action of the body or mind. Ex. : Cet homme est estimé de tout le monde. But: Carthage fut détruite par les Romains; Ce livre a été écrit par cet auteur.

Use of the Active and Passive Verbs contrasted. — The French omit the use of the passive voice wherever the active form (with on or ils) can as well be used. Ex. :

It is said we will have war = On dit que nous aurons la guerre.

<sup>1</sup> See p. 499. — * If vous refers to one person, the past p. takes no s.

DISTINCTION IN THE USE OF AVOIR AND ÊTRE.

The auxiliary avoir is used with all active verbs, and nearly all neuter verbs. (See below.)

The auxiliary être is used with all passive verbs (see p. 512), with all reflexive verbs, and with the following

Twelve Neuter Verbs:

- |  |  |   |
|--|--|---|
| 1. Aller, to go.                       | 5. Retourner, to go back. <sup>2</sup> | 9. Arriver, to arrive.                    |
| 2. Rester, to stay.                    | 6. Partir, <sup>3</sup> to start.      | 10. Monter, <sup>5</sup> to go up.        |
| 3. Venir, to come.                     | 7. Entrer, <sup>4</sup> to come in.    | 11. Descendre, <sup>5</sup> to come down. |
| 4. Revenir, <sup>1</sup> to come back. | 8. Sortir, to go out.                  | 12. Tomber, <sup>5</sup> to fall.*        |

Thus: I went or I have gone = Je suis allé (I am gone).

I would have stayed = Je serais resté (I would-be stayed).

MODELS OF CONJUGATION.

1. Passé Indéfini.	3. Futur.	5. Subjonctif Passé.
I went or have gone, etc.	I shall or will have gone.	That I (may) have stayed.

Ils étaient allés	Ils seraient venus	Qu' ils fussent arrivés

<sup>3</sup> Also, to leave, to go away. — <sup>4</sup> Also, rentrer, to come in again.

<sup>5</sup> Monter, descendre, and tomber sometimes take avoir, when used in a more active sense.

* Also naître, to be born, or mourir, to die. — Je suis né = I was born; Il est né, He was born. — Il est mort (mor); Elle est morte (mor'-t') = He died; She died. Also, He is dead; She is dead.

Il tonnera. It will thunder.	Il tonnerait. It would thunder.	Qu'il tonne. That it (may) —.	Qu'il tonnât.* That it (might) —.

* Conjugate like Tonner: Arriver, to happen (see p. 513); Dégeler, to thaw; Bruiner, to drizzle; Grêler, to hail; Éclairer, to lighten; Neiger, to snow (see page 501); Geler, to freeze (see page 500); Importer, to matter.

VI. — THE ADVERB.

List of Adverbs not already given. — Alentour, around; autrement, otherwise; désormais (or dorénavant), henceforth; jadis, formerly; pis, worse; point, not (at all); toutefois, however.

Adverbial Expressions.

À jamais, forever .	Bon gré mal gré, whether you will or no .
À la fois, (all) at once .
À peu près, about .	D'accord! agreed!
À tort et à travers, at random .	D'ordinaire, usually .
À l'envers, wrong side out .	De part et d'autre, on both sides .
À bride abattue, at full speed .	De même, likewise .
À vue d'œil, visibly .	De long en large, back'd and f'rd .
À contre-cœur, against one's will .	En un clin d'œil, in a twinkling .
À gros flocons, in large flakes .	En arrière, backward .
À perte de vue, way out of sight .	Par derrière, behind .

NOTE. — Many adjectives are also transformed into adverbs by adding the termination ment. Thus: joli, pretty; joliment, prettily. Heureux, happy; heureusement, fortunately. — A few adjectives, are also used as adverbs. Ex.: He sings out of tune = Il chante faux.

The Position of Adverbs. — The usual place of adverbs is:

(1) Immediately after the verb, if the verb has only one part (i. e. is in a simple tense). Ex.:

Vous prononcez très bien. — Il joue mal. (He plays badly.)

(2) But, between the two parts of the verb (auxiliary and past participle), if the verb is in a compound tense. Ex.:

You have pronounced badly = Vous avez mal prononcé.

He danced a great deal = Il a beaucoup dansé. But:

Hier, aujourd'hui, demain, ici, là, and adverbial expressions (see above), are, however, placed after both parts of the verb. Ex.: Il est venu hier; — Le cheval courait à bride abattue.

NOTE. — Hier, aujourd'hui, and demain are sometimes placed at the beginning of the sentence, for the sake of emphasis.

Adverbs of quantity (like beaucoup, peu, plus, moins, assez) require de (without the article) before a noun. Ex.: Much bread, beaucoup de pain. See page 59.

Adverbs of Comparison. — Comparison is expressed by means of the following ad.: plus, moins, aussi (as), pas si (not as): Elle est plus jolie. — Il est moins âgé que moi. Elle est aussi jolie que vous. — Vous n'êtes pas si jeune que lui.

Notice that as after all these is rendered by que.

The superlative is expressed by means of le plus and le moins. Ex.: Le plus beau. — Le moins difficile.

NOTE the irregular comparisons:

Mal, badly; Pis, worse; Le pis, the worst.

Peu, little; Moins, less; Le moins, the least.

NOTE that The more . . . . . the more, and The less . . . . . the less are rendered by Plus . . . . . plus, and Moins . . . . . moins (no article). Ex.: The more I work, the more I like to work = Plus je travaille, plus j'aime à travailler. The less I walk, the less I want to walk = Moins je marche, moins je veux marcher.

VII. — THE PREPOSITION.

Any prep. in French (excepting en) governs the infinitive.

List of Prepositions not already given. — Hormis, except; malgré, in spite of; outré, besides; sauf, save; suiwant, according to; touchant, concerning; vis à vis, opposite; vu, seeing.

Prepositional Expressions.

À cause de, on account of .	Au moyen de, by means of .
À force de, by dint of .	Au niveau de, on a level with .
À l'égard de, with regard to .	Au risque de, at the risk of .
À l'insu de, unbeknown to .	En dépit de, in spite of .
À raison de, at the rate of .	Faute de, for want of .
Au-dessus de, above .	Le long de, along .
Au-dessous de, below .	Y compris, including .
Au lieu de, instead of .	Non compris, not including .

Use of Prepositions between Verbs. — A verb followed immediately by another in the infinitive generally governs the use of à or de before it (see pages 332, 429, 312). About fifty verbs, however, do not require any preposition before another verb. Of these, the most frequently used are:

Aimer mieux, to prefer .	Falloir, to be necessary .
Aller, to go .	Oser, to dare .
Compter, to intend .	Pouvoir, to be able to .
Désirer, to wish .	Savoir, to know .
Envoyer, to send .	Venir, to come .
Espérer, to hope .	Voir, to see .
Faire, to make .	Vouloir, to wish .

Use of Prepositions between nouns. — Prepositions are used to express use, purpose, attribute, or limitation. Thus :

1. Use. — A tea-spoon = Une cuiller à café.
2. Purpose. — A dining-room = Une salle à manger.
3. Attribute. — A three-story house = Une maison à trois étages.
4. Limitation. — A return ticket = Un billet *d'*aller et retour.

Use of Prepositions after Adjectives. — I. Adjectives of feeling generally require de after them.

Ex. : Je suis content de vous voir. — Je suis fâché de partir.

II. Adjectives of means or adaptability (or the opposite) generally take à. Ex. :

Cela est utile à savoir. — Cela est bon à manger (see p. 450).

NOTE 1. — Prepositions are to be repeated before every noun, verb, or pronoun of a series, unless these are synonymous. Ex. :

I wrote to Peter and Paul = J'ai écrit à Pierre et à Paul.

He has less merit than money = Il a moins de mérite que d'argent.

NOTE II. — En (in) expresses something indefinite, dans something definite. En is rarely followed by any article or adjective, dans nearly always. Ex. : Elle est en ville = She is in town. Il est dans la ville = He is in the city.

With reference to time, dans denotes when anything will occur, and en indicates how long it will last. Ex. :

Il fera ce voyage en trois jours. — Il reviendra dans trois jours.

NOTE the following idioms : Vivre en roi, To live like a king. Habillé en femme, Dressed as a woman. D'après cet auteur, According to that author.

De is used before an adjective (unaccompanied by its noun) or a past participle, when these follow a number or an expression of quantity (as quelque chose, rien, quelqu'un, quoi, que). Ex. : Il y a quelqu'un de malade à la maison. Il y a eu trois personnes de noyées (drowned).

VIII.—THE CONJUNCTION.

The simple conjunctions have already been given.

Conjunctive Phrases governing the Subjunctive.

Afin que, that .	Non que, not that .
À moins que, unless .	Plût à Dieu que, would to God that .
Avant que, before .	Dieu veuille que, God grant that .
En cas que, in case, if .	Pour que, in order that .
De peur que, lest .	Pourvu que, provided that .
De crainte que, for fear that .	Quoique, although .

De manière que, so that .	Sans que, without .
En attendant que, till, until .	Sinon que, unless .
Jusqu'à ce que, till, until .	Soit que . . . ou que, whether . . . or .
Bien que, although .	Supposons que, let us suppose that .

Nearly all others, such as : Puisque, since, etc., govern the indicative.

IX. — THE INTERJECTION.

Ah! ä, Ah!	Bah! bä, Bah!	Ciel! Gracious!	Hé! ä, Hello!
Aie! ä'-y', Outch!	Bon! Good!	Courage! Courage.	Hélas! ä-läs', Alas!
Alerte! Quick! Mind!	Bravo! Bravo!	Fi! fë, Fie!	Gare! gär', look out!
Allons! Come (now).	Chut! shüt, Silence!	Halte! ä!'-t', Halt!	Silence! Silence!

APPENDIX.

Plural of Compound Nouns. — If made up of two nouns, both are plural. Ex.: Un chou-fleur; des choux-fleurs. [Exceptions: des appuis-main; des couvre-pied (coverlets)]. If, however, the two nouns are united by a preposition, only the first varies. Ex.: Un chef-d'œuvre; des chefs-d'œuvre. — A verb, adverb, or preposition, entering into a compound noun, is invariable. Ex.: Un essuie-mains; un cure-dents; des cure-dents; des avant-coureurs.

Special cases of Subjunctive. — The subj. is used independently of any other verb (at least, apparently), in exclamations: Puisse-t-il être heureux! may he be happy! Plût au Ciel! Would to God!

An adjective qualifying several synonymous nouns, agrees only with the last: Il a montré une réserve, une retenue digne d'éloge.

An adjective following two nouns, the second of which is a complement of the first, agrees with whatever noun it really qualifies.

A basket of fruit well filled = Une corbeille de fruits bien pleine.

A basket of very ripe fruit = Une corbeille de fruits bien murs.

Tout, meaning quite, is an adverb, but varies before a feminine noun beginning with a consonant (or aspirate h). Ex.: Elle est tout interdite; but: Elle est toute stupéfaite. — Nu (naked), and demi are invariable if united to a noun by a hyphen. Thus: Nu-pieds, barefooted; Nu-tête, bareheaded; une demi-heure. But: Les pieds nus; La tête nue; une heure et demie. Feu, late, if not immediately before its noun, is invariable. Ex.: The late queen = La feue reine; or, Feu la reine.

Quelque, followed immediately by a verb, is written in two words, and quel agrees with the subject: Quel que soit son talent. — Quelle que soit sa modestie. — Quelles que soient ses qualités.

In answer to such questions as, Are you Mrs. Adams? Are you ill? etc., the English may answer simply, I am. The French say, I am it; and it (or so) is expressed by le, la, or les, if a noun is in question; but always by le, if an adjective. Thus: Êtes-vous la mère de cet enfant = Je la suis. But: — Êtes-vous malade = Je le suis.
